Youths In Demonstration; Marines Set Up Beachhead

Pressures Threaten To Complicate Cong Fight

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist youths staged an antigovernment street demonstration in Saigon Saturday night while U.S. Marines consolidated a beachhead, newly won in their southernmost landing of the war, to protect river traffic to the capital.

Mounting against Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime were political pressures which threatened —as others have done at intervals since the downfall of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963—to complicate the fight against the Viet Cong.

Leaping into that fight were about 1,200 American Leathernecks of the 1st Battalion, 5th Marine Regiment, specially trained in Hawaii for a special job in Viet Nam.

They stormed ashore in assault boats and helicopters in a driving rain at the mouth of the Saigon River, 35 miles southeast of Saigon. With naval guns firing in support, there was no initial Viet Cong resistance. The main mission is to help shield from Communist harassment a shipping lane by which vital supplies are moved inland from the South China Sea.

Operations elsewhere cost the United States three planes. Of four crewmen in these crashes, three were killed and one is listed as missing.

One of the planes, an A4 Skyhawk from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise, crashed in one of 38 attacks against North Viet Nam's transport and communication lines Friday. It went down about 60 miles north of the highway ferry landing. The others fell during attacks on Viet Cong centers in the south.

Two hundred or more young Vietnamese marched from a rally of 10,000 at the Buddhist Institute of Saigon's central market in the first such street manifestation of opposition here to Ky's government since he assumed power last June.

They called, as their fellows in Hue and Da Nang have previously done, for a speedy return to civilian rule.

Police broke up a preliminary attempt at a march by exploding two smoke grenades, but afterward kept hands off. They let the demonstrators pass unmolested to harangue passers-by under banners that said "Save the national sovereignty" and "Bring democracy and destroy colonialism."

The demonstration attracted about 3,000 persons, including many children. The crowd dispersed shortly before midnight.

In all, it never approached the violence of some demonstrations that Buddhits and students have launched here in the past.

The Buddhist Institute rally heard a denunciation from Thich Thien Minh, head of Buddhist youth affairs, of South Viet Nam's current governmental, social and economic situation.

He urged the youths at the rally, however, to take no action at least until after a secheduled meeting of Buddhist leaders Sunday.

Compare To Airplane Spin

Astronauts Tell Of Wild Journey

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Calmly, the two astronauts who rode and tamed wild Gemini 8 in space said Saturday that even at the height of their tumbling and spinning they were a long way from losing consciousness.

To Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott, the fierce ride in orbit compared with a sensation they had felt before — as pilots in a spinning airplane.

The Gemini 8 space twins, their maiden orbital voyage cut short by a short circuit in the spacecraft, told a news conference the story of their historic, but brief mission.

For a time after trouble developed while Gemini 8 and an Agena rocket were still docked, Armstrong said, he felt he was bringing the rigid combination under control.

"The problem again uncovered itself and the rates (of tumble) began to increase to a point where we felt the structural integrity of the combination were in jeopardy," he said.

It was at this point that they realized they were in serious trouble. While not elaborating, Armstrong was referring to the fact the two vehicles were locked nose to nose, and could snap apart or disintegrate.

Up to that time the flight of Gemini 8 had been flawless.

The astronaut team had accomplished man's first linkup in space with another orbiting satellite, after tracking and catching an Agena rocket March 16.

But their trouble-free trip in space didn't last long. The short circuit flashed a signal to a small maneuvering jet on the rear of the spacecraft to fire, and it did, uncontrollably.

While still docked, Gemini 8 and the Agena, a rigid combination, began to roll and spin, until Armstrong, the civilian command pilot, had to unlatch from the Agena and use his vital reentry control rockets to bring the spacecraft under control.

"It was similar in many respects to a spin in an aircraft," Scott, a muscular Air Force career man promoted to lieutenant colonel after the flight, said of the tumbling.

Armstrong said such a spin, about one revolution per second, "was not particularly new to us. I think it's appropriate to say all pilots, particularly test pilots, have been exposed to rates like this in a spinning airplane."

Offices Open For Sign-Up

Deadline For Enrolling For Medicare Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 712 Social Security offices will be open evenings the first three days of next week and until midnight on March 31 to receive applications from people 65 and over for medical care coverage under medicare.

Robert M. Ball, commissioner of Social Security, announced Saturday that all district and branch offices and temporary service centers will be open until 9 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The midnight closing Thursday night will mark the deadline for people who are 65 and older by Jan. 1 to sign up.

Ball said some 2 million of the estimated 19.1 million persons who will be 65 or over by July 1 have not told Social Security of their decision regarding the voluntary doctor bill insurance program, which becomes effective July 1.

He noted that for those who turned 65 before Jan. 1, failure to sign up by midnight Thursday will mean they cannot enroll for another two years and also may mean higher premiums, unless Congress amends the law.

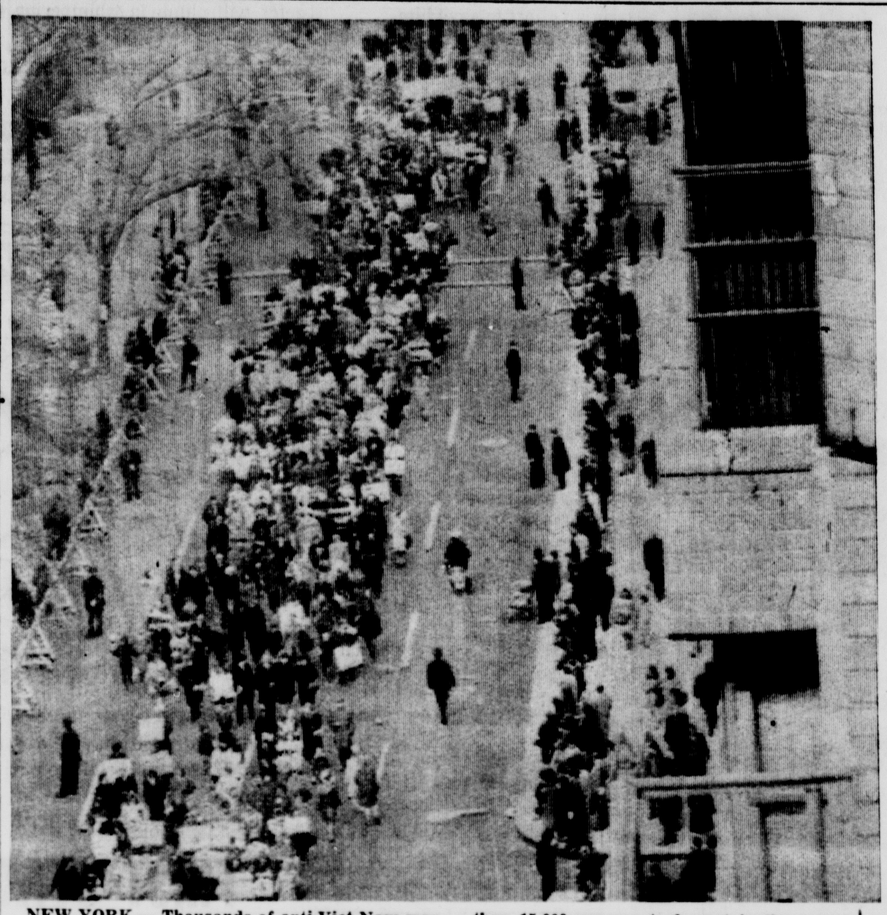
More than 16 million have applied for the medical care coverage. This will provide for payment of a major part of doctor bills for surgery and for home, office, clinic and hospital visits when the cost exceeds $50 a year.

Those signing up will pay a premium of $3 a month. The government will match this amount. The insurance will pay 80 per cent of the cost of doctor bills after they amount to more than $50 a year.

As of this weekend, about a million persons over 65, or five per cent of the estimated total, had told Social Security they do not want the medical care coverage.

Ball said, however, that many who originally turned down the protection later changed their minds and enrolled.

He said the 16 million who have signed up represent about 85 per cent of the estimated eligibles, putting the initial enrollment well over the goal of a minimum 80 per cent sign-up.



NEW YORK — Thousands of anti-Viet Nam war demonstrators parade past 86th Street on Fifth Avenue Saturday in a huge demonstration. More than 15,000 persons took part in the parade as hundreds of objectors were massed at the curbs with derogatory signs. (UPI)

Showpiece Of Weekend

New York City Parade To Protest War In Viet Nam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands of people paraded down Fifth Avenue Saturday to protest the war in Viet Nam. It was the showpiece in a weekend of nationwide anti-war demonstrations.

Hecklers threw insults, and some eggs and tomatoes, at the New York marchers, whose sponsors claimed they were 20,000 strong.

At one point, spectators broke through a shoulder to shoulder line of policemen guarding the parade route and engaged in a brief fist fight with marchers who were carrying Viet Cong flags.

More police moved in and restored order in a few moments. Three men were hustled away in a patrol wagon.

A total of seven persons, all described as counterdemonstrators, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

The marchers included veterans, clergy, students, children and old folks. There were few beatniks.

Two women parade marshals persuaded two youths from the League for Sexual Freedom not to display placards reading "Make love, not war," lest opponents seize the chance to make the marchers seem "a bunch of nuts."

In Washington, several hundred from rival groups demonstrated near the White House. Police arrested two men from the American Nazi party after they burned a Viet Cong flag taken from peace pickets.

At Cape Kennedy, Fla., about a dozen pickets marched at the main entrance to the space base — but it is remote from the populated area and there were few people at work on Saturday.

In Dayton, Ohio, a group of 60 started a five-block march to mail war protest letters to their congressmen, and were joined by 20 or more by the time they reached the post office.

About 100 persons marched in downtown Buffalo without incident.

In San Francisco, 3,000 marched up Market Street to a Civic Center Viet Nam protest rally.

New Billboard Is Up

A new billboard type sign has been erected by the Downtown Merchants Association on top of the building on the southeast corner of Fifth and Ohio giving a bright touch to downtown Sedalia.

The colorful sign reads: "Downtown Merchants Association welcomes you. Quality and convience."

CMSC Coed Drowns In Rock Quarry

A coed of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, was drowned Friday night after slipping from a ledge and falling into an abandoned rock quarry filled with water, two miles north of Warrensburg. She was Judith Kay Coonrod, 21, Portage, Ind.

According to the Johnson County Sheriff Harlan Temple, the young woman was on an outing with friends at the rock quarry and fell from the eight-foot ledge after moving from a campfire near the ledge.

The Pettis County Rescue Squad, under direction of Deputy Sheriff Jack Couts, received a call to aid in the search for the body at 9:30 p. m. Friday and sent seven members to the site. Three divers entered the lake, Ed Brummet, John Cover and Len Eberting. The body was discovered by Brummet about 12:15 a. m. Saturday. The water into which Miss Coonrod fell was from ten to twelve feet deep, according to Sheriff Temple.

Miss Coonrod was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Coonrod, Portage, Ind., who survive. A sister, Pamela Sue, also survives. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church of East Gary, Ind., and a member of the Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority at CMSC.

The body was taken to the Sweeney-Phillips Funeral Home in Warrensburg early Saturday and was sent to Chicago late Saturday morning.

Funeral services will be held at the Olson - Reiser Funeral Home in Portage.

150 Persons In March In Downtown KC Area

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A crowd of about 150 persons, most of them students from area colleges, marched in the downtown area Saturday afternoon in a demonstration for peace in Viet Nam.

They marched around the new Federal Office Building for about an hour and then went to the plaza above the Auditorium Plaza garage.

Here they were addressed by Dr. Ben Fuson, a professor at Kansas Wesleyan University of Salina, Kan. He said the "moral rot" in Saigon is so bad that a prostitute can earn more in one night from American soldiers than a Viet Namese peasant can earn in months.

In the group were students from the University of Kansas and the University of Missouri in Kansas City.

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes

Mrs. Hearnes To Speak At District Meet

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, Missouri's First Lady, will be the principal speaker at the annual spring meeting and luncheon of the Fourth District Missouri Federation of Women's Democratic Clubs, to be held April 2 at the Bothwell Hotel.

Mrs. Hearnes is the former Betty Cooper, daughter of Mrs. A. B. Cooper and the late Rev. Cooper. She was born July 24, 1927. Valedictorian of her Charleston, Mo., high school graduating class, she attended Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, before receiving her B. S. degree in public school music from the University of Missouri in June, 1952—the same day her husband added an A. B. degree to his B. S. degree from West Point and two months before he received an LL.B. degree from the University of Missouri School of Law.

Music has been her principal hobby and she taught music in Charleston and Sikeston schools. She was organist at the Baptist Church in Charleston. At present, she is assistant organist and choir member at the First Baptist Church, Jefferson City, where she and Gov. Hearnes have attended since his election as Secretary of State in 1960 after ten years in Missouri's House of Representatives. She has also appeared in recitals and concerts and has been ac-

Suspension Bridge Opened To Traffic

WARSAW, Mo. (AP) — The suspension bridge over Grand River on Missouri 7 about four miles west of Warsaw was reopened for weekend traffic.

A big tractor-trailer truck hauling 40,000 pounds of potatoes damaged some of the bridge's underpinnings Friday and it was closed.

Gus Kramer, area maintenance supervisor for the Missouri Highway Department at Clinton, announced the re-opening and said the bridge probably will be closed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for repairs.

The bridge carries heavy weekend traffic between the Kansas City and the upper reaches of the Lake of the Ozarks.

Unity Plea By Connally To Democrats

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Gov. John Connally called Saturday for unity behind President Johnson's Vietnamese policy but said this does not require complete subjugation of personal opinion.

In remarks prepared for Springfield's annual Jackson Day Dinner, Connally said:

"Democratic disunity over Viet Nam cannot possibly help the Democratic party.

"Unity in time of war, support for the men we have asked asked to carry guns in our behalf, support for the President who must make those decisions of life and death, this should not be too much to expect of a people committed to freedom."

Connally said Harry S. Truman had been "our courageous shield against Communist tyranny" in the troubled years after World War II.

The governor also played down his nationally reported differences with President Johnson and lauded him as a leader who "has pumped fresh life and meaning into these qualities of greatness inherent in the American people."

"I think I know of his devotion to this nation, of his aspirations for the people he loves, of his relentless and tireless ambition for improving the lot of every man, woman and child it is within his power to touch," Connally said.

"He and I do not always see eye to eye. We have had disagreements and we will have more. But no one should ever be guilty of underestimating the President or his motives as he carries forward the national purpose of the United States."

Connally said Missouri's governor, Warren E. Hearnes, is courageous.

Hearnes recently declined to sign a governors' resolution supporting the administration's Viet Nam policy. He said he didn't feel enough was known to make the endorsement.

About 1,500 party faithful attended the banquet which climaxed the day's festivities.

Few political puzzles were solved, and it appeared the party is still far from unified behind its 42-year-old chief executive.

Though not as marked as last year, the rift between Hearnes and the so-called "establishment," which he dethroned in 1964 continues to color the party's complexion.

John M. Dalton, former governor who is acting very much the candidate for something, drew enthusiastic applause when he was introduced at a Young Democrats breakfast.

He had the opportunity to quash rumors he might run against Hearnes in 1968. He didn't.

Burleigh Arnold, an officer of the Central Missouri Trust Co. in Jefferson City — regarded as the core of the "establishment" — would not deny rumors of his candidacy for state treasurer.

Personal Views On JuCo Proposal

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of personal comments by residents on the Pettis - Benton county Junior College District proposal to be voted on April 5.

George E. Dugan, businessman, 116 East Fifth — "Over 800 Junior Colleges are now serving 1,300,000 students in the United States. Industry and businesses can use Junior College graduates. Vote 'yes' on April 5 for a greater opportunity for our youth!"

Lee Deason, zone manager for investment company, 2525 Wing— "For it? Sure I am! Being in the investment business, I would say one of the best investments we can make in our city and in this area is to establish a Junior College. Who could have said it better than Benjamin Franklin? He was quoted as saying, 'An investment in knowledge always pays the best interest'. We, as adults, should not let our children down, April 5!"

D. I. Sevier, insurance salesman, LaMonte — "Being on the board of education at LaMonte, I can see many of the high school students in this area moving away to the metropolitan areas. They either go away to college or they find jobs elsewhere. I believe a Junior College in our area would give many of these particular young people the privilege to remain here, both while attending college and in job placements!"

Mrs. Opal Williams, field secretary, 1313 South Moniteau — "Although I am a widow and my children grown, I still feel we owe to other families to help provide advanced education for their sons and daughters."

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My husband received a tape recorder from his boss for Christmas. That gift changed my life.

A few weeks ago my husband asked me to listen to a sales speech he had recorded. When I heard my voice in the background I almost died of embarrassment. I was shrieking at one child and then another throughout the entire tape which lasted for 20 minutes. I scolded, screamed and shouted orders, like a fishwife.

This was the first time I had heard a recording of my own voice and it was a horrible experience. But it was probably the best thing that could have happened to me.

I vowed then and there to stop yelling at my children. Ann, in just these few months I have discovered that children respond far better to words spoken in a gentle voice than to orders barked out like a drill sergeant.

I hope other mothers will learn something from my experience.—MODULATED MOLLY.

Dear Molly: The experts tell us that the tone of voice is just as important as what is said.

I share Molly's hope that you screamers will learn something from her letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a secretary to an executive who is well on his way to success. We have worked closely together for five years. It wasn't planned—it just happened. We fell in love. Mr. X is 14 years older than I am and has teen-age children. His wife is a boring, self-centered nit-wit who spends her time in beauty shops, at fashion shows and society benefits. Her husband is her cash register and her social front.

Mr. X and I have dinner together twice a week and we take business trips whenever we can. We cannot consider marriage at this time because his boss would surely ask for his resignation. Mr. X means more to me than anything in the world and I refuse to give him up for a woman who hangs on only for the money and appearances sake.

Is there something I can do to bring about the happy ending I so desperately want?—IN THE SHADOWS.

Dear In: Your story is so routine I'm printing it at the risk of boring my readers.

Get a new job and make a new life or before you know it those little crow's feet around your eye's will look like elephant tracks. Your hair will be gray and you'll be spending more and more time in the beauty shop (like the boss's wife). All chances for marriage will have vanished because during the years when you should have been meeting eligible men you were ducking around corners with a married one.

Confidential to NEED A THIRD PARTY'S OPINION: Sorry but I can't sit down and cry with you. When people take the kind of short cuts YOU took and try to get something for nothing they have no right to complain about quality.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TV Format Is Familiar To Viewers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV—Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim West was dangling by handcuffs over a boiling pit of acid and his pal Artemus Gordon was taking on a veritable army of villians in an effort to save him.

A dinner guest, watching "The Wild, Wild West" while embroidering a needlepoint chairseat, peered over her glasses and inquired calmly, "What time is it?"

"Twenty after eight by my watch," your reporter replied.

"Well," she said, "they'll be working pretty fast now to get him out of this mess before the last commercial."

This was the casual comment of an ordinary, average television viewer — the kind included in all Nielsen rating samples. And her reaction gives a pretty clear indication of the sophistication of viewers who have been exposed, night after night, to entertainment written by formula and the clock.

Just as everybody knows there will be either one big shoot-out or one big fist-fight to climax every Western, everybody — well, almost everybody — can predict the action and even the lines around a dozen or so stock situations which, by some unwritten law of television, crop up in every action series.

"Honey West," on ABC, will be coming up soon with an episode about a suicide-bent man on the ledge of a building. My friend with the needlepoint knows that plot very well. Honey, the fearless lady private eye with the high-style clothes, will ultimately climb out on the ledge. We will be treated to frequent dizzy-making shots of the street and traffic far below. Ultimately the distraught character will climb in whimpering or be hauled to safety.

With this obvious shortage of basic situations that can be built into rigid time periods, television's continuing attraction obviously must come from other quarters — good writing with some novel twists in the plot's path, better than average acting and interesting production.

Device To Prevent Air Collisions

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — An airplane pilot suddenly hears a beeping sound, looks to his dash panel, sees an arrow pointing upward, and swings his craft in that direction.

That, McDonnell Aircraft Corp., said Thursday, is how air collision can be prevented.

McDonnell calls it Eliminate Range Zero System (EROS), a device that first warns the pilot his craft is approaching another airplane dangerously and then shows him what action to take — up, down or level off.

"This could have prevented air collisions that have taken hundreds of lives in the past," said one McDonnell spokesman. "It could have prevented the crash of two airliners over the Grand Canyon in 1956 that killed 128 persons."

EROS gives a 60-second warning at speeds of up to four times the speed of sound and beeps a collision signal at 1½ miles apart for subsonic air speeds.

William Osmun, manager of technical information services for the Air Transport Association, said in Washington that "as far as we know, McDonnell is more advanced than anybody in this field. We don't know of anybody else who has the actual hardware ready."

The Federal Aviation Agency, airlines representatives and military officials have been discussing the collision avoidance device with McDonnell for some time. No specific production plans have yet been made.

McDonnell, builder of U.S. spacecraft, did not say what the system would cost "because there are too many variables."

Wide area in foreground is the site of locks at St. Johns. When finished, the canal will run from Yankeetown on the Gulf Coast to Palatka on the St. Johns River, thence down the river to the Atlantic for a total length of 185 miles, three times longer than the Panama Canal. Termed a "pass-key to economic growth" by President Johnson at ground-breaking ceremonies two years ago, the Canal will cut 610 miles off the old Atlantic-Gulf open-water route around Key West and will link 29 states in a unified inland waterways system.

In Accord On Church And State

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Some of the world's leading Roman Catholic, Jewish and Protestant scholars, sizing up what they consider the right relationships between church and state, today found themselves in hearty accord.

Their harmony on the issue was in contrast to some of the sharp conflict of old, and reflected the impact of new approaches set forth by Vatican Council II.

After the Rev. Roberto Tucci, an Italian Jesuit and editor of Rome's La Civilita Cattolica, delivered an analysis Thursday of the church's proper role in civil life, several theologians of other faiths registered strong approval.

"An exciting and sound charter for Christian political involvement," commented the Rev. Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, a Presbyterian scholar of Stanford University.

The Rev. Dr. Elwyn Smith, of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, said the Catholic interpretation "cut POAU down with one stroke."

The reference was to a Washington, D.C., organization, Protestants and Other Americans United, which has been sharply critical of Roman Catholic policy in regard to public affairs.

The international conference at the University of Notre Dame, bringing together outstanding scholars from Europe and the Americas, also heard the Rev. John Courtney Murray, of Woodstock College, Md., detail the newly affirmed Catholic principles on religious liberty.

They affirmed, he said, "that every man has a right to religious freedom — a right based on the dignity of the human person and that is therefore to be formally recognized as a civil right, protected by arms of constitutional law."

Father Murray, the chief architect of the church's new affirmation of religious liberty, noted it stresses religion should be free of "coercive intrusions from without, but that it should not enter" the outer government sphere.

Asked about the traditionally Roman Catholic practice of establishing special concordats with various governments, he commented: "I don't think concordats have much of a future."

Father Tucci, in outlining Roman Catholic position regarding relation to government, said it must shun governmentally established religion or church.

"The act of faith is in fact free," he said and it is impossible to impose it.

However, he said Christians should assume political responsibilities and in doing so accept "the rules of the democratic method," even when that puts his cause at a disadvantage.

NEW YORK — Documentary film producer David Wolper holds up a letter, written by Abraham Lincoln in 1860, which he purchased at an auction here for the record sum of $20,000. Lincoln wrote the note in reply to a letter from an 11-year-old girl who suggested that Lincoln grow whiskers so "all the ladies . . . would tease their husbands to vote for you . . ." The $20,000 price tag on the letter is the highest ever paid for a letter signed by one person, according to New York autograph dealer Charles Hamilton. (UPI)

Reapportionment To Give Democrats Upper Hand Now

By GEORGE SITTERLEY
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—It looks from here now as if the tentative reappportionment of Missouri's House districts will give the Democratic party complete control for the present.

The minority Republicans will have to whip up a near miracle to take control They've controlled the House only six years out of the last 22.

Ironically, the three House members who fought most bitterly against the federal courts' one man-one vote opinions came out in perhaps the best shape of all.

Speaker Thomas D. Graham, D-Cole County, leader of the opposition, wound up with a district consisting solely of this Democratic controlled capitol city. It is so strongly Democratic that frequently the Republican party doesn't even offer a slate in municipal elections.

Majority floor leader Mel Carnahan, D-Phelps County, is back in business with a single county district. He is running for the Senate this time.

Minority leader Ronald M. Belt, R-Macon County, got Shelby County added but in 1964 Shelby had about 4,000 votes while Macon County had over 8,000 in the election of state representatives. Belt's majority in Macon County was about five to three.

Under the tentative plan there will be five single county districts—Audrain, Callaway, Lafayette, Saline and Phelps. Only Lafayette County now is represented by a Republican House member, Rep. George Duensing of Concordia.

It would be a surprise if a Republican got elected representative from any of the other four.

At least four cities are split under the redistricting plan.

St. Joseph is split three ways to produce districts in Buchanan County that are heavily Democratic.

Sedalia is split right down Broadway (U. S. 50) with a couple of precincts flopping over from north to south and from south to north.

Columbia is split down Providence Rd., the wide avenue that folks use to get to the University stadium on football Saturdays.

Nevada is split along Atlantic St., the east-west street that once was the northern city limits before the area around the Nevada state hospital was annexed.

The two districts wholly within Boone County are sure to be Democratically controlled, as is the one that includes Randolph County and Boone County's Perche and Bourbon townships.

The three districts in Jasper County indicate two sure Republican representatives and one marginal with the edge toward the Republicans.

The three districts in Clay County are certain to be Democratic.

In Greene County, five new districts probably will be split between the two parties with the edge to the Republicans.

Taking the vote for state representative in the 1964 general election—and it is not too dependable because of the Democratic presidential landslide—it appears the Democrats have about 29 districts sewed up in outstate Missouri, while the Republicans have a pretty solid grip on 10.

The rest appear to be marginal with about an even split in the edges either party could claim.

Generally, the Republican fortresss is in south central Missouri, while the Democrats can loook for their strongest areas in southeast Missouri, Little Dixie of north central Missouri and in most of northeastern and northwestern Missouri.

The Democrats will have heavy control of the metropolitan areas.

Observers looked over the new district maps and suggested the Republicans could get about three of the 28 St. Louis seats, seven or eight of the 26 in St. Louis County and about six of gjackson County's 23 districts.

Silver Voice Of An Exile Invades Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The silver voice of a comely exile invades Cuba five nights weekly seeking to unmask Fidel Castro's vast internal spy network. She feels certain she plays a vital role in what she described as mushrooming discontent within Castro's armed forces.

The broadcasts by brown-haired Pepita Riera, purport to tell people inside Cuba who is spying on them.

"I am on Fidel's most wanted and most hated list," said Miss Riera, secure in her secret den in this exile haven. "I don't like him either."

In her hideaway, Miss Riera tapes broadcasts such as:

"Attention Cuba, attention Cuba, beware of Juan Doe, he is a chivato (informer)." She then identifies the neighborhood where he operates.

In her 15-minute broadcasts, which refugees arriving by airlift say have become one of the most popular radio programs in Cuba, Miss Riera also warns members of the armed forces of informers in their ranks. She urges soldiers to rebel.

"There is very much anti-Communist infiltration within Fidel's armed forces," the exile said, citing recent arrests of officers. "But they are afraid because they don't know whether the person next to them is an informer. I try to make things easier for them."

She says she gets her information from counterspies who make secret trips to Cuba.

Currently, Miss Riera said, she is concentrating on unmasking informers within the interior ministry. Castro's G2 (secret police) operates from that department.

"They taught me to use a gun, but I never did," she said. "I did radio broadcasting and was a teacher for soldiers."

Four months after the revolution was won, Miss Riera began plotting against Castro.

"He didn't do anything he promised to do, and I didn't trust him," she said. "He did nothing much but execute people."

To escape arrest, Miss Riera took refuge in the Brazilian Embassy in Havana. She came to the United States in 1960.

Wary Eyes On Meeting In Moscow

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The world will watch with a mixture of hope and misgiving when Communists from all corners of the U.S.S.R. asssemble in Moscow Tuesday for the Soviet party's 23rd congress.

There seems a good chance the congress will drive deeper the wedge between the Kremlin and Red China, even though the Russians likely will try to keep the quarrel from exploding into publicized debate. The congress provides an opportunity for summoning the leaders of the world's 111 Communist parties to Moscow for exchanges of viewpoints.

Decisions to be approved probably will have been made long before the 5,000 party members meet. Nevertheless, the congress is an important Soviet milestone.

By statute a congress is supposed to meet every four years. It is supposed to re-elect members to all high party organs: the ruling Party Presidium, the Secretariat, the Central Committee and others. Any changes will be carefully weighed by the outside world.

There is detectable now in the U.S.S.R. a clash between economic managers, anxious to get reforms rolling, and party functionaries interested in protecting their privileges within the bureaucracy. Pressure from below for reforms reflects the rising influence of the economic leaders.

This pressure has been pushing the Soviet leaders into domestic policies that invited the withering scorn of Peking, which views the Russians as headed pell mell toward capitalism. Some influential elements in Moscow may believe the Chinese are not entirely wrong.

For all that, the party is expected to approve programs which generally will reaffirm lines laid down at the 20th congress in 1956 at which Nikita Khrushchev blasted the Stalin legend, and the 22nd in 1961 which charted the present economic course. Such reaffirmation would be another step in the isolation of Red China in the communist world.

There are signs that top leaders are worried by the pressure for swift liberalization of the political and economic systems, however. The signs pop up in newspaper articles hinting that there should be a more realistic appraisal of Stalin and his "positive" achievements in the fields, for example, of industrialization, collectivization and World War II leadership.

Pill-Taking Celebrities Under Fire

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of her friends laughed when actress Jacqueline Susann sat down at a typewriter three years ago and began to peck at it with one finger from each hand.

"Jackie" and the income tax collector are doing the smiling now. She came up with a million-dollar first novel.

Her novel, "Valley of the Dolls," has been assailed as "shocking" by some critics both because of its subject matter and the gamey quality of its prose.

It deals with entertainment celebrities who daily take up to 35 or more "dolls" — slang term for sleeping or pep pills — to stay atop the ladder of success.

"I don't hate show business," said Miss Susann, who is married to television producer Irving Mansfield, "but I hate the system — the frantic part of it.

"Some people actually take up to 150 pills a day just to keep going. They develop an unbelievable tolerance.

"Sleeping pills, and wake-up pills, are the addiction of the overprivileged — the people who are trying to meet the pressures of success."

Jackie has been on a doll-a-day routine herself recently during a whirlwind coast to coast promotion tour.

"The only other time I usually take a sleeping pill is when I visit my dentist," she said.

In her opinion, achievement in life is to most people a hollow victory.

"I don't think anyone — whether he is an actor or a president or a business executive — really enjoys his shining hour of success. It brings too many problems, and it is lonely.

"What most people enjoy more is their dreams of success."

The question naturally arises as to why Miss Susann herself spent three determined years at the typewriter in her successful quest of a literary jackpot.

"Well," she answered thoughtfully, "there's the torture of success and the torture of unsuccess. It's pretty much a matter of picking your poison."

Her formula for writing a best seller is quite simple. She put her typewriter in front of a blank wall and stayed there seven hours a day.

GIVING UP—Social disapproval and harassment proved too much for the Rev. Albert Cohen of Fullerton, Calif. The minister, an Annapolis graduate, said he and his wife are returning two-year-old David to an adoption agency after a year's attempt to raise the Negro child in their white family.
(NEA Telephoto)

Minister Gives Up Negro Boy

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — "When David first came into our family, the other children greeted him like a brother. They loved him, and at the party last night, while brave, they all fought back tears.

"Today they lost him as a brother," said the Rev. Albert Cohen Thursday after giving up the little Negro boy he and his wife, Ann, adopted a year ago. They blamed harassment for the decision.

"I think we made the only decision possible," Cohen, a State College chaplain, said after David, 2, was returned to the Los Angeles County Bureau of Adoptions.

"We couldn't cope with him psychologically at two — what would we have done when he reached high school?" Cohen asked.

The family, which is Caucasian, has four other children. Cohen said they made the decision last month to return David.

"It would have been done quietly," he explained, "but then we got those threatening phone calls."

Explaining their adoption of the Negro infant, Cohen said: "We didn't launch this as a crusade. It all started 12 years ago when Ann and I were first married. We saw many of the war orphans and decided then and there that we would have a family of our own and then adopt a little orphan who was unwanted."

Explaining the harassment, Cohen said: "I had been called 'nigger-lover' before when I marched at Selma (Ala.). I was used to that part of it.

"But it wasn't long until we felt the resentment and sometimes outright harassment, when we went to the beach, or the store or even walked down the street.

"You could feel it. There weren't that many overt acts. But we soon began to feel what it was like to be a Negro."

Foot Blister Gained In Chase For Robber

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—"Buddy, give me my money back," Kathy Hartupee, 20, told the man she saw taking a portable radio from her car in the Atlanta area.

Mrs. Hartupee yelled at the thief when she first spotted him, and he placed the radio on top of the car and walked away.

Quickly checking the car, she found $5 missing from her purse. She grabbed a pistol from a suitcase and overtook the man. Displaying the pistol, she demanded her money. "He gave a five-dollar bill and walked away," she said Thursday, "but I kept following him."

She trailed him Wednesday for two miles in high-heel shoes, keeping 20 to 30 feet behind him, until she spotted policemen who arrested the man and charged him with larceny. Mrs. Hartupee, a secretary from Forest Park, Ga., got a foot blister for her determined effort.

Over Cyprus

Orthodox Church Caught In Backlash of Bitterness

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The Orthodox Church has been caught in a backlash of Greek-Turkish bitterness over Cyprus. Some Turks would like to see its leaders depart, but there is every sign that the Mother Church of world Orthodoxy is determined to remain in Istanbul, its home for 16 centuries.

The old church and its ecumenical patriarch, Athenagoras I, spiritual leader of the world's 200 million Orthodox, have been under sporadic political fire from Moslem Turks since the Cyprus issue exploded in violence at Christmastime 1963.

"The church and the patriarch are pro-Greek," goes one Turkish criticism. "Why don't they get out?"

"But why should we leave?" answers one high Orthodox clergyman. "We love this beautiful country. It is our home. We are Turks."

Turkish citizens, yes. But the church's roots are firmly anchored in its Byzantine past, when Constantinople — now Istanbul — ruled much of the known world. Church liturgy is in Greek, its hierarchy of Greek ancestry.

The attacks on the church and Turkey's once prosperous Greek community have fluctuated with the way the Turkish minority has made out at the hands of the Greek majority on Cyprus.

A sampling over the past two years:

— Orthodox schools in Imbros and Tenedos islands were taken over by the Turks, the teaching of Greek suspended.

—Two Orthodox bishops were stripped of their Turkish citizenship and deported on the grounds they were involved in activities harmful to Turkey.

—Movies showing the January 1964 meeting of Athenagoras and Pope Paul VI in the Holy Land were seized.

—Anti-Greek "Turkish Orthodox" dissidents occupied two regular Orthodox churches here and were upheld in Turkish courts.

—In February the Turks refused permission for Archbishop Iakoves, head of the Greek Church in North and South America, to celebrate Mass at the Patriarchate Cathedral here.

The once powerful Greek community in Turkey has been reduced by deportations and voluntary departures — mainly to Greece.

Before the most recent Cyprus troubles, there were about 12,500 Greek nationals and approximately 45,000 Turks of Greek ancestry residing here.

Then Turkey abrogated the 1930 Turko-Greek establishment treaty granting special trade, shipping and residence privileges to Greek nationals. It also suspended the 1955 visa agreement permitting unrestricted travel for nationals of both countries.

Hundreds of Greek citizens were deported on the grounds they were engaged in activities harmful to Turkey, including illegal currency operations. Turks of Greek descent also fled, fearful of reprisal and tired of anti-Greek surroundings, although they were promised protection under the Turkish constitution.

Turkey later explained that the large Greek community in Istanbul posed a security problem.

Expected Death

Tear Gas Ends Terrifying Ordeal For Oregon Couple

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — A Springfield man said he was beginning to expect that he and his wife would be shot to death until police fired tear gas into their house, allowing their escape from an ex-convict who held them prisoner for nine terrifying hours.

A few moments after the tear gas exploded Thursday afternoon, the ex-convict, Harry Acree, 33, shot himself to death with a pistol.

"If they would have waited another hour to fire that tear gas, I think we would have all been dead," said Charles Fawbush, 46, the hostage.

Fawbush, still nervous from the day's ordeal, spoke from a room next to his wife's hospital room. "My wife had a heart operation a few years ago and she's not supposed to get excited," said Fawbush.

"There were a few times when I didn't think she was going to make it."

Mrs. Fawbush was under treatment for shock.

Fawbush said that just before the end Acree "began to get meaner and meaner. At the last he said these words: 'I shot that dumb cop and I haven't got a thing to lose. I've got two bullets in this gun and I can make both of them count'."

Fawbush said that after a policeman yelled that they were going to fire tear gas, Acree sat in the chair with a gun pointed at Fawbush and his wife.

"I guess I just acted by reflex when the tear gas came through the window, I grabbed my wife's arm with one hand and the door with the other and pushed her out the door. Then I went out."

The Springfield drama began when Acree fled to the Fawbush house after Patrolman Terrence Wilson, 24, was shot in the stomach Thursday morning when he and other officers searched an auto with expired license plates. Acree and two companions were in the car. Acree shot Wilson after the officer found a shotgun in the car. A fellow officer arrested the two companions.

Fawbush said that Acree pounded on his door about 5:30 a.m., as he was getting ready to go to work. "I thought it was a neighbor in trouble or someone in our family trying to get hold of us," Fawbush said.

"I opened the door a crack and then the door flew open and there was this gun a few inches away from my face.

"He pushed me back into the bedroom and he said, 'I've just shot a dumb cop. I want some clothes.' He was barefoot. He kept pointing the gun at me and his hand was shaking.

"After a while he calmed down and after he found out the officer wasn't dead, he said he was going to give himself up if 'that cop don't die.'"

Meanwhile more than 50 police circled the area in this Oregon community of 22,000. Police and others telephoned the house and talked with Acree and the hostages.

When Acree asked for his sister, police got her. She walked into the house and tried to talk her brother into surrendering.

Springfield Police Chief William Trout said Acree's sister, Fay McCutcheon of Eugene, was in and out of the house several times.

State Police Capt. R. G. Howard walked in the house unarmed in an effort to get Acree to surrender. Fawbush said Howard offered himself as hostage if Acree would let the Fawbushes go.

Acree consumed a bottle of cooking sherry, Fawbush said, the only alcohol in the house.

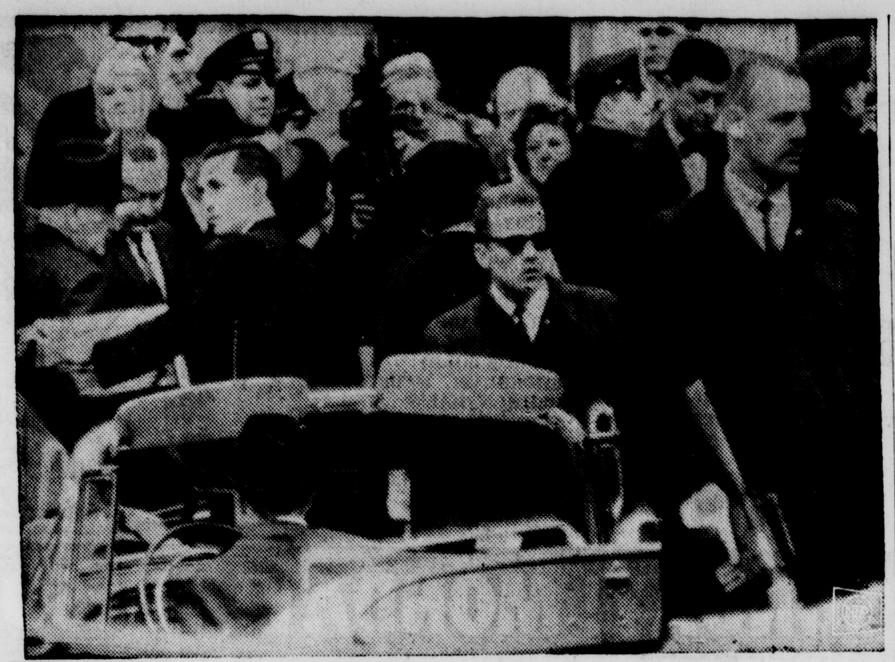
About one hour before police decided to lob in tear gas, Acree came to the door with Mrs. Fawbush. He put the gun in his mouth and said he was going to commit suicide.

Acree went back in the house, saying he would come back out shooting. Not long after that, Trout said, "we decided to fire the gas."

It was 2:15 p.m. when the tear gas was lobbed into the house — about nine hours after the start of the long ordeal. A sharp pistol crack was heard moments later. Acree was rushed to a hospital where he died.

Acree had been released from the Oregon State Penitentiary in December after serving a five-year term for grand larceny. Before shooting himself, Acree dictated a combined will and confession to his sister.

Patrolman Wilson was reported in fairly good condition today.



SUPER SECURITY—Suddenly tightened security precautions for President Johnson's journeys were evident in the cluster of heavily armed Secret Service men standing guard on his surprise flight to New York for a funeral. (NEA Telephoto)

ROME—With a statue of St. Peter dominating the foreground, Pope Paul VI (C) and the Archbishop of Canterbury (R) participate in unprecedented common worship service at the Basilica of St. Paul's Outside the Walls here. They ended the service with a joint declaration pledging their churches to begin a "serious dialogue" in the cause of Christian unity. (UPI)

Horse Makes Last Stand With Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The horse is making a last, largely ceremonial stand in the Army. Once numbered in the many thousands, the horses that serve the military have dwindled to 40.

Only one government-owned cavalry horse survives. He is Chief, a 34-year-old bay gelding who passes his time in retirement at Ft. Riley, Kan., while his successors — the truck, tank, plane and helicopter — fight a war in Viet Nam.

The coffins of some victims of that conflict return here for burial in Arlington National Cemetery. Teams of blacks and grays from a stable of 27 are used on an average of twice daily each weekday to pull the solemn black caisson with its casket to the gravesite during military funerals.

The caisson section horses are trained, fed, exercised, and groomed by soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 3rd Infantry at Ft. Myer, which adjoins the cemetery.

A few miles north, near Olney, Md., 12 other Army horses are used to provide serum for vaccines and studies by the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research.

And two mules are kept for "school spirit," as the Army puts it, at the military academy at West Point, N.Y.

Caisson horses have been part of the Army establishment in Washington for years. They are used in services for generals, admirals and other officers of at least the rank of warrant officer, although they can be replaced by motor hearses at family request. They are trained to ignore distractions such as band music or the firing of gun salutes.

Last year caisson horses played a role in the 531 military funerals at Arlington — usually 2 and as many as 6 timesa day.

The caisson is pulled by six horses with three riders mounted on the left. A fourth rider, the section sergeant, leads the way on an unhitched horse.

If the dead soldier was a general officer or ever served as an officer in a cavalry or mounted unit, a black riderless horse is led behind the caisson.

The days of the horse cavalry are long past, and only Chief remains of the thousands once listed on Army rolls. Time was wen he had lots of companions. When the 2nd Cavalry Division was activated at Ft. Riley for World War II, as many as 6,000 horses were kept at the post.

But World War II brought a sad end to the horse soldier era. Mounted horse cavalry was used in combat for the last time by the United States early in the war when the 26th Cavalry Regiment was annihilated by the Japanese on Luzon, at Bataan.

Vacationers View Movie Capitol

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a fee a historic studio takes you on a tram tour of its 410 acres of movie-making marvels. One of the most interesting attractions is a 21-year-old named Suzanne Bragg.

Universal inaugurated its sideline in mid-1964, transported 530,000 camera-clicking fans in 1965 and is heading toward 650,000 this year. With vacation-planning time here, a look at current offerings seemed due. They include:

— Stunt men leaping off two-story buildings and showing how they slug one another without getting hurt. A brick hurled into the startled crowd is made of rubber.

— Rubber boulders as big as yourself but so light you toss them like footballs.

Miss Bragg is one of 15 guides for the year-round tours. An oil executive's daughter from nearby San Marino, she is 5 feet-6½, pert and pretty, with creamy skin and sparkling, dark-chocolate eyes. She has ridden in the Tournament of Roses parade and hopes to do television commercials.

Her flaming orange coat and white boots match the trams' colors. She sat up front, facing backward, holding a microphone, and pointed out where.

— "Uncle Carl" Laemmle — Bavarian-born ex-clothier from Oshkosh, Wis., who opened the studio in 1915 — raised white Leghorn chickens and sold eggs to his cowboy and Indian actors.

— "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Phantom of the Opera," "All Quiet on the Western Front" and, especially, current films were made.

We passed acres of oil paintings, statuary, armor and other old props —"More than five million," said Suzanne. Acres of old scenery — "everything is catalogued and numbered". Streets and towns — Western, Eastern, European, Mexican, volonial, South Seas — many with no interiors.

Opportunity Symbol

Modern Day Moses Leads People To a Better Life

NEW YORK (AP) — To hear his supporters tell it, there is nothing Herman Rivera Badillo cannot do.

He can be mayor of New York City, governor of New York State or president; he is a modern-day Moses who can part the waves of ignorance and injustice and lead his people to a better life.

For, at 36, Badillo has become a symbol of opportunity to this city's 730,000 Puerto Ricans, the newest, and currently the poorest, of the immigrant groups in the United States.

When the darkly handsome, six-foot attorney took over Jan. 1 as president of the Bronx, one of New York's five boroughs, he assumed the highest elective office ever won in the United States by a native-born Puerto Rican.

Badillo is personally convinced that Puerto Ricans "are moving ahead faster" than any other immigrant group to the United States, past or present.

In his new $35,000-a-year job, Badillo supervises and helps plan municipal functions for the 1,424,000 people in the Bronx, including nearly 200,000 Puerto Ricans.

Badillo works hard for job opportunities for Puerto Ricans, but steadfastly resists pressure to appoint more than their "fair share" to his own staff.

A conservative dresser, who speaks quietly, but firmly in excellent English and with only a trace of his native Spanish, Badillo is extremely popular with his own people.

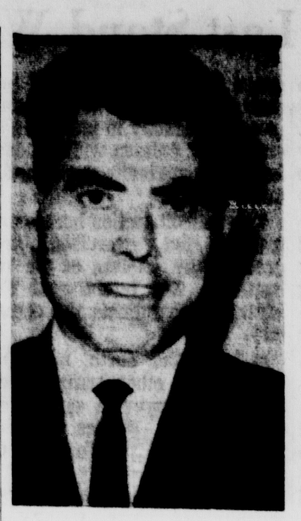
"He is one of them," explains a leading New York Puerto Rican. "He is actuely aware of the problems of our people because he has experienced them all. He had no money and no education when he came here and has worked hard for everything he has."

Badillo was born in 1929 at Caguas, Puerto Rico, and was an orphan at 5. He was 11 when a poor aunt brought him and a cousin to the United States. It was the beginning of a great influx of Puerto Ricans, as many as 70,000 a year, and jobs were scarce.

"We went from New York, to Chicago, to Burbank, Calif. and finally New York again before we settled down," he recalls.

The young Badillo worked as a pin-boy in a bowling alley while attending high school and city college of New York. He later worked as an accountant while going to Brooklyn Law School, where he was graduated cum laude and as class valedictorian in 1954.

He became a member of the "reform" wing of the Democratic party, dedicated to driving out the established party organization.



After Mayor Robert F. Wagner appointed him as a deputy real estate commissioner in 1962, Badillo's rise in city government was swift.

It was capped by his election last fall in the Bronx where he beat the Republican-Liberal incumbent by a scant 2,000 votes out of 400,000 cast. He carried 90 per cent of he Puerto Rican vote, which was about 10 per cent of the total cast.

Cub Pack 61 Holds March Round Table

Knights of various sizes and in bright array were in evidence at the March 15 Pack meeting of Cub Scout Pack 61, Trinity Lutheran Church. Wearing shields, armor, and helmets and carrying lances which they had made in their den meetings, the Cub Scouts marched in to take their places at the "Round Table."

Den 3 conducted flag ceremony, directed by Den Chief Ronnie Wells. Flag bearers were Mark Mosier and Bobby Bruns and color guards were Tommy Knight and Bobby Hartley.

Jeff Barnes, Mark Dollard, Mark Mosier, and Bobby Hartley of Webelos Den told what colors of the flag signify and Webelos Eric Doering read the "Knight's Code." Webelos Keele lighted the spirit of Cub Scouting candle.

Den 2 presented the skit, "How Arthur was Chosen King." Participating were Steve Dollard, David Wells, Steve Wells, and Warren Pahlow. Den Chief Tommy Brown was narrator.

Cubmaster Fingland presented feathers to all four dens to tie on den flags for parent attendance at the Pack meeting. He also talked briefly about knights and the designs on several of the shields were explained. In giving awards for the month, he welcomed awardees to the Round Table for recognition of various deeds. Mark Benitz was welcomed as a new Bobcat. Mark Mosier received his Lion Badge and mother's pin. Tommy Knight received a silver arrow for his Bear badge. Tommy Estes and David Wells were presented Lion Books. Denner stripes went to Joey Watson and Tommy Knight. Cubmaster Fingland conducted with the Cubmaster's minute, stressing religious aspect of the lives of knights of old.

After the meeting, the Cubs jousted with brooms on jousting boards especially made for the event.

During the business meeting preceding the Pack meeting, parents voted to donate funds to Pack treasury instead of having a fund raising, to eliminate a slight deficit. Parents will fill out a parent information sheet to be returned to dens so their talents and skills may be used by the ideas committee in planning themes and programs for the coming months.

April theme will be "Mother Nature's Backyard." Cubmaster Fingland asked parents' cooperation in helping boys find and bring to the April Pack meeting for display, nature items. A turtle race is anticipated as part of the April Pack meeting.

Only a handful of states, nine at present, still holds out against the apparently irresistible trend toward the sales tax to meet skyrocketing government expenditures. Latest to adopt levies were Massachusetts, effective April 1, and Virginia, effective Sept. 1. New Jersey, still among the holdouts, has a tax under serious consideration. Last year, sales taxes brought in an estimated $7 billion, approximately 25 per cent of all state revenues. Figure gives percentage of tax for each state.

Indonesia's New Rulers Inherit a Financial Mess

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's new rulers have inherited a financial mess which even optimists concede will require years to clean up. The reform regime's popularity and survival are likely to depend on the outcome.

For Indonesia to meet her 1966 foreign debt obligations would require $450 million.

Indonesia has not a hope of paying.

Foreign exchange reserves are exhausted. The nation lives on current earnings, derived almost entirely from rubber, oil, tin and copra.

Oil revenues are not revealed officially, but an industry source estimates they were $75 million in 1965.

Rubber, tin, copra and other exports earned an estimated $450 million. That adds up to foreign exchange earnings of $525 million last year.

But this is a nation of 105 million people. Enough imports to keep the Indonesian economy sputtering along even at quarter speed cost $350 million last year.

While President Sukarno's regime squandered millions of dollars on official and private trips abroad, only partial payments were made on foreign obligations. Not only did these partial payments exhaust the remaining $175 million but a great deficit yawned.

How about 1966?

It is likely to be worse than 1965.

The Ministry of Trade this month announced a $400-million target for non-oil earnings. If the oil revenue remains at last year's estimate of $75 million, and the remainder of Indonesia's economy meets the ministry's target, Indonesia will earn $475 million this year abroad.

That is $325 million less than the sum needed to meet due or overdue foreign debts and to maintain essential imports even at last year's precarious levels.

Foreign economists believe a moratorium is inevitable on payment of all or part of the $450 million due on foreign debts this year.

So far Lt. Gen. Suharto's new regime has been too preoccupied with consolidating its power to take action on this or the basic economic reforms for which inflation-tormented Indonesians are pleading.

In terms of total debt the Soviet Union is Indonesia's biggest creditor. Obligations to the Soviets total $1 billion.

Japan is the most important non-Communist creditor, although no figure is available here for the combined public and private debt owed her.

Some $200 million is due the United States. West Germany and the Netherlands rank next. Britain and France are owed more modest sums.

Foreign economic circles expect that once the reform regime is well established, creditor nations will form a consortium and stretch out Indonesia's foreign debt payments over a longer perlod.

This would give Suharto's government a chance to get the economy running again, to fight inflation with lower priced imports and perhaps to put aside funds for capital investment.

Fresh capital investment, whether from the government or private sectors, is essential.

Indonesia has the curious distinction during 10 years of prosperity over much of the globe of having had her gross national product decline from one to two per cent annually while her population rose 2.5 per cent a year.

An estimated $175 million goes into smuggling and black market currency transactions. Unrealistic valuation ofthe rupiah is the reason. The rupiah has risen to 50 to the dollar in the free market, confidence in the Suharto regime having firmed it from the March 11 low of 61 to the dolllar. However, th government gives exporters only 10 rupiahs for each dollar. Tourists receive 20, only 40 per cent of the rate they can get on any street corner in Jakarta.

One expert estimates 10 per cent of Indonesian exports are smuggled out of the country to neighboring countries where payment is made in hard currency.

Informed economists here say these steps are essential to check the spread of economic decay:

1. Refunding of foreign debts through an international consortium of creditors.
2. A crackdown on smuggling and the currency black market.
3. Integration into the international financial community. President Sukarno pulled Indonesia out of the International Monetary Fund. Indonesia is not participating in the new Asia Development Bank. This has made the island republic an economic outcast.
4. End deficit financing of the internal budget, which has been wildly out of balance for years.
5. Reintroduce long-range economic planning. There has been none of significance since the 1963 stabilization program was abandoned when the undeclared war on Malaysia began.
6. Establish at least a fundamental industrial base for the raw-material economy which cannot provide jobs for the swelling population.
7. Revive and expand the tourist industry.

Experts believe tourism could bring in millions of dollars a year.

I Would Like to Attend College in my Home-town

What Is the Proposition?

On April 5, 1966, the citizens of all the school districts of Pettis County and the majority of school districts in Benton County will vote on the question of establishing an area junior college—THE JUNIOR COLLEGE DISTRICT OF SEDALIA, MISSOURI. The creation of the Junior College District will insure that the young people of our area have the opportunity to attend college at a cost they can afford.

What Is a Junior College?

It is a two year college serving the needs of the local community by providing academic programs, vocational and technical training, and adult education.
Its unique nature permits the JUNIOR COLLEGE to:

- Expand oportunities for those who wish to continue their education beyond high school.
- Serve a greater variety of students than any other type of higher educational institution.
- Provide higher education within geographic and financial reach of students living at home.
- Meet local needs for more skilled manpower in business, government and professions, and retrain people in skills for which there is a current market.
- Provide a technical training ground for existing and new industry.
- Meet the particular needs of our geographical area as they arise.
- Reduces the cost of the first and second years of education by allowing the student to live at home and avoid the cost of room and board away from home.
- Provides the lowest cost possible for higher education.

What Effect on Other Area Colleges?

Because of the great number of students who will be attending college from the area, THE JUNIOR COLLEGE DISTRICT will become an aid, rather than a competition to the universities and the private colleges. The JUNIOR COLLEGE DISTRICT, for example, will enable the University of Missouri and Central Missouri State to concentrate their resources on upperclassmen and on graduate programs.

What Is the District?

THE JUNIOR COLLEGE DISTRICT will include all the public school districts of Pettis County, and the districts of Lincoln, Cole Camp, and Warsaw in Benton County. A Distrct of this size will be able to support a wide variety of programs in an efficient and an economical manner.

What Is the Program?

Because they fulfill vital needs close to home, junior colleges in the United States have been growing very rapidly. THE JUNIOR COLLEGE DISTRICT will offfer a three-fold program:

(1) A regular or traditional college program—which will enable young people to complete two years of college work and then transfer to another college or university.
(2) Vocational, technical, semi-professional, and other occupationally-related programs. These are programs which will prepare young people for specific jobs—such as nursing, medical technology, mechanical technology, computer programming, accounting, and so on.
(3) Evening programs for adults who are interested in continuing their education for a college degree or for specific technical skills.

What Is the Cost?

There will be several sources of income for the proposed DISTRICT, as follows:

1. STATE AID, in the amount of $240 for each student enrolled full time will be provided. These funds, available from the State, will provide more than one-third of the operating cost of the college.
2. FEDERAL FUNDS, through recent legislation passed by Congress, will be available to assist the Junior College in a variety of ways, including:
   - Matching funds to assist in the construction of junior college buildings.
   - Funds to assist in buying equipment for occupationally related technical programs.
   - Funds to assist students with the cost of tuition and with living costs while securing a technical education.
3. LOCAL FUNDS will be provided by tax based on the total assessed valuation in the total area. It has been estimated that a tax assessment of 20c per $100 assessed valuation would be needed for operating expenses. For a family with a home with an assessed valuation of $3500 this means a tax of $7.00 per year. According to state law, the newly elected board may assess up to 40c per $100 assessed valuation. For a family with a houes with an assessed valuation of $3500, this could mean a tax of $14.00 per year. Should the board need to assess more than 40c, approval of the voters in the district is required.

Area Life Underwriters Endorse JuCo

The Central Missouri Association of Life Underwriters officially endorsed the proposed Junior College at its monthly meeting held at the Gold Cafeteria Friday noon. In view of the organization's interest in academic, vocational, technical, and adult education as it relates to community improvement, the underwriters voted unanimously to endorse the proposal.

Principal speaker at the meeting was James H. Metzger, director of public relations for the Security Benefit Life Insurance Company, Topeka, Kan. Metzger, who has spoken before over 200 life insurance sales organizations the past year, made an unusual presentation concerning the human values of life insurance by using various props. He employed a battered watch left to him by his deceased father and showed as the seconds and minutes tick away events are occuring which reflect the need of life insurance as a protection and as an investment.

A vivid illustration was used by Metzger in comparing a puppet he carried in his speech portfolio with a life insurance policy. He utilized a dialogue between himself and the puppet to reflect real illustrations where families had been left destitute because of the lack of farsightedness on the part of the breadwinners in the family.

Metzger challenged the life underwriters to consider their work as dedication personal service to the welfare of the nation and not from the income they derive.

Program chairman of the meeting was James N. Harms. James T. Denny, president, had charge of the meeting. An announcement was made by Bill Hopkins, past state president, that the Missouri Sales Congress would be held at Columbia, May 6-7.

Open House Planned

Plans for open house on April 24 by the Pettis County Historical Society that the public may see the museum cases in the Pettis County Court House were made Friday at a meeting held in the office of Dr. C. F. Scotten. Present at the meeting were: James T. Denny, president of the Pettis County Historical Society, Dr. Scotten, Mrs. T. H. Yount, and Luther Luckett.

Absentee Questions Are Cleared

Some question has arisen concerning absentee ballots in the Junior College district election coming up April 5 and Friday clarification was received from the Sedalia Jaycees, who had contacted the state department of education for the necessary data.

Barry Williams, of the Jaycess, said Fred Davis of the junior college division of the state education department outlined the absentee situation as follows:

Absentee ballots may be obtained at the offices of superintendents of schools in the Sedalia 200 district, Hughesville-Houstonia district, LaMonte, Green Ridge and Smithton districts in Pettis County. In Benton County, the ballots may be obtained at the superintendents' offices in Warsaw, Cole Camp, and Lincoln.

In the smaller districts, those having a school board with three members or less, absentees will not be available due to inadequate facilities, Williams said.

Those persons too ill to go vote may write to the various superintendents for their ballots. Those who will be out of the area at the time of the election may cast their vote now in their respective area on the junior college issue. The Junior College issue needs a simple majority for passage and voters need not be registered to cast a vote in this case.

Retail Merchants To Have Meeting Thurs.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce has been called by Neil Chapman, director of the retail sales division of the Chamber, at 3 p. m. Thursday, at Gold Cafeteria in Thompson Hills Shopping Center to plan an all out effort to get out the vote for the Junior College election.

A speaker will talk briefly on the proposed Benton-Pettis County Junior College, and then have a question and answer period.

Robbery Is Staged At Bankers Meet

"Are you prepared for a bank robbery?"

"Well, yes and no," might have been the reply of bankers, their wives and guests from Pettis, Benton and Saline counties during a bang-up demonstration of a robbery in Sacred Heart Cafeteria Friday night.

The occasion was the annual dinner meeting of the Pettis-Benton County Bankers' Association attended by members of the Missouri Peace Officers Association who put on the program.

After the noisy holdup, the audience was asked to write personal descriptions of the two men who staged the action. Some came close, but most flunked the course.

Supplementing the performance were related talks by representatives of the Peace Officers' association as follows: Master of Ceremonies, Major C. M. Parker, Supervising Field Officer, Missouri Highway Patrol, Jefferson City; Karl Dissly, Special Agent in Charge, FBI, Kansas City, on federal statutes; Chief of Police Clarence Kelly, Kansas City, on future legislation; Capt. Elza Hatfield, Commanding Officer of Major Case Squad, Kansas City Police Department, on safety devices; Sheriff Steve Rimmer, Saline County, on the Missouri Peace Officers' Association; Prosecuting Attorney Robert S. Drake, Benton County, on state statutes.

Concluding the program was a background film on bank robberies, "Victim or Witness."

Henry Salveter, Executive Vice-President of the Third National Bank, presided. Invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. Lawrence J. Growney, pastor of Sacred Heart Church.

Louis R. Hughes, Jr., Executive Vice-President of the Sedalia Bank and Trust Co., chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following who were elected as officers for the ensuing year: President, Floyd Ripley, president of the LaMonte Community Bank; Vice-President, Robert S. Gerken, Cashier of Citizens-Farmers Bank, Cole Camp; Secretary-Treasurer, James E. Norlin, Cashier of Union Savings Bank, Sedalia, re-elected.

Before the meeting adjourned there was a moment of silent prayer in memory of Norval Woirhaye, deceased, Executive Vice-President of the Community Bank, Warsaw.

EVERY CHILD SHOULD HAVE GOOD TEETH

It is a mistaken notion that "Baby" teeth do not need care just because the body replaces them with "permanent" teeth. Imperfect "Baby" teeth often cause many later-life dental problems.

Every child should be taken to a dentist at about two and a half years to three years of age. By then all the "Baby" teeth will be in. The dentist will check for minute signs of decay, or any malformations which can cause later troubles. Dental patients under four years old have an average of three teeth that need fillings. If dental aids are needed, whether it be a child's toothbrush or a good tasting effective tooth paste, we have a complete stock.

Final Show Of Van Dyke Series Filmed

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the way the Dick Van Dyke show ends: not with a bang, but a flock of wild tracks.

The many-Emmied series filmed its final show this week; it is quitting not because of bad ratings but because its key personnel want to pursue careers in feature films.

There were no speeches, no fanfares for the closing performance. After five years of work together, the cast spent the last minutes doing wild tracks, pieces of dialogue to be dubbed on film later.

"It's better this way," confided a production aide. "If we made any dramatic gestures, there would be all that crying."

I agreed that Mary Tyler Moore and Rose Marie seemed close to tears.

"It's the men I'm worried about," said the aide. "I hate to see grown men cry."

There was truth in his comment. At the Tahitian-type party following the last show, key members of the troupe, male and female alike, began to choke up at the thought of not doing another show.

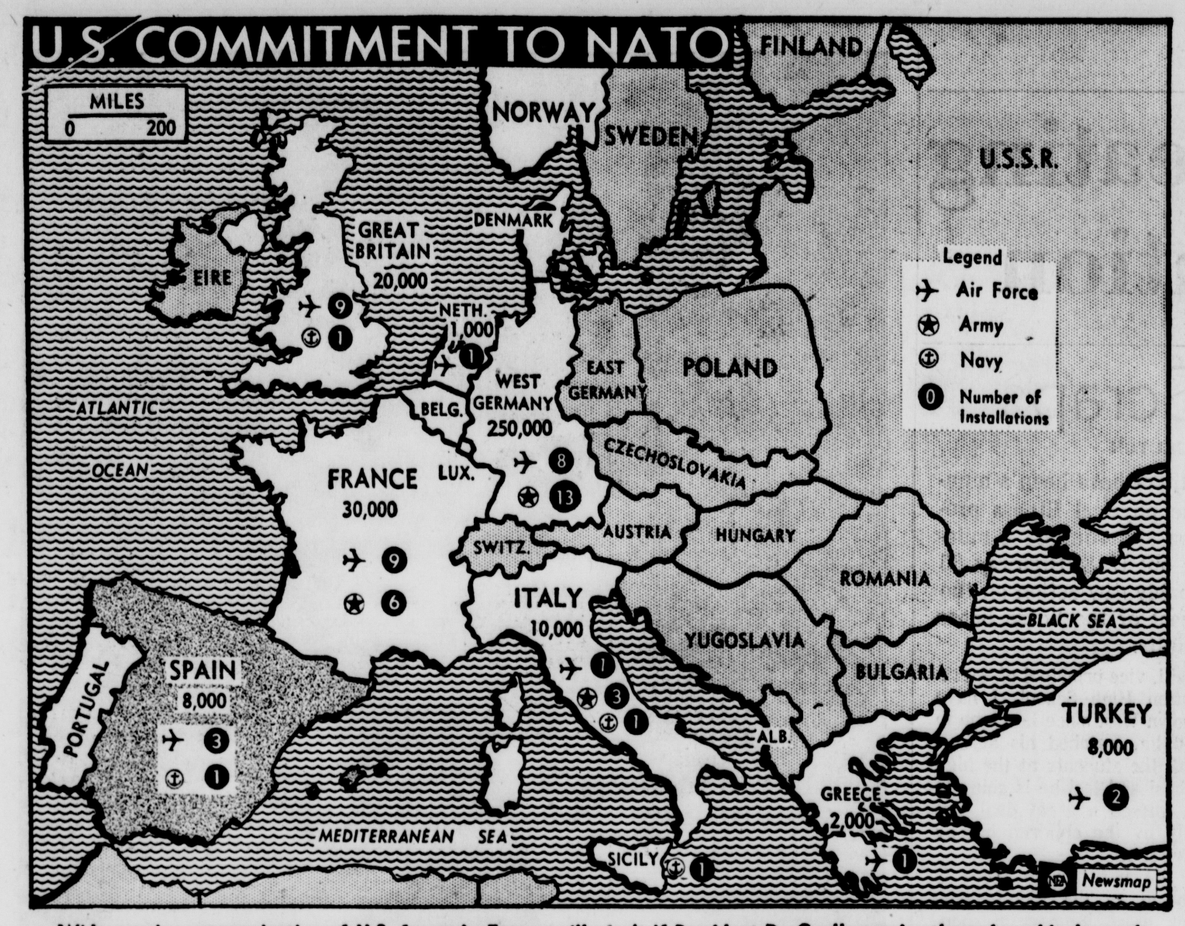
Carl Reiner, creator of the show, reported: "I'm starting right away at Columbia, writing, directing and producing 'Enter Laughing.' "

Van Dyke commented: "I'm going to sleep for a month. Then I go to Columbia to start work on 'Divorce, American Style.' "

Morey Amsterdam: "I start tomorrow doing commercials for General Electric light bulbs. I've got a couple of pictures I may do, and I'll probably line up another series."

Rose Marie: "I'm going to Australia to play some dates, then I come back in June and make a pilot about a Meter Maid, one of those lady policemen who check parking meters."

Mary Tyler Moore: "I'm talking to Universal about my first picture under contract there. It may be "Thoroughly Modern Millie' with Julie Andrews. Also, my husband (NBC executive Grant Tinker) has been transferred to New York as program head, so I'll be moving. I really hate to leave."



Wide-ranging reorganization of U.S. forces in Europe will result if President De Gaulle carries through on his demands for changes in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military setup. Fighting forces affected by American refusal to accept French command of all foreign military personnel on French soil will be primarily Air Force units, but supply lines which now for the most part run through France also will have to be relocated. Newsmap shows present deployment of land, air and sea forces in the European NATO countries and Spain. Boxed figures indicate approximate total of U.S. military personnel in each country. In addition, the U.S. 6th Fleet patrols the Mediterranean but is not based in any one country.

No Fun Being 101

TECHNY, Ill. (AP) — Being 101 years old isn't as much fun as being 100, says Mrs. Emilie Ensinger, 101 today.

She's celebrating her birthday with a party in St. Anne's Home for the Aged in Techny, where she's been a resident for the last 12 years.

"That 100-year birthday party was fun, but 101—well, it's just another birthday," she remarked. "Even at my age, one doesn't care to grow older."

Offers Military Aid

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk says the Soviet Union has offered new and "very great" military aid to his country, it was reported here Friday.

DAVENPORT, Iowa—Two persons were killed when a semi-trailer truck went out of control down Brady St. here. Thomas Reeves, 19, died when the truck slammed into this car and crushed it. (UPI)

Undersea Laboratory Is Planned

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Some students at Florida Atlantic University soon will have to commute about 30 miles to one of their classrooms — the last mile or so via submarine.

The classroom will be lowered into the Atlantic just off Palm Beach early this summer, to float underwater like a tethered balloon.

It will be an undersea laboratory, the first of its kind in the United States.

The idea was broached last May by John H. Perry Jr., a Florida publisher of many interests, in discussions with Kenneth Williams, president of the university at Boca Raton.

Basic design of the laboratory was worked out by engineers of Perry Submarine Builders, Inc., a subsidiary of Perry's publishing company.

They incorporated ideas recommended by Florida Atlantic's ocean engineering staff and Edwin Link, pioneer underwater explorer and head of Ocean Systems, Inc., of New York.

The laboratory will be a cylinder 14 feet long and 8 feet in diameter, with viewing ports.

Plans are to anchor the cylinder 30 feet below the surface in about 50 feet of water. Air will be supplied at twice atmospheric pressure through a hose from a compressor above water.

A two-man Perry submarine, called a Cubmarine, will ferry students and instructors to the laboratory. The Cubmarine will lock into an underside port, permitting dry entry and exit.

The Cubmarine is similar to one of two small submarines chartered by the U.S. Navy to search for a hydrogen bomb lost recently in a bomber crash off Spain.

"There will be broad scientific and industrial interest in the ocean laboratory project," said Prof. Charles R. Stephan, chairman of Florida Atlantic's oceanography department.

"I don't know of anything else like it on the university level, although, of course, there have been other sea labs," Stephan said.

Studies of currents, temperatures, salinity and underwater sediment, as well as biological sampling, soil bearing and corrosion experiments are planned.

"I don't expect we'll exceed more than four people working in the laboratory at any one time," Stephan said. "They will stay down two or three hours at a time."

Death Threat And Beating Trigger An Investigation

Subpoenas For Eight People For Hearings

CHICAGO (AP) — A mobster beating of a controversial boxing figure and a purported death threat against Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, have triggered a grand jury investigation of the cancelled Terrell-Cassius Clay title bout.

The federal government's Organized Crime Unit disclosed Saturday that eight persons have been subpoenaed for the jury hearing starting Wednesday. The fight was rejected by New York and chased out of Chicago.

Crux of the case, in which crime syndicate and boxing personalities are booked as witnesses, rests in alleged gangster insistence the Clay - Terrell bout be held in New York and reprisal against Bernard Glickman, a former Terrell associate, when Terrell was refused a New York license.

Glickman has been in protective custody since informing the FBI of a beating by two men in his apartment early in February.

The threat against the life of Terrell, 6-foot-6, guitar-playing Chicagoan, if he failed to fight Clay in New York was made indirectly, through associates, a government attorney was quoted.

The U.S. attorney's office here reportedly wants to learn why the gangsters wanted the fight to be held in New York, how the syndicate would have benefitted, and if there was to have been a "fix."

The New York State Athletic Commission rejected Terrell's application for a license on Jan. 29 because of his affiliation with Glickman.

Glickman, one-time Chicago awning distributor, once testified of association with Frankie Carbo, former boxing czar who is now in prison.

While Terrell told the New York commission meeting that he had severed all ties with Glickman, the commission noted that Glickman came to New York from Chicago in the same plane with Terrell.

One of Glickman's assailants, it was reported, was Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio. The other assailant was not identified. Glickman told the FBI he was cuffed and choked, and feared for his life.

After New York rejected the Clay-Terrell bout, it was scheduled March 29 in Chicago. However, Clay's public outburst against being reclassified 1-A in the draft resulted in cancellation of the bout by the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

The bout finally found ahome in Toronto, but on March 10 Terrell refused new terms and backed out of the fight. He was replaced by George Chuvalo as Clay's opponent.

Marlbert Pradd Is 1966 NAIA Scoring Champ

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 1966 basketball scoring champion in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics is Marlbert Pradd, Dillard College of Louisiana, who accounted for 781 points in 20 games — a 39-point average.

The runnerup was Paul Chrissman, Southern California College, who averaged 36.3 points a game in 23 contests while his team took the team scoring title with a 107.8 average, second highest in NAIA history.

The free throw championship went to Jack Cryan, Rider College of New Jersey, who hit 182 of 198 attempts for a .919 average. The rebound title went to Marvin Lewis, Southhampton College of New York, who pulled down 23.2 a game.

Myron Moen, General Beadle State of South Dakota hit 192 of 272 for a .705 average and the field goal title. His performance, breaking the .700 mark set in 1963 by Richard Trice, Howard Payne of Texas, was the only new record set this year by NAIA players.

Kansas Has Narrow Edge On Nebraska

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas holds a narrow edge over Nebraska in the race for the Big Eight all - sports championship with seven of 11 sports completed. Kansas is seeking its second straight all-sports crown.

The title likely won't be decided until completion of the final sport on the schedule—baseball. Third-place Oklahoma has a good chance at the title. Low score wins in the sports race.

Kansas has 23½ points, Nebraska 24, Oklahoma 28, Iowa State 30, Kansas State 33, Colorado 33½, Oklahoma State 37½ and Missouri 42½.

The seven league championships decided so far in the 1965-66 school year have been divided among six schools. Colorado and Missouri are the only schools without a title; and only Kansas, winner in indoor track and basketball, has more than one crown.

Nebraska won in football, K-State in cross-country, Oklahoma in swimming, Iowa State in gymnastics and OSU in wrestling. Outdoor track, golf, tennis and baseball are the remaining sports.

First-division finishes are the key to the all-sports title and Kansas and Nebraska have five each. Iowa State, Oklahoma and Colorado have four each, K-State three, OSU two and Missouri one.

In addition to its two titles, Kansas was the runner-up in swimming and cross - country, third in gymnastics, tied for sixth in football and was last in wrestling. Nebraska was runner-up to the Jayhawks in indoor track and basketball, third in swimming, fourth in gymnastics, fifth in wrestling and seventh in cross-country.

Every conference member participated in every championship race except gymnastics, in which OSU and Missouri didn't enter.

Houston Accounts For All Runs On Homers

BRANDENTON, Fla. (AP) — Houston accounted for all its runs with three homers to makeup for its pitchers' wildness and hung on for a 5-4 victory over Kansas City here Saturday.

Dave Nicholson, Walter Bond and John Bateman hit the ball out of the park for the Astros. The first two came with a man on. The one by Bateman in the seventh inning provided the winning margin.

Two Kansas City runs were scored on wild pitches, one came in on a walk and the other on a double play.

Kansas City had men on first and third with one out in the ninth, but lefthander Frank Carpin got Tom Reynolds to hit into a double play.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

FOR the past several weeks there have been a number of adults following the physical fitness program by exercising — walking and running a mile-a-day. Should you be a driver out U. S. Highway 65 past the fair grounds you probably saw action on the trainer half mile track just east of the horse barns — and that's some of these adults.

William H. Copas, 1018 West Second, an ardent spokesman for sports, has turned his attentions to this physical fitness program, "and it works," Copas remarked when questioned about it. "I have already lost ten pounds and I expect to lose a lot more."

Permission was sought from Wilbert Askew, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, to use the half-mile cinder track which is also used to work out harness horses. Askew granted the permission, but I noticed he isn't wearing a sweat suit and participating — as yet.

What makes it more interesting is the fact that several wives of the men who have started the program have also joined them and they say they enjoy it. In fact the women started out with their husbands but before long, due to the longer stride of some of the men, the wives very graciously tell them to go on "don't wait for me, I'll be along" and in their short stride they make it around the track with just as good results as their husbands.

Those who have been taking part wear sweat suits and some use track shoes, others tennis shoes. They start off in a jog, walk a little, put on a faster jog, walk a little and then run. Beginners take it easy, and some of those who have been at it for several weeks are getting down to the point where they actually are getting in more running than walking or jogging.

The interest seems to be growing day-by-day with more and more taking part. There is no club or membership fee — just good fellowship and enjoyment.

Anyone interested can contact Copas about the time they workout by calling TAylor 6-4442.

—o—

IT was with regret that I learned a week ago of the resignation of Walter Diehl, vice-principal of Smith-Cotton High School. I have known Walt since he came to Sedalia, watched his actions with the students at the high school and feel he is going to be missed a great deal, not only by the children but by others, too.

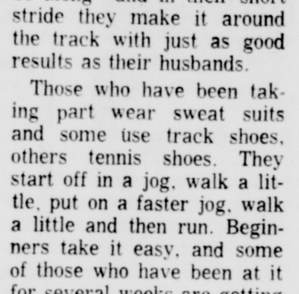
I do not believe there is anyone on the faculty who took more interest in sponsoring the student groups than Diehl and his encouragement in getting groups together to attend out-of-town ball games did a great deal in recent years in encouraging the Tigers — whether it be football or basketball.

His popularity among the students was displayed some time ago when the "rumor factory" had it he would not be back at Smith-Cotton this past year. Students banned together before anyone knew what was going on and started circulating a petition asking that he be retained. Several hundred signatures were there, and incidentally they weren't all students. They also included some parents who recognized the good he was doing for their own children.

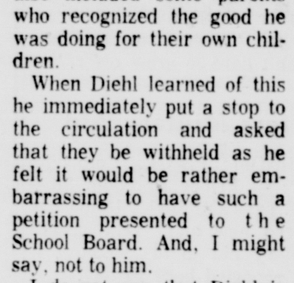
When Diehl learned of this he immediately put a stop to the circulation and asked that they be withheld as he felt it would be rather embarrassing to have such a petition presented to the School Board. And, I might say, not to him.

I do not say that Diehl is the greatest teacher or administrator Smith - Cotton has ever had, but I do say he is one of the best for public relations and have a big part in a good school spirit.

It isn't news that I haven't always agreed with the administrators of the Sedalia school system and Smith-Cotton High School, and I suppose they could care less. Personally, I am sorry to see Walt depart from the Sedalia school system — could be because he's a Lion (member of the Sedalia Lions Club.)



The Stomper



Bob Geigel

At Convention Hall

Villainous Heavyweights In Four-Event Program

At least three of the area's most villainous wrestling heavyweights will be involved in Tuesday's four-event program at Convention Hall.

The trio is composed of Bob Geigel, the Viking and the Butcher. Each is considered among the rowdiest wrestlers active in Mo-Kan rings and Geigel generally is regarded as the most vicious of the lot.

Geigel will be in for a severe test of his roughing prowess when he challenges the 265-pound Stomper. He could be pressed to the limit since the match is scheduled under "death match" conditions.

These call for a battle to the finish — a test of roughing strength and rowdy tactics that put a heavy demand on a wrestler's physical condition. The two will have at one another until one of them falls for good or has to be carted from the ring.

With the Stomper holding a decided height and weight edge, Geigel may be in for some of the roughest moments in the ring he's had in some time.

Before the two clash, there'll be three other matches. The Viking, like Geigel a target of most of the heavyweight grappling fraternity, will have his hands full against Ronnie Reed, Central States champ.

No title will be involved, but Reed will be risking his lofty ring status nonetheless. The Viking, because of his rules-skirting antics, has enraged most of the area mat fans and Reed will be trying his best to tame the Norwegian in their showdown.

The Butcher will be up against Jerry Kozak, while Lee Henning is pitted against Tor Kamata in the opener.

Saddle Club Show Set

The Missouri State Saddle Club Association's kick-off show of the 1966 season will be held Sunday, April 3, at the Missouri State Fair Grounds. The show begins at 12 noon.

This will be the first point show of the year and will feature 30 approved classes.

Those needing information concerning the show should contact the MSSCA president, R. H. Hunter, 1816 West 18th.

SEBRING, FLA. — A track steward tries to get to the burning Ford GT40, but is repelled by the billowing flames. A 50-1 Shot

Grand National Winner Is Anglo

AINTREE, England (AP) — Anglo, a 50-1 shot, won the gruelling Grand National steeplechase Saturday and saved bookies from paying out an estimated $2.8 million.

Freddie, the 11-4 favorite who finished second, and third-place Forest Prince were two of six horses that were linked with Riot Act, winner of Wednesday's Lincolnshire flat race, in what is known in Britain as the spring double.

A victory for any one of the six would have meant winnings of up to $2.8 million for bettors.

This was the first time in years that the National didn't carry the Irish Sweepstakes. The sweeps were switched to the Lincolnshire this year because of doubts that the National would be run.

Mrs. Mirabel Topham, owner of the four-mile, 856-yard course, wants to sell it for a housing development, but legal action has prevented her from carrying through with her plan.

Tim Norman, a 22-year-old jockey with a scarred face after an auto crash Thursday, pushed Anglo to the front with two of the 30 obstacles remaining.

After passing pacesetter Forest Prince and with Freddie challenging strongly, Anglo jumped the last fence about a length in the lead and romped away on the flat run-in for a 20-length victory.

Trained by Fred Winter, who also trained Jay Trump, last year's winner, Anglo won $62,334 for British owner Stuart Levy. Freddie, also runner-up last year, won $8,159, and Forest Prince $3,693.

The winning time in the race, finished by only 12 of the 47 starters, was 9:52.8, more than 30 seconds slower than the record set in 1934.

Highland Wedding, another of the horses involved in the double, was the only American entry to finish. The horse, owned by Charlie Burns of Toronto and Thomas Hall McKoy of Haverford, Pa., came in eighth.

Flying Wild, owned by Raymond Guest, the U.S. ambassador to Ireland, was pulled up at the 28th obstacle. Packed Home, also owned by Guest, fell at the sixth, and King Pin, ridden by Tim Durant, a 66-year-old grandfather from Beverly Hills, Calif., stopped at the 20th.

Butler Is Among 12 Players Recommended

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. (Special) —Leonard Butler, Sedalia junior at Northeast Missouri State, was among 12 players recommended for basketball letters, according to Athletic Director James J. Dougherty.

Butler averaged 2.9 points per game as a reserve during the 1965-66 season. The 6'4" frontliner transferred from Trenton Junior College, but was hampered during the past campaign by a knee injury suffered in pre-season drills.

Central Is Dethroned In Track Meet

COLUMBIA (AP)—St. Louis Beaumont won the final event, the mile relay, in record time and dethroned Kansas City Central for the Missouri Class L high school indoor track championship Saturday.

Central held the championship three straight years.

Going into the mile relay, Beaumont had a 23-22 edge over Central and the Kansas City team could have returned its title by winning.

Beaumont's Courtney Sanders, John Belton, Clarence Finley and Harry Casey reeled off a 3:32.1 record, breaking the mark of 3:32.2 set by Central in 1963. Kansas City Westport edged Central out at the tape and Central finished third in the relay.

Beaumont had 28 points, Central 25, St. Louis Soldan 11, Kansas City Paseo and Kansas City Ruskin each 9, Westport 8, Bayless 6, Kennett, St. Louis O'Fallon Tech and St. Louis Southwest each 5; Kansas City Southwest, Kansas City Northeast, Truman, Kirkwood and Raytown each 4.

Two other records were broken.

Beaumont's 880-yard relay crew of Belton, Lorenzo Brinkley, Cecil Purvey and Casey clipped two-tenths of a second off Central's record set last year, doing the distance in 1:34.7.

Wilbur Smith of Paseo set a record of 7.1 seconds in the 65-yard low hurdles in the preliminaries but he finished fifth in the finals. Brinkley of Beaumont won the finals and tied the old record of 7.3 seconds.

Beaumont also won the shot put on Joe Clark's throw of 55 feet 8¾ inches.

Doug Sanders In Front In Tournament

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Doug Sanders delighted the gallery with his bright red golf clothes and his flashing six-under-par 66 score Saturday for a 202 total and a two-stroke lead in the $82,000 Jacksonville Open.

He shot past Gay Brewer Jr., who had a 71, and Tommy Bolt of Sarasota, Fla., who scored 68. They head into Sunday's final 18 holes with 204s.

Black-Clad Gary Player came through with a 68 and moved into fourth place with 207.

The three-some of Sanders, Player and Sam Snead drew most of the 15,000 spectators who swarmed over the 6,906-yard Selva Marina course and slowed the play.

Behind them in the last three-some, Brewer, Bolt and Dave Hill kicked dirt and looked around during long waits between shots.

Brewer made no complaints about the delay. He said his only trouble came on the greens.

Sanders had a chance to beat the course record of 65, which he tied Friday, going into the last two holes. He needed eight-foot putts for birdies on the 330-yard 17th and the 492-yard 18th. He missed each by an inch. He used only 27 putts in the round.

Jaunty and clever, Sanders wore red shirt, red sweater, red slacks, red shoes and red gloves, but no hat.

He stands to win $13,500 if he can maintain first place through the final round.

The stage is set for a finish that didn't happen at Pensacola three weeks ago where Sanders was 14-under-par after two rounds, but didn't sign his score card and was disqualified. This gave the lead to Brewer, at 10-under-par, and he went on to win.

The 47-year-old Bolt is an added factor in the race to the wire. As a tour veteran, he won't likely be bothered by the pressure.

The 53-year-old Snead started the day tied with Bolt and Sanders but had putting trouble and faded to a 73 for a 209.

Testimony In Suit

Franchise Values Cut By New Heads

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The group of Chicago men who bought the Braves in 1962 valued the Milwaukee baseball franchise at $50,000 compared with the $311,000 listed by the previous owner, a club accountant testified Saturday.

Ronald A. Wipperman, a defense witness in Wisconsin's antitrust suit against the National League, was questioned by Willard Stafford, special counsel for the state.

The testimony came at the end of the fourth week of the trial before Circuit Judge Elmer Roller.

Wipperman said the Perini Corp., set a book value of $311,000 on the franchise. After the group led by William Bartholomay bought the club the figure was reduced to $50,000, he said.

Wipperman said there was a tax advantage in keeping the franchise value low.

Stafford asked if the $50,000 value had been approved by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS had not approved the figure because it had never examined the Braves' books, Wipperman said.

He said the value of the Braves franchise was arrived at after a study of the Houston Astro and New York Met franchises.

Earlier Saturday, Wipperman testified that the Perini Corp., sold the Braves at a profit of more than $5 million and that the club made profits of $7,752,000 while operating in Milwaukee.

Bob McLean Is Killed In Fiery Racing Crash

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Canadian driver Bob McLean was killed in a fiery crash Saturday as Fords and Ferraris fought a dangerous battle for victory in the Sebring 12-hour sports car endurance race.

McLean's Ford GT40 racer, capable of more than 200 miles an hour, rocketed off a hairpin turn, struck a utility pole, flipped over three times and exploded.

The car, built of magnesium and loaded with high octane gas, went up like a time bomb. Rescue workers had no chance to get McLean out of the flaming wreckage.

The 30-year-old McLean, last year's Canadian driving champion, had been sharing wheel time with Jean Oulette of Canada. The Ford had been running in 13th place in the fastest race ever run around the hazardous Sebring course.

His car lost a wheel going into the hairpin and severed the utility pole before coming to a stop.

Bond Dan Gurney was setting a record-smashing pace as a pack of Fords and Ferraris were locked in a fierce duel.

Visiting Coaches On Tour To See US Techniques

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Men from seven countries arrived in Washington Saturday for the first phase of a 12-week tour to observe American coaching and training techniques in track and field events.

After a week of orientation in Washington, they will move to Kansas State Teachers College at Emporia, which will be their headquarters for the rest of the project.

The NAIA and the State Department are sponsoring their visit; and the supervisor will be Fran Welch, former track coach at Emporia State.

After a one-week organizational seminar in Emporia, the visiting coaches and officials will spend a week in California. They will return to Emporia for visits to the Kansas Relays, the Drake Relays, the Big Eight meet at Missouri, the Kansas high school meet at Wichita and the NAIA meet at Sioux Falls, S.D. They also will tour recreational facilities in several cities.

In the group are Phan Nhu Quy of Viet Nam, Ahmed El-Khadem of the United Arab Republic, Pipitporn Keowmookdar of Thailand, Kamal Chawki of Syria, Chantay Mounghane of Laos, William Yeda of Kenya and Julio Ponce of El Salvador.

Youth Is Killed In Hunting Accident

SALEM, Mo. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy was shot to death in a hunting accident Saturday about nine miles west of Salem.

The victim, Larry Lea, and Dennis Harrison, 16, both of Salem, were hunting groundhogs with a 30-30 rifle. Dr. Hayden Powell, coroner, said the boys were facing each other when Harrison felt the gun slipping out from under his arm.

Harrison grabbed the rifle and the weapon fired. The bullet hit Larry in the chest, killing him instantly, the coroner said. Dr. Powell said there would be no inquest.

Roadblock In Way Of Impressive

NEW YORK (AP) — Quinta, taking full advantage of a 14-pound pull in the weight, tossed a road block in Impressive's trip to the Kentucky Derby Saturday as he survived a claim of foul and posted a three-length victory in the $28,900 Bay Shore at Aqueduct.

Quinta, reeling off the seven furlongs in stakes record time of 1:22 4-5, pulled away in the final 16th for an easy triumph over the Ogden Phipps colt, who had won his last three races and chalked up three stakes triumphs this year.

Kenny Knapp, astride Impressive, claimed he was fouled by Quinta, ridden by Walter Blum, as the pair headed into the homestretch racing almost as a team.

The stewards rejected the protest.

Third place in the field of eight, only a nose back, was the King Ranch's Buffle, who had 2½ lengths on Hobo Farms' Handsome Boy. Then in order came Advocator, Arabian Spy, Exhibitionist and Imam.

With Impressive the odds-on choice of the chilled crowd 52,102 Quita paid $10.60, $3.40 and $2.20 while earning $18,785 for owner Richard D. Bokum II. Impressive returned $2.40 and $2.20. Buffle paid $2.20.

The race, the second of four New York stakes leading up to the May 7 running of the Kentucky Derby, was a two-horse affair almost from the start. Quinta, carrying 114 pounds, jumped off in front, but his margin for the first half-mile was never more than one-half length over Impressive, who toted top weight of 128.

The time, with the first-quarter mile run in :22 3-5 the half in :44 4-5 and the six furlings in 1:09, compared to the stakes record of 1:23 1-5 made by Determined Man in 1964.

Cazzie Russell Leads East To 126-99 Victory

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The East, with All-America Cazzie Russell leading the way, exploded in the second half and defeated the West 126-99 in the College All-Star basketball game Saturday.

The Michigan star brought the crowd to its feet on several occasions as he ran up 24 points and led the scoring. He got 17 points in the second half.

The East outran and outpassed the West in a flashy display of ball-handling. Russell and Kentucky's Larry Conley shot pinpoint passes past the taller but slower West squad.

Russell got strong support from the nation's leading scorer, Dave Schellhase of Purdue, who totaled 17 points. Bill McIntyre of St. John's of New York got 16 each.

Oregon's Jim Barnett, who tied with Jerry Chambers of Utah for West scoring honors with 19 points, directed the West attack and led its fast break.

Complementing Barnett's speed and drive was the outside shooting of Colorado State's Lonnie Wright, who scored 16 points.

The 126 points were the most ever scored by a team in the four-game series, and the most ever scored by a team in Kentucky Memorial Coliseum. The series now stands at 2-2.

Baltimore Coach Gets Fine For His Remarks

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore Coach Paul Seymour was fined $100 Saturday by Walter Kennedy, National Basketball Association president, for his public remarks about officiating in the first game of the Baltimore-St. Louis Western Division Playoff.

113-111 defeat Thursday in part on "those two guys roaming around out there calling fouls." "If Mendy Rudolph is the No. 1 official in this league," Seymour added, "we're in trouble."

Thursday night's game, the first in the best-of-five series in the division playoffs, was officiated by Rudolph and Norm Drucker the NBA's oldest in term of seniority.

Musial, Slaughter, Frisch Are Choices

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter and Frank Frisch were unanimous choices in balloting for 11 former St. Louis Cardinal stars who will be honored at the team's first 11 games this season.

Other selections were Dizzy Dean, Chick Hafey, Jesse Haines, Marty Marion, Ducky Medwick, Terry Moore, Red Schoendienst and Johnny Mize.

Selections were announced Saturday by C. C. Johnson Spink, publisher and editor of The Sporting News. Spink headed a committee of sportswriters and sportscasters who voted in the poll.

One of the former stars will be honored at each game the Cardinals play in historic Busch Stadium. St. Louis is scheduled to play its 12th home game May 12 in its new park, Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

Cardinals Have Streak Broken By Senators

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The Washington Senators scored the first run of the spring off young St. Louis righthander Nelson Briles and then went on to a 3-1 exhibition baseball victory Saturday, breaking a five-game Cardinal winning streak.

Briles, 22, had gone 13 innings without giving up a run. But in the second inning, Bob Severine singled for a run after a double by Ken Hamilin and a walk. Fred Valentine's triple and Dick Nen's sacrifice fly in the third inning gave the Senators the run they needed for their third victory in 13 games.

Bob Tolan homered off Jim Duckowrth and singled for the Cardinals.

Marilyn Smith Leads Louise Suggs Tourney

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Marilynn Smith, using a new cross-handed putting grip, shot a three-under-par 69 Saturday and took a two-stroke lead in the Louise Suggs Golf Tournament.

Miss Smith, who won the first stop on the LPGA tour last week a St. Petersburg, got five birdies on putts of 10 to 30 feet.

Margie Masters shot a 71 on the 6,500-yard Country Club course and took second with a 145. First round leader Mickey Wright fell off to a 78 for a 146 and a tie with Sandra McClinton.

The 54-hole tournament ends Sunday.

Connie Mack League Meeting To Be Mon.

The future of Connie Mack League baseball in Sedalia will be on the line Monday evening, March 28. According to Francis Giger, one of the league's sponsors, a meeting of the sponsors, managers and parents of boys from 16 to 19 who want to participate in Connie Mack baseball, will be held at 7 p.m. at Liberty Park in the office of L. R. Black, park superintendent.

Giger emphasized that the meeting will be held in order to gather support for the league. Without additional support, there is a good chance the league will have to be disbanded for the 1966 season, he stated.

Racing Toll To Five

Four Spectators Die At Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A German racer, hurtling off the track after a collision, smashed into a crowd of spectators Saturday night, killing four spectators near the end of the Sebring 12-hour sports car race.

The tragedy was the second of the race and brought the death toll to five. Earlier, the Canadian driving champion, Bob McLean, was killed in a fiery crash off a hairpin turn.

Three spectators apparently were killed instantly when the Porsche plowed into the audience after a collision with an Italian Ferrari. They were Willis Edenfield of Lakeland, Fla., and his two sons, Willis Jr., 19, and Mark, 8.

Later, Patricia Heacock, wife of a prominent Sebring insurance executive, died of her injuries.

The second tragedy began when the Ferrari reportedly hit a bank on a turn and crashed into the Porsche, driving it through the fence and then following it off the track.

Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., driver of the Ferrari, said the cars apparently ran together after he missed a down shift and went into a spin.

Don Wester of Monterrey, Calif., was at the wheel of the Porsche. Neither driver was hurt.

Both cars involved in the smashup were in the top 10 in the fastest race ever run over the hazardous Sebring course, which twists and turns around the roads and runways of an abandoned military airport.

Marchers Parade In Downtown St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Marchers paraded through downtown St. Louis Saturday protesting U.S. involvement in Viet Nam.

Police estimated the group at about 60 persons. They carried signs saying: "Negotiation not Escalation," Peace is Patriotic" and "War on Poverty not People."

Stephen Best, chairman of the St. Louis fellowship of Reconciliation, told the marchers the government does not have the consensus that it says it has.

The Rev. Warden Baltzer, pastor of the United Church of Christ Caroline Mission in St. Louis, said the U.S. should stop bombing North Viet Nam and concentrate on helping the poor there.

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP)—Telephone toll service was disrupted for about four hours in Moberly and surrounding communities Saturday when an underground telephone cable was cut near Fayette, Mo.

The disruption also knocked out teletype service from The Associated Press to the Moberly Monitor Index.

The cable was cut during a digging operation for a septic tank, south of Fayette.

UMKC Music Ensemble In Concert Here

The University of Missouri at Kansas City Percussion Ensemble will present an afternoon assembly at Smith-Cotton High School, March 28, featuring as part of its program, two movements from Wilberto Ginestera's "Cantata Para America Magica" with Barbara Tibbitts soprano soloist. Miss Tibbitts was graduated in 1964 from Smith-Cotton High School. She is now a student of Mme. Tilda Beuing at the Conservatory and formerly studied with Martha Longmire of the Conservatory and Florence Demand, Sedalia.

She is employed as soprano soloist of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Kansas City and recently appeared as Amahl in Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors" at the Kansas City Public Library and also for the MENC, was part of a recorder consort under the direction of Dr. John L. Swaney.

The program, along with the concert by the ensemble, has been performed for the Music Educators' National Conference on March 19, held this year in Kansas City and in May, 1965, for the Percussion Ensemble's Spring Concert. These performances were recorded, first by Century and this month by Crest Records and last summer were featured on KXTR-FM.

The ensemble, which began only five years ago with a small number of students, is under the direction of Charmine Asher Wiley.

The program to be presented March 8, will be: Divertimento, Charmine Asher; Bali, Dr. David Gordon, recorder soloist, Patrick Manley; Harmonica Player, Charmaine Asher; March of the Toys, Bobby Christian; Caprice for Five, Charmaine Asher; Dance Drum Quintet; Cantata Para America Magica, Alberto Ginastera, for dramatic soprano and percussion orchestra: (I) Prelude and Song of Dawn; Son of the Warriors' Departure, soprano, Barbara Tibbitts; pianos, Patrick Manley and Kathy Gorrell; celists, Marjorie Kilbride.

The cantata is based on ancient religious texts from Mayan mythology. The two numbers presented are concerned with the invocation of the spirits (I) and the fear and trembling of a war about to occur (III).

The "Prelude and Song of Dawn' 'is an introduction of the gods ,a prayer for protection and peace and a declamation of arrival of dawn, which meant that the evil spirits of night had departed and brought life again. The "Song of the Warriors Departure" pictures the warriors preparing for battle, the fear of what has happened to civilization and over and over through the piece the statement that the earth is trembling. The cantata is in Spanish.

Broad Issue In Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia's bloodless revolution raises an issue much broader than the question of "one man, one vote."

It concerns the future of the white man in the most developed, most dynamic part of the continent.

This area includes Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal's territories of Mozambique and Angola — all ruled by white minorities.

It is nearly five months since Prime Minister Ian Smith threw off Britain's silken yoke and proclaimed Rhodesia an independent nation. Britain clamped almost complete trade sanctions and an oil embargo on Rhodesia. Many other nations joined in the sanctions under British pressure.

Not a single nation has recognized the Smith government. But Smith is more firmly in power than before the declaration of independence.

In essence, Britain has demanded that the Smith government guarantee unimpeded progress by Rhodesia's four million blacks toward the goal of a black government in Rhodesia.

Smith has pledged to the 225,000 white Rhodesians that there will be no African nationalist government in his lifetime.

South Africa has been providing the gasoline and petroleum products with which Rhodesia is beating the oil embargo. Oil storage tanks are being built in Beira, Mozambique, so Rhodesia's pipeline to the coast can be reactivated.

If no tankers break through the embargo, which Britain is policing with planes and ships, South Africa will seek to meet Rhodesia's requirements. South Africa also can supply many other products imported by Rhodesia before independence.

There is no question that Rhodesia's economy has taken an enormous shock from the sanctions. Almost everybody here expects the situation to grow much worse before the corner is turned. But they expect also to turn the corner.

One professional man who opposes the Smith government suggests that the first sign of a crack would be depreciation of the currency — possibly in another six months.

But it is in he interest of South Africa and Portugal to see that the Rhodesian currency remains sound.

Bootblack Creating Commotion

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Some men don't want a girl to shine their shoes — not even a Vassar girl.

It isn't that they're against women doing such work, reports Sally Petrauskas, it's because they're antifeminists.

This is one of the discoveries Sally has made in her week of studying "the socio-economic relationships between a man and his shoes."

Sally, 19, is a Vassar sophomore who has created a minor commotion by shining shoes on Hartford's Asylum Street, one of the city's main thoroughfares.

She says she is shining shoes to earn pocket money to spend when she returns to Poughkeepsie, N.Y., after her two-week spring vacation. Hartford is her home town.

Shoe shining isn't the most lucrative job. Sally has earned only about $7 in three days. And there are quite a few hazards. So why should a pretty, brown-haired, blue-eyed, cultured young lady want to take up the profession?

"I wanted to earn money in an unconventional way; I'm an unconventional person," Sally explained. "Besides," she added, "it keeps me up nights laughing."

"For instance, there was the time when I was working especially hard, and I noticed this little old lady watching me," Sally recalled.

"She must have been watching for quite a while, when she came over to me, a tear in her eye, and said, 'You're such a good little girl.'"

One of the many things about Sally which draws attention is her outfit, a blue sweatshirt, faded bluejeans and a green Marine fatigue jacket.

Many of the men who stop, not necessarily to get their shoes shined, ask the inevitable "What's a nice girl like you doing in a place like this?"

Depending upon her mood at the time, Sally has an assortment of answers, which include:

"I need the money." Her goal is $50 in two weeks.

"I was married when I was in high school and my husband beats me up if I don't work."

"It's a good way to meet people."

MAP SHOWING RE-APPORTIONMENT OF MISSOURI HOUSE

The above map shows the tentative plan for re-apportionment of the Missouri House of Representatives as filed with the Secretary of State, March 23. The plan was drawn up by a special bi-partisan commission appointed by the Governor. Final public hearings on the above proposal will be held March 28, 29 and 30, in Jefferson City unless the Commission directs otherwise. (Map courtesy of Missouri Press Association).

Record Term In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its long and often turbulent history, the U.S. Senate has produced demagogues, dolts, flashes-in-the-pan, nonentities, egomaniacs, conscientious plodders and, happily, an occasional statesman.

But it has turned out only one Carl Hayden, and the suspicion is that there will never be another.

This shrewd 88-year-old Democrat has been in Congress ever since Arizona became a state — a record-shattering 54 years.

He has done this the hard way. In a temple dedicated to windbaggery, he has kept his mouth shut while astutely pushing out invisible tentacles of power.

"Carl can walk through fresh snow and never leave a track," an admiring colleague once said.

There are few other modern politicians who have done more to change the face and plot the future of America. Deserts bloom, highways span the land, foreign aid wobbles through, all because Hayden has known whom to prod and how and when.

That well-advertised prodder of Congress, Lyndon B. Johnson, was recognizing a fellow craftsman when he said: "I know of no more effective servant in public life today than Carl Hayden."

Yet few senators are as unknown — and what national recognition he does get is for the wrong reason.

After President John F. Kennedy was assassinated, Johnson addressed Congress, and for the first time many voters became aware of the importance of two emaciated elders perched behind the new president.

If something had happened to LBJ, Speaker John McCormack, then 72, would have been his successor. And if McCormack had also been struck down, Hayden, as the Senate's senior citizen, would under the law have been next in line, and the biggest job in the free world would have fallen on his tired shoulders.

To many the prospect was horrifying. Even a member of Hayden's staff was disturbed enough to ask the patriarch what he would do if a double calamity were suddenly to propel him into the White House.

"I'd call Congress together, have the House elect a new speaker, and then I'd resign and let him become president," Hayden said.

Typically, while others fretted, he had quietly decided.

In this self-conscious age — when politicians hire image-polishers to determine how they should look and poll-takers to decide what they should say — Hayden's attitude is as refreshing as it is hard to understand.

Take Viet Nam.

Almost every day senatorial hawks and doves soar and flutter and worry, aloud, of course, so their countrymen will know what high-grade worriers they are.

Hayden was among those whose views were sought by the President while he pondered whether bombing of North Viet Nam should be resumed. The old senator carefully wrote down his views — befitting a former sheriff, he is mildly hawkish — but he never made his stand public.

Recently he granted an interview, rare for him, and he seemed surprised when asked why he hadn't joined the multitudes in telling the President how to run the war.

"If I was on the Armed Forces Committee or the Foreign Relations Committee, I might do it," Hayden said, without conviction.

"But as Appropriations chairman," he said, "it's my job to look over the budget and provide the money to carry on. It isn't necessary for me to make a speech. If I put my time in making speeches, I wouldn't attend to my business, that's all."

It's easier to say that a senator has power than to explain how he got it, but it is essential to anyone interested in understanding that beguiling, maddening institution, the U.S. Senate.

Hayden derives his power from such diverse sources as:

— His long service in Congress.

He came to Washington in 1912, when William Howard Taft was still president, as Arizona's first representative. Projects often need years of careful cultivation, and Hayden, a patient gardener, has had time to plant and nurture the seeds from which mighty projects grow.

— His long service in the Senate.

Hayden moved over from the House in 1927, and since the Senate worships seniority, Hayden is its god, or, more specifically, its president pro tempore.

This is mostly an honorary title, but it does carry with it a government limousine and chauffeur, a status symbol largely wasted on Hayden. He rarely goes out at night, and he lives in the Methodist Building, a block from his Senate office.

— His job as chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Although the government spends $100 billion a year, each senator dreams of more installations for his own state. How prudent it is to be nice to that nice Mr. Hayden! For Hayden helps render the final verdict in the dickering over differences in House and Senate money bills. "It's in conference that he really shines," a friend of Hayden's has said.

— His character and his habits.

Loving to compliment each other, senators stage a wallow whenever one of them passes a birthday or similar milestone. But when Hayden's turn comes — he hates these admiration orgies so much that he sometimes refuses to show up for his own party — a new element can be spotted.

Among the lush adjectives are testimonials, from Democrats and Republicans, of how they arrived in the Senate bewildered and ill at ease, and of how Hayden sought them out to offer help.

"I do not believe he has an enemy," Lyndon Johnson once said.

This good will from all includes Barry Goldwater, panting to return to the Senate he left to run for the presidency. Goldwater has said he will run against his old friend Hayden in 1968 although in 1958 he said on the Senate floor:

"As a Republican, Mr. President, I find myself in great sympathy with the people of my state who have eternal gratitude for the service of Carl Hayden in the Senate."

There's this summation from a man who has had a chance to watch him closely for years: "I don't think you can impress him very easily. Well, you don't impress him at all. No one does. I don't think he knows the word fear or insecurity. Even death doesn't scare him. He wants to live, but he looks upon death as a natural, inevitable thing."

Most of his contemporaries are long gone, but, fortunately, I had a rambling and delightful interview with Henry Fountain Ashurst shortly before his death in 1962 at the age of 87.

Ashurst was a senator from Arizona for 29 years, and he and Hayden made a curious but effective team: Hayden, taciturn, dry, a quiet operator who got in his licks behind scenes; Ashurst, flamboyant, a wildly rococo orator whose voice was so powerful his intimate conversations could startle innocents a block away.

Zestfully, Ashurst recalled that glorious period when he and Hayden engaged in a filibuster: they believed the provisions for building Boulder Dam impinged on Arizona's rights.

"Hayden was the engineer," Ashurst boomed. "He knew the rainfall, the soil, the precise number of kilowatts the dams would produce. But he was making the shells, not firing them."

The old man who had fired the shells that Hayden made smiled at the memory. "Now I President, under Charles V — ,' and so on and on. And when I finished Hayden would take the floor and say, 'Mr. President, let's look at the soil on which this dam is to be built.' "

They won that fight eventually, but Ashurst, the indefatigable talker, knew that talk could be costly. "I used to tell my colleagues that every speech is a deadly enemy, for it puts a powerful weapon in the hand of your opponent.

"Well, Hayden will never lose a vote on what he has said."

In theory, garrulity is an affliction of the aged, but perhaps in reality those who babble when they are old also babbled when they were young. Certainly Hayden has escaped the infection, as any interviewer soon learns.

For here is a man whose great-grandfather fought in the Revolutionary War; whose father left Independence, Mo., with an ox train in 1845; whose mother, Sally Calvert Davis of Arkansas, was delayed on her trip west to teach school because buffaloes got on the railroad tracks; who, as the first white child born in Hayden's Ferry, now Tempe, Ariz., was proclaimed by the Salt River Herald as "the prize baby of Maricopa County";

Who vividly remembers the Indian uprisings and the capture of Geronimo: "Why the name of that murderous old villain was shouted by paratroopers when they jumped is a mystery to me," he grumbled 80 years later; who went home for the Christmas holidays in 1902 and thus missed out on playing center for Stanford in the first Rose Bowl game — Michigan won, 49-0;

Who married Nan Downing and who lived happily with her for 53 years until her death in 1961 even though her pet name for him was "Bugs"; who as a sheriff when the West was wild once captured two tough train robbers, the Woodson brothers, and who when his wife complained of the danger explained that no one could get hurt: "I never carry a loaded gun," he said;

Mrs. Daniel Alan Clark

Miss Judy Ann Wharton Marries Mr. Daniel Alan Clark March 12

Miss Judy Ann Wharton became the bride of Mr. Daniel Alan Clark at seven o'clock Saturday evening, March 12 at Knob Noster First Christian Church. The Rev. Don R. Downes, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony in a candlelight setting.

Fifteen lighted white tapers were secured in an arch candelabrum. Emerald foliage and white gladioli enhanced the candelabrum, centering the altar, which was banked with emerald palms and two nine branch pyramid candelabra. White satin bows marked the family pews and a white carpet covered the bridal aisle. Two seven branch candelabra holding lighted cathedral tapers, flanked the aisle at the back of the chancel.

Mr. and Mrs. Ermile N. Wharton, Knob Noster, are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Baulieu, West Haven, Conn., and of Mr. William Clark, Devon, Conn.

Miss Mary V. Hogan, Knob Noster, pianist, played nuptial music and traditional wedding marches. She also accompanied Mrs. D. I. Sevier, LaMonte, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because," and, at the close of the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer."

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional wedding gown of silk faced peau de soie. The slender bodice was designed with an oval neckline and long tapering sleeves. Appliques of pearl trimmed Alencon lace formed a yoke plastron and defined a slim sheath panel on the front skirt. At the sides and back of the gown, a detachable train with a small bow at the waist, and pleated fullness, curved and lengthened to a court train. The bridal headdress was a band of peau de soie and pearl trimmed lace, which held her elbow length veil of imported illusion. She carrried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, garlanded of the bridal assistant. In her hair, she wore a bandeau of feathered pink carnations and carried a white princess basket of pink rose petals.

Master Lyle Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Higginsville, was ringbearer. Wedding bands were fastened to a white satin square pillow.

Mr. Ron Coates, Palmyra, was best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Larry Wharton and Mr. Jerry Wharton, brothers of the bride. Mr. Dale Wharton, brother of the bride, was usher.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wharton wore an aqua knit two-piece dress with aqua and black accessories. Her corwith glacier ivy and pearls.

Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Wayne Axton, Knob Noster, and Miss Norma Darby, Springfield. They wore gowns of aqua peau de soie with empire styling and scooop necklines. The bodices and short sleeves were covered with white lace. At the waistlines, were streamered bows. Their headdresses were aqua bows, which held short brush veils. Each carried a crescent bouquet of pink carnations backed with camellia foliage.

Candlelighters were Miss Teresa Zink and Mr. Mike Wharton, the latter, brother of the bride. Miss Zink's street length gown was styled like those of the attendants. Her corsage was of pink carnation.

Miss Troy Lin Wharton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larrry Wharton, and a niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her aqua dress was also styled like those of the other attendants. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mrs. Larry Birmingham attended the guest book. Gifts were arranged for display by Miss Vicki Koontz.

After the ceremony, wedding guests were received in the church manse by the wedding party. The bride's table was covered with white linen and centered with a three tiered white wedding cake. White sugar flowers and light pink rosebuds with silver leaves enhanced the cake. The bridal tier was highlighted with white bells and a net heart, surrounded by small pearl hearts, resting on a white coronet and net. The top tier was placed on pilasters, which surrounded light pink rosebuds and leaves of silver. Crystal candelabra holding pink tapers flanked the cake. Garlands of Sweetheart roses and fern encircled the base of the cake.

The cake was served with punch, mints and nuts by Mrs. Walter Coates, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Dale Wharton and Mrs. Larry Wharton, sisters-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Henry Dial, Sedalia, cousin of the bride.

For travel, the bride selected an off-white knit dress and brown accessories. Her corsage was of brown Cymbidium orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark are at home at 551 Savin Avenue, West Haven, Conn. The bride is a graduate of Knob Noster High School and attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, two years. Mr. Clark was graduated from Milford High School, Milford, Conn. He served four years in the United States Air Force, receiving his discharge last September. For three years, he was stationed at Whiteman Air Force Base.

A rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wharton at their home the evening preceding the wedding. Guests were the bridal party and families of the couple. Gifts to attendants were presented by the couple.

Set Limits For Rental Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Income limits to qualify for rent supplements under President Johnson's controversial program to aid low-income persons, were disclosed today.

The limits as set for some 70 cities were presented to a House appropriations subcommittee March 14 and the testimony was made public today.

The subcommittee recommended only $12 million of the $30 million requested to get the program under way.

The full House Appropriations Committee voted today to accept the subcommittee's recommendation. It approved $100,000 in cash and $12 million in contract authority for the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30.

The income limts for eligibility for rent supplements, based on families of four, would range from $2,700 annually in Fort Worth, Tex., to $5,760 in New York City. The department said families would not be considered if they had more than $2,000 in assets, or $5,000 in the case of elderly families.

The income limits included: St. Louis, $4,400; Kansas City $3,600; Topeka $3,500, and Wichita $3,600.

Ceilings on monthly rentals anywhere would range from $85 for a minimum apartment to $140 for three-bedroom quarters. The corresponding mortgage ceilings would range from $7,650 to $12,550 with a 25 per cent differential allowable in a few high-cost areas.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dexheimer, 1514 Maryland Parkway, Las Vegas, Nev., formerly of Sedalia, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Beth Ann, to A-2c Robert Lee Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Morton, Vicksburg, Mich. Airman Morton is stationed at Neilis Air Force Base, Las Vegas. Miss Dexheimer attends Las Vegas High School, where she is to be graduated in June. The wedding is to take place June 11.

SHOP TALK from Chapman's

It is a well known fact that most women are fashion conscious. While we have not been in this business for too many years, we have learned that age has little to do with fashion. A woman just naturally loves clothes from the time she can walk until the time she can't . . . its as simple as that!

With spring just around the corner, why not let nature take its course and start with a smart coat of white or beige? Our coats are tailored to your uneering good taste; they are proportioned for the petite figure as well as the average height woman, and also for the junior figure.

You will love the uncluttered simple designs and it will be such a relief to take off that heavy winter garment! White and off-white are the most sought after colors because they go with everything. Navy and black are smart and slimming. Pastels are pretty and we will always love toast and beige.

We have everything to go with the coat and we would like to have you see them all at

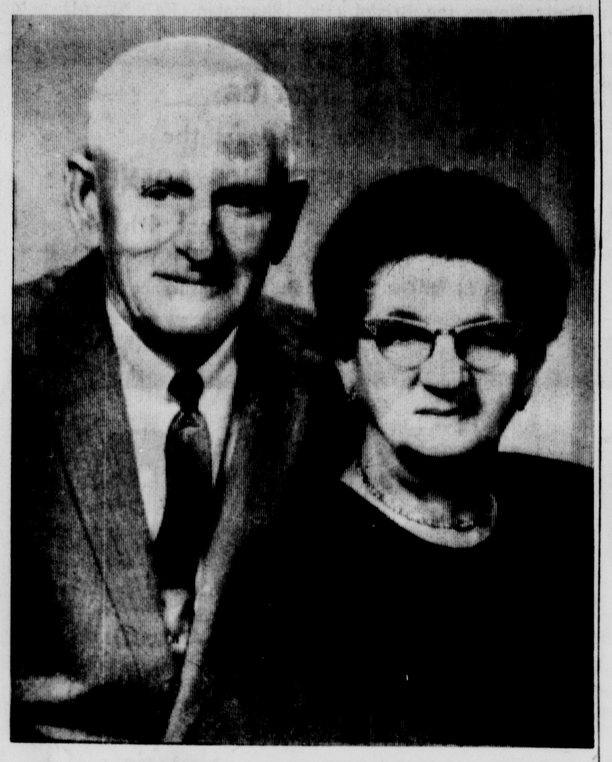
Mr. and Mrs. Elias Arnett Wed 50 Years, Observe Anniversary



Mr. and Mrs. Elias Arnett (1966)

Mr. and Mrs. Elias Arnett (1916)

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Arnett, Gravois Mills, held open house for them March 13 in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wallen, 1716 South Summit.

The serving table, covered with a white crocheted cloth underlaid with gold, was centered with a four tiered white cake, which was decorated with white icing, yellow roses and white bells, edged with gold. A gold wreath of hearts was highlighted with a miniature bride and bridegroom and the numeral "50" on the bridal tier. Gold candles in crystal holders flanked the cake.

Cake was served with punch, mints and nuts to 150 guests by Mrs. Sam Durnil, Mrs. Carl Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Arnett.

Mrs. Lamar Fowler and Mrs. Earl Arnett attended gifts. Mrs. Albert Tucker presided at the guest book.

Miss Gladys Denny and Mr. Elias Arnett were married March 15, 1816 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Denny, Green Ridge, by the Rev. Zeb Wright. The Arnetts spent most of their lives farming in the Camp Branch vicinity, until retiring and moving to Gravois Mills in 1952.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnett are parents of two children, Mrs. Wallen and Eldon Arnett, the latter of Green Ridge. The couple also has three grandchildren, Harvey Lee, Merlin Roy and Tonia Sue Arnett.

Yes, They Are Shorter

Ultrashort skirts are the big fashion news today and inevitably recall the legendary high, high hemlines of the flappers four decades back. It may not settle any arguments, but just to refresh the memory here is how current knee-appeal creations lineup with high-style items from the high-hemline heyday, 1927-29.

Italian designers in '66 reach an extreme with this "little girl" look model.

This costume, seen at England's Ascot Races in 1928, took a slightly lower view on hem length.

A modest line, showing the knee but not baring it, was fashionable in 1927, date of this sport outfit.

A 1966 New York design holds the same line—merely a peek of knee.

Curious Customs

Young Broadcasting Child Has Folkways of Its Own

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, while the younger child of broadcasting, is still old enough to have developed some folkways of its own.

One curious custom is that the cancellation of a failing program is never officially noted by a network. Its replacement is excitedly heralded as if its time spot had previously been occupied by what the trade calls "dead air."

At this moment, the schedules of the three networks are loaded with condemned programs — almost 30 — and a few whose fate is still undecided. Most of them will be permitted to limp around reruns through the summer months. A very few, including "Ben Casey" last week, are soon to be officially pronounced dead.

But while the network publicity departments are silent undertakers, they are noisy midwives already shouting about the shows which will be born next September.

This season merits at least a quick look backwards in an effort to determine in what direction the fickle public's fancy is leading the program-makers.

Television's 1965-66 season, when it started after Labor Day, was strong in comedy-fantasy programs, primarily stimulated by the big ratings success the previous year of a series called "Bewitched," and the modestly successful accentance of two shows spoofing horror movies, "The Munsters" and "The Addams Family."

A sip of fantasy apparently was delightful but a massive dose was too much. By next September, five of the seven shows featuring talking automobiles, reconstituted Frankenstein monsters, spooky suburbanites, a Martian superman and an apprentice angel will have disappeared. "Bewitched," a thoroughly delightful and well-done series, survived, handsomely. So did "I Dream of Jeannie," a series about a genie who lives in a bottle.

All networks started the season in a flap about attracting the "younger audiences" — presumably viewers between 13 and 25. But by season's end it was obvious that two shows specializing in watusi dancing and long-haired rock and pop quartets — "Hullabaloo" and "Shindig," were no longer appealing to the frug crowd. And neither were comedies about teen-age girls — "The Patty Duke Show," "Gidget" and "Tammy," and all are expected to be gone by fall.

After the James Bond success in motion pictures and the persistent popularity of ""The Man from U. N. C. L. E." the spy craze continued undiminished all season. "'I Spy," "Get Smart" and "The Wild Wild West" all could be positively counted as hits — and should have been because all were bright and amusing.

But others fell or will fall soon — "Amos Burke — Secret Agent," "Blue Light," "The Private Life of Henry Phyfe," "Honey West" and "The Baron." and most of them, quite frankly deserved their fates.

Two efforts at quality dramatic tries failed miserably to make the audience grade: "Slattery's People" and "The Trials of O'Brien." The first was an invalid during its first season and its health failed to improve when it was given a second. The second, a courtroom series, never found its audience.

"Perry Mason," although it managed to keep its ratings head above water, is marked for extinction, still another victim of the unconquerable Cartwrights of "Bonanza," its competition.

The last of he prime-time doctor shows, "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare" and the last of the old-fashioned situation comedies, "Donna Reed" and "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" appear to have expired — from simple neglect.

Sensational new arrival of the season was "Batman," a kiddie show that a brilliant publicity campaign persuaded adults to view and find funny. Whether those adults will laugh twice a week for months on end at the same basic joke and ornately corny lines remains to be seen.

Television programs are, almost invariably, canceled or dropped for one reason: low ratings in the semimonthly national Nielsen reports, estimates of audience sizes by a research company. Thus is easy to predict in advance the names of most of the shows that are marked for extinction. They are the last 30 or more entertainment shows in the Nielsen list.

Washington Capsules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Johnson always considers inviting Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky of South Viet Nam to visit the United States, but no such invitation is likely in the near future.

This was learned Thursday after Sen. Ross Bass, D-Tenn., made public a letter from a presidential aide saying the "President has wanted you to know that continuing thought is being given" to his suggestion that Ky be invited here.

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers told a newsman there are no plans at this time to invite Ky, and Bass was written simply to reassure him that his suggestion for a meeting "had not been forgotten and would be under continuing review."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it does not "shadow" or take any other investigative responsibility in connection with American travelers abroad.

The issue arose Thursday when a State Department aide was queried about the FBI's request for U.S. embassies in Paris and Moscow to keep an eye on Harvard historian H. Stuart Hughes, who plans to go overseas this fall.

The aide said although no investigations are conducted by the embassies, they do as a matter of practice relay whatever information comes to hand.

The State Department canceled the requests for information on Hughes at the request of the security and consular affairs office.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has concluded a day-long hearing on Staughton Lynd's recent unauthorized trip to North Viet Nam. The Yale professor refused to promise he would not visit an off - limits country.

To Report On Viet Nam

Humphrey To Be Speaker At Associated Press Meet

NEW YORK AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be the speaker at the annual meeting of The Associated Press April 25.

President Paul Miller of The AP said in his announcement the vice president had promised a major address, touching, among other topics, Viet Nam, where Humphrey recently visited.

Humphrey's swing through Viet Nam was part of a nine-nation Asian tour which he completed Feb. 23. He said then he was satisfied that the "tide of battle has turned" and that the Communists ultimately would be beaten.

The United States will stay in Viet Nam, Humphrey said in reporting on his trip, until "genuinely free elections can be held."

"If the Viet Cong, in those elections, gain honestly a voice in government, so be it," he said. "But prior to elections, this government will not be a party to any settlement which amounts to a preelection victory for communists which cannot be won at the polls.

"I, for one, doubt that the South Vietnamese people will give that victory to the Communists," the vice president went on. "No Communist government has ever come to power through free election, and I doubt that one ever will."

Humphrey defined the U.S. course in Viet Nam as a difficult one, "neither of withdrawal nor of massive escalation, but of measured use of strength and perseverance in defense both of ally and principle."

The occasion for his speech will be a luncheon in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel bringing together 1,500 U.S. and Canadian newspaper, radio and television executives and their wives.

Past speakers at the luncheons have included Presidents Eisenhower and Johnson.

The AP annual meeting will open at 10 a.m. EDT with a one-hour show covering activities of the cooperative newsgathering association during the past year. A business session including an election of officers will begin at 11 a.m.

The AP meeting is an opening feature of New York's annual Newspaper Week every April. The meeting precedes the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Speakers in recent years have included, in addition to Johnson and Eisenhower, Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan, and astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Miller, resident of Gannett Newspapers, Rochester, N.Y., will preside at the meeting.

The AP members will ear the annual report of their board of directors, vote to fill seven vacancies on the 18-member board, and vote on the application of 29 associate newspaper members to become regular members.

Six directors will be elected for three-year terms to fill expiring terms, and one will be elected to a one-year term to succeed Harry F. Byrd Jr. of the Winchester, (Va.) Evening Star. Byrd resigned after his appointment to the U.S. Senate.

Those nominated:

Richard H. Amberg, St. Louis, (Mo.) Globe-Democrat; John Cowles Jr., Minneapolis, (Minn.) Tribune; Joe M. Dealey, Dallas (Tex.) Morning News; Martin S. Hayden, Detroit (Mich.) News and Sunday News; James L. Knight, Miami (Fla.) Herald; William F. Knowland, Oakland (Calif.) Tribune; Paul Miller, Rochester (N.Y.) Times-Union and Democrat & Chronicle; and Thomas Vail, Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer.

For cities with less than 50,000 population: Max E. Nussbaum, Moultrie (Ga.) Observer; Dolph C. Simons Jr., Lawrence (Kan.) Journal-World.

For a director who is a resident of New York State: Gene Robb, Albany (N.Y.) Knickerbocker News and Times-Union; and Edwin S. Underhill 3rd, Corning (N.Y.) Leader.

To fill Byrd's unexpired term: J. M. McClelland Jr., Longview (Wash.) Daily News; Fred A. Seaton, Hastings (Neb.) Daily Tribune.

Miller, Knowland, Nussbaum and Robb are AP directors with terms expiring next month.

Two other directors whose terms are expiring are W. D. Maxwell, Chicago Tribune, and George W. Healy Jr., New Orleans Times-Picayune.

They are not eligible for re-election under The AP bylaws because they have served three consecutive terms. This limitation does not apply to the president.

The meeting will vote on the application of the following associate member newspapers for regular AP membership:

The Anchorage (Alaska) News ;The Mesa (Ariz.) Tribune; the Prescott (Ariz.) Evening Courier; the Yuma (Ariz.) Daily Sun; the Hollywood (Calif.) Citizen-News; the Martinez (Calif.) RAW MATERIAL—The children, residents of Tanzania, give an idea of the size of this valuable find near Africa's famed Mt. Kilimanjaro. Not any old rock, it's the largest single piece ever found of meerschaum, the porous mineral that is raw material for valuable pipes. This chunk, weighing only 130 pounds despite its bulk, should yield about 1,500 pipes. Tanzania leads the world in production of meerschaum.

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. State Department won't have to act as banker for a Soviet ocean survey ship whose captain tried to borrow $4,000 for fuel and provisions from the U.S. Embassy here.

The Mariano Olondriz Fernandez Shipping Co. announced today it would provide the funds on behalf of "clients" in Tokyo. Presumably the client is the Soviet mission in Tokyo.

No Communist countries have diplomatic representation in the Philippines. Capt. Yevgeny Avramenko of the oceanographic ship Vityaz sought the money from the U.S. Embassy last week, saying "the United States and the Soviet Union maintain friendly relations."

The embassy referred the request to the State Department.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Teachers at Khoa No secondary school in the south Thailand city of Nakorn Sritamaraj decided it would be good for students to select their own projects for a handicraft class.

All 11 pupils of the fifth grade made pistols which officials said were capable of shooting fatal projectiles.

"The workmanship is perfect," the school's headmaster cabled the Education Department in Bangkok today. "It seems beyond belief."

The headmaster said he confiscated all the weapons. He asked the Education Department what he should do next.

The Education Department said it was studying the matter.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Th next six years will determine future of Nationalist China, President Chiang Kai-shek declared today.

The 78-year-old soldier-statesman spoke at the closing session of the National Assembly which elected him Monday to a fourth six-year term as president.

Chiang said the current situation provides opportunities to achieve "our secret mission — recovery of the mainland." He expressed confidence the mission would succeed.

"The coming six years will be decisive," he said.

PARIS (AP) — Snow showers fell on Paris during the night as a cold snap interrupted an early spring. Temperatures were below freezing.

The snow melted on contact with streets and sidewalks but froze on car windshields.

Yacht For Sale

Dominican Government Inherits White Elephant

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican government has an ocean-going white elephant inherited from the Trujillo dictatorship.

It's the yacht Patria, and it's for sale. But don't start bidding unless you have $800,000. Dominican navy officials say that's the minimum the government could ask for the 316-foot, 2,300-ton auxiliary yacht.

Tall, sleek and proud, the powerful Patria sits amid the oily rubble of a Dominican navy yard, like a fading, bejeweled dowager gone slumming.

A lot of high-priced life has been crammed into her 35 years. Down to the gold-plated bathroom fixtures, the yacht is a testimonial to the wealth this little Caribbean country can manage when it isn't at war with itself.

The Patria owes part of her value to Ramfis Trujillo's failure to make the grade at a U. S. military officers' school in June 1958.

Ramfis was Rafael Trujillo Jr., playboy son of the yacht's owner, the Dominican dictator.

Angry at the humiliation of his school report, young Trujillo dashed off to Hollywood to set the yacht off on her last big fling. She was then known as Angelita, after one of the dictator's daughters.

On urgent call from Ramfis, the yacht steamed from Santo Domingo to San Pedro, Calif., where she became sort of floating playpen for the Dominican heir and friends from the film colony.

"There were great parties nearly every night," recalls a navy officer, then on board. "One noon, we were aroused by the noise of many small boats, some with photographers on board, circling the yacht. We wondered about their curiosity until someone pointed out a freshly painted sign on the ship's side. It read 'Zsa Zsa slept here last night.' "

The yacht was equipped to handle any size party. She has nine refrigeration units and seven large bedrooms, all airconditioned.

Inevitably, the San Pedro partying attracted critics. Aroused by suggestions he was spending U. S. aid funds sent to his country, Ramfis replied that assistance to his father's government amounted to a piddling $250,000 while his Hollywood entertaining was up over a million.

Soon after that, the party broke up and the yacht began steaming home down the Mexican west coast.

Anxious to get home, Ramfis was irritated by the yacht's old engines that yielded only 7.5 knots cruising speed. A four-master with 34,000 feet of sail, the yacht could also manage, in a good wind, a top speed of 11.3 knots.

Ramfis ordered the ship refitted with new engines, the latest and the best. Between March and July 1959, the machinery was overhauled at a Mobile, Ala., dry dock at a cost of $1,380,000. Patria now can do 15.7 knots.

Initiation was conducted by Mrs. Aron Smith, membership chairman, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Johnny Bribiesca.

Table decorations were large green hats filled with white net and green shamrocks. White candles, sprayed with green sparkles were secured in Irish potatoes and placed at intervals down the center of the table.

Following initiation, members played cards and their husbands attended lodge meeting.

Six Thai Bandits Executed By Squad

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Six Thai bandits were executed by a firing squad Thursday in a troop-ringed temple courtyard, only 150 yards away from a market where they killed five persons in a raid last December.

The convicted bandits' leader, Tiger Khao, is still at large.

Officials said Tiger Khao had threatened to retaliate against all officials involved in the execution.

"Operation Stinky Pete" Utilizes Base Strike Team

By TSGT. DONALD D. ANDERSON

Whiteman's active runway and the south end of the ramp were jeopardized by Stinky Pete, a highly potential hazard to personnel and equipment. The invader was equipped with a type of weapon that would be effective for weeks on end with whatever it came into contact with.

Slowly, inch by inch the strike team advanced with weapons raised trying to gain a vantage point.

This story began on Tuesday, March 15. "Stinky Pete," a skunk, wandered onto the active runway from the brush, strutted up and down, and finally went off into the brush again.

The morning of March 16 the sun rose bright and clear, revealing a dark object on the south end of the ramp. No one paid any attention until the airdrome officer called the control tower to report an animal on the ramp and said that it should be removed. The control tower operator on duty, SSgt. Donald K. Hintz, peered through his field glasses. There was Stinky Pete with his tail up and holding his own. The airdrome officer was circling at a nominal distance.

He stated that he was being very discreet and called for help.

The tower operator proceeded to get help since Pete could have possibly caused an accident due to the reaction of people toward a varmint of this type.

The first to be contacted was security. They made an earnest attempt, but to no avail. The fire station was notified to see if they would like to use a hose on Pete. They were very discreet and uninterested. So "Stinky" was still holding his ground. Alas, the flying safety office was contacted. They took the reins and contacted the veterinarian and within a short time a strike team was on the scene. The strike team was successful in temporarily putting him to sleep and toting him off to the veterinarian.

All is well that ends well in "Operation Stinky Pete."

Best Figure Credited To First Lady

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A designer who has made clothes for the last four First Ladies says Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has the best figure of all and that for her type she is equally as fashionable as the much lauded style peacesetter, Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The designer is Mollie Parnis, the daughter of an immigrant pushcart peddler whose name became a household word when Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower dressed almost exclusively in Parnis-labeled garments.

Now Mollie is shuttling back and forth to the White House, whipping up Mrs. Johnson's spring wardrobe. She also has designed some for Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Harry S. Truman.

"It's so unfair," protests Mollie, that the present First Lady's fashion image is dim, compared to her predecessor.

"It can't be that Mrs. Kennedy is always right and everyone else is always wrong," argues Mollie.

"Mrs. Johnson has a marvelous style sense, very prophetic. She chooses very good clothes."

Mrs. Kennedy has a tall, big-boned, athletic build, she says, not perfect in her judgment.

Mollie has remained a White House favorite despite changes in administrations because "politics has nothing to do with fashion."

"I never knew any of the First Ladies until they were already in the White House," she says.

They had been buying her clothes long before they had prestigeous closets to hang them in, she explains. Finding it impossible to shop when they became First Ladies, they simply summoned the label names in their favorite garments. And very often up came Mollie.

Parnis designs have particular appeal to Washington women, Mollie says, because, "they are not too far out, not too far in. They are contemporary without being knacky, or wacky."

VIET VIGILANCE—The militant woman is Nguyen Thi Hang, a member of North Viet Nam's self-defense troops and a sure shot. According to the Communist sources which released this photograph, she is already credited with downing two planes from South Viet Nam.

Goldwater Services Active Duty Stint

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Barry Goldwater, former Arizona senator and Republican candidate for president in 1964, toured this space center as an Air Force major general Thursday.

Goldwater, an Air Force reserve officer, was here as part of a two-week active duty stint.

Many Littles Make Mickles

You know what a mickle is?

A long time has passed since we last saw or heard that word mickle. It means a great amount or sum, like in quotations such as "many a little makes a much," "many a little by little and little maketh a mickle," or "many little things will make a heap."

Indeed, trifles are so important. When added together they can, for instance, cause lost customers to any kind of enterprise particularly the retail business.

Consider little things like management and employee indifference or lack of service. Sixty-eight out of every 100 customers are lost because of the deficiencies mentioned, according to a survey conducted by the Canadian Manufacturer's Association.

Call this and the following comments redundancy, tautology or what not, the conditions by which customers are lost persist in business everywhere. Older personnel may say they know all about the subject and resent reemphasis of it. But it must be remembered that every day and every week younger persons are brought into the employment field to serve the public.

Hence the same subject, at least for benefit of the newcomers, may be repeated in different words because it must be stressed that customer service is of the highest importance . . . . . without customers, there can be no jobs. Moreover, personal performance of every employe—from the top down—is directly related to customer service and personal security.

That's the way a trucking concern—the Ringsby System—lays it on the line. It warrants repetition.

Any company is headed for trouble unless every employe cultivates a healthy respectful attitude toward customers. Nothing is more vital to business than employee attitude: it shows up in little things—the way a letter is typed, whether a shipment is delivered complete or not, the way it is loaded to prevent damage enroute, the way a telephone is answered, the tone of voice over the counter, the manner in which complaints are processed and mistakes corrected.

An employer or employee can do hundreds of little things to irritate and drive away customers.

Close attention to minimizing these annoyances and business repellents will keep them from becoming mickles.

Gee Whiz Mobility

This country may not be able to act as the world's policeman, but it's definitely improving its ability to get the cops on the beat when they're needed.

According to Gen. Howell M. Estes Jr., commander of the Military Airlift Command (successor to MATS, the Military Air Transport Service), we are approaching the day when an entire Army division can be airlifted to any place in the world in one week.

A typical division consists of 21,000 troops and 35,000 tons of equipment.

At present, a full month is required to do the job. New Starlifter jet squadrons planned to be operational in 1969 will reduce that to 24 days.

When the huge Lockheed C-5A transport begins arriving in 1971, the airlift time will be cut to 15 days. And when the Air Force has a full six squadrons of these planes, plus the Starlifters, it will be halved to seven days.

This is as far into the future as the general prognosticates. Progress is not going to stand still after 1971, however. It is conceivable that by the end of the century there will be great troop-carrying ballistic missiles capable of cutting the airlift time to a matter of hours, with most of it spent just getting on and off the things.

Hopefully, maybe by that time it won't be necessary.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Jack Reuter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reuter, 122½ East Third street, a member of the Missouri National Guard at Fort Jackson, S. C., has been appointed to the rank of a sergeant. Jack, a reporter on the Sedalia Capital, obtained a leave of absence to serve in the army by joining the National Guard in order to leave with Sedalians in the 128th Field Artillery.

FORTY YEARS AGO

In 1883, T. B. Anderson, a jeweler, established the first telephone company in Sedalia with 15 subscribers. That number has grown until today the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., of Sedalia, under the management of John W. Stover, has 4,982 telephones. Anderson sold the company to the Missouri and Kansas Telephone Co., the forerunner of Southwestern Bell.

Collegiate Beer Busts Mar Beach

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON, D. C.
March 24, 1966

Dear Boys:

Since you were thinking about going down to Daytona Beach, Fla., for your Easter vacation, and since I had to be there to speak before the Executives Club this week, I thought I would report to you what it's like as a vacation spot.

As you know, Daytona has become the place where about 75,000 college and high school students go for their spring and Easter vacations, and some of the local people are a little overwhelmed at having this youthful army descend on them every year. They are flattered that so many young people want to go there, but they don't like the beer-drinking parties, the destruction of property and, in previous years, the battalions of motorcycles that have charged up and down the beach.

I could easily see why students like to go to Daytona. It is one of the most beautiful beaches in the world, with a hard-packed sand on which a car can drive for miles.

Senator Muskie of Maine was telling me the other day that Maine's 2,600 miles of rocky, undulating shoreline has now been bought up by so many developers and private interests that only 34 miles are still available to the general public. But in Daytona the entire wide beach is available to the public for miles and miles. Naturally the kids enjoy it.

Curtail Beer Drinking?

However, one year they got so disorderly that the city council appointed a committtee of leading citizens to consider what should be done about the annual arrival of the youth army. It was an able committee and they debated very carefully whether they should try to discourage this spring influx, or what.

In the end, they agreed that they should recommend against the sale of beer anywhere along the beach. They concluded that these were good kids, who should not be discouraged from enjoying one of the great beaches of the United States, but that beer was the chief reason for misbehavior, wild parties, and promiscuity.

So far, no action has been taken on this recommendation.

I talked to quite a few people about this question, and they generally agreed that only a small percentage of the youngsters get drunk, sleep six in a motel room, stage wild parties on the beach at night or cause trouble. The great majority are well behaved. But also it's a fact that various underworld figures come to town just for the spring vacation period. So you face some problems and pitfalls in going to Daytona.

However, you have to learn to face problems and pitfalls in this life wherever you are and whatever you do. No boy or girl can go through life wrapped up in cotton wool.

Looking back on my own vacation days, I confess that I was always so anxious to get home that I never wanted to go anyplace else, even if I had the money—which I didn't.

When spring vacation came around up at Exeter, I never had the $25 it took for carfare back to Philadelphia. So I stayed and studied and watched the snow melt and the spring come to New Hampshire, which was quite a sight. Most students wouldn't have dreamed about going to Florida in those days.

Home vs Florida

Of course, things have changed since then. The automobile has made it easier and cheaper to get to Florida. But there is one thing that hasn't changed — the importance of a boy's home.

As you know, I am the president of Big Brothers in the District of Columbia which tries to combat juvenile delinquency. And all the social studies show that boys stay out of trouble when they have a real home.

They may live in a poor neighborhood, even in the slums. They may have no money at all, and few clothes to wear. But if they have a strong and devoted mother and father, if they have love and affection and all that goes with a home, they are likely to stay out of trouble.

Some mothers who are divorced have an especially hard time, and one of the greatest stories of this is told by Dick Gregory in his book, "Nigger," of how his mother in Chicago struggled to bring up her children on almost no money.

Of course, some boys and girls who do have homes don't see much of their parents. They are busy with other things. And I suspect the chief reason why about 75,000 students descend on Daytona Beach in the spring is that their parents are negligent, or busy, or don't realize the importance the family plays in their children's lives.

So, beautiful as the beach is at Daytona, it can't be as beautiful as home. So I hope you'll not forget that you are luckier than a lot of other kids in having a home.

Lots of Love,
From Your Grandfather

We the Women

Make Him Take Notice

By RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Every time I get a letter from a wife who complains that her husband doesn't appreciate her or pay her compliments, I wonder why she is complaining instead of going in for a little self-promotion.

Millett

If a husband never brags of his wife's cooking then she should tell him before he sits down to dinner that she has a special treat in store for him. With the proper build-up, even a silent husband will be made aware that a compliment is expected.

If a husband never tells his wife how pretty she looks; she shouldn't hesitate to repeat to him the compliments she receives from others. He's bound to notice her new hairdo if she tells him how much everyone likes it.

If a husband is too blind to notice that his wife has worked all day long getting the house in shining order and asks, "What have you been doing all day?" she ought to say, "Come and let me show you," instead of fuming inwardly.

If the husband of a working wife treats her job lightly, she ought to let him know that her boss thinks he couldn't get along without her.

If a husband talks as though he thinks running a house and looking after children is a snap, his wife ought to use a little showmanship, taking off for a weekend and leaving him to cope with it all. By the end of the weekend she'll be appreciated.

If a husband isn't aware that his wife is an excellent manager, she ought to call attention to the clever ways in which she stretches one dollar into two.

Any wife can make a husband who takes her for granted sit up and take notice of her if she subtly — or not so subtly—calls attention to her admirable qualities. And that's exactly what most clever wives do.

Springtime Is Hope

Springtime with hope is filled—
Hope the spring flowers don't get killed,
Brought to life by nice warm weather
Makes us always wonder whether
We should be glad they are here
Or wish they weren't just for fear,
Nippy days may lie ahead
And we'll find them brown and dead
Tender leaves and buds that grow
Even in the springtime snow.
Yes, I know there could be frost
But I've got my fingers crossed,
'Stead of cold and gloomy days
Are the leaves on trees afraid
To come out and give us shade,
Gay spring flowers are getting bold
With buds ready to unfold
It's been years since we have seen
Early Spring, all nice and green,
And I just can't see a reason
Not to have a long warm season
Filled with many sunny hours
Interspersed with April showers—
I keep hearing people say
"Predictions are for frost in May"
All the time that I'm enjoying
This spring weather—that's annoying—
Almost scared to write this verse
'Cause predictions just get worse
Before it gets in print you know
Folks could drum up frost and snow.

East Punishes Greedy South

By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand became a problem for East only because the game was match point duplicate. In rubber bridge South would have let his partner play six diamonds and there would have been no defense against that contract.

	NORTH (D) 26 ♠ 2 ♥ A J 10 ♦ A K Q 8 4 ♣ A 9 8 7
WEST ♠ 9 8 7 5 4 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 7 3 ♣ 10 5 4 2		EAST ♠ A J 10 3 ♥ 7 6 4 3 2 ♦ 10 6 ♣ Q J
	SOUTH ♠ K Q 6 ♥ K Q 5 ♦ J 9 5 2 ♣ K 6 3

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
	1 ♦	Pass	2 N.T.
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	4 N.T.	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	6 ♦	Pass	6 N.T.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ 9.

In an effort to play six no-trump for a top score South went from six diamonds to six no-trump and was properly punished for his greed when East made a brilliant third-hand-low play to set him.

East went into a long huddle after his partner's spade opening. The automatic play would be to take his ace but he could count 12 sure tricks for declarer if he made that play. South had shown 13-15 points for his two no-trump call and East was looking at 26 points between his own hand and dummy. Therefore the only face card West could hold would be the jack of diamonds. That card would be worthless because South had shown at least three diamonds by his three diamond call. Hence, if East rose with the ace of spades declarer would have two spades, three hearts, five diamonds and two clubs for a total of 12.

Could South run off all 13 tricks if East ducked that first spade? He sure could. It all depended on who held the ten of clubs. Give South the ten of clubs and he could pick up East's queen and jack and make four club tricks.

Eventually East decided that he would get almost nothing if South made six no-trump but a top score if he beat the contract. Then he ducked the spade and got his top score.

FINDING THE WAY

Friendly, but Few Friends

By RALPH W. LOWE, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A young Japanese girl lived in our home for almost a year. Toward the end of that experience she was interviewed by a local television station. To the question, "Have you found Americans friendly?" she replied, "Friendly, yes, but you make few friends."

That surprising answer underscored our common need for meaningful brotherhood. So much has been written, so much has been said, and yet so much needs to be done, so normally one would hardly know that it exists.

Laws help. The erection of a legal structure enables our civilization to build an edifice in which all men can find the freedom to work, to live and to give expression to their abilities.

Climate helps. The environment of friendliness is not the total answer but it does give the air and light which permits the plant to grow. It is always shocking to discover that so many who think of themselves as friendly have unwittingly tolerated or fostered an unfriendly atmosphere.

The lack of communication that exists among so many groups becomes the seedbed of violence and the ugliness that engulfs. We are easily shocked at the crude walls built by the Communists in Berlin; we tolerate too easily the walls which exist in our own cities. To overcome the hesitancy and timidity of so many there must be a favorable climate.

Personal initiative helps. The friendship between one human being and another, the person-to-person meetings between citizens and the actual understanding of what it is that makes us tick, aid in sparking the personal initiative.

Beyond all of this, it is necessary to simply ask what we are after. Perhaps we lose this sense of a goal because we lose the sense of wonder from our lives. Cities have a way of bleeding wonder from the soul. It is this sense of wonder which permits the adventure, helping the individual to see over the edge of hopelessness to the possibility of a new relationship.

"The brotherhood is not by blood certainly.
brothers by speech by saying so:
lived and are hurt for it."

Archibald MacLeish wrote that and we must live it. The pressures toward brotherhood are too often nudged by fears that pressure in these days should come from the new consideration of love and for the wonder of what might happen if we took the additional step. For we are so friendly, but so few of us are friends.

Q's and A's On Tax Matters

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I made less than $10,000 last year, including interest on a savings account. Will I be able to use the short form when I file?

A—Assuming you are otherwise qualified, you can use the card form 1040A if all but $200 or less of your income consisted of wages reported on withholding statements and the remainder consisted of either wages not reported on withholding statements, dividends or interest.

If any of your income came from a capital gain, for example, you could not use the short form.

Q—What do you have to do to be able to claim someone as a dependent? I support my mother's brother but I've been told that I can't claim him since he's not a member of my household.

A—Since your uncle is one of the blood relations listed in the law, he need not be a member of your household to qualify as a dependent. You must meet the other requirements, too, however. They are the support test, gross income test, citizenship or resident test, and the joint return test. See the 1040 instructions for explanation.

Q—Does a common law marriage entitle you to file a joint return?

A—If a couple is living together in a common law marriage recognized by the state in which it was entered into, a joint return may be filed.

Q—Is there any limit on what you can deduct per week for sick pay?

A—Yes, there is. After the 30-day waiting period the maximum is $100 a week. Details on the sick-pay exclusion for the first 30 days are given in the 1040 instructions.

Q—Some years back I had some medical expenses that I was able to deduct on my return. Then I could only deduct that amount that exceeded a percentage of my income. Does this still apply?

A—Yes, this limitation still applies for those under 65 years of age. Only medical expenses exceeding 3 percent of adjusted gross income may be deducted when you itemize. Medicine and drug expense must exceed 1 per cent of adjusted gross income before inclusion in medical expense for the 3 per cent reduction. For those 65 and over and their spouses, all medical, medicine, and drug expenses that qualify may be totally deducted.

Q—How should I handle severance pay? Can I spread it out over several years?

A—Income is taxable in the year it is received. However, if the severance pay boosted your income by more than one-third what it normally is then the income averaging provisions of the law may help you. Ask for Schedule G of Form 1040 at any IRS office to get full details on this.

Q—We recently bought a house and have rented it out. What expenses can we charge against the rental income we receive?

A—Repairs and maintenance costs, such as painting, which are not permanent improvements and do not add to the value of the property may be charged against rental income. Expenditures that tend to increase the value of the property should be capitalized. Other expenses, such as interest, taxes, insurance, depreciation—and utilities, if you pay for them—are also deductible.

McNamara Outlines Vietnam Questions

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee this month, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara listed 10 questions on Vietnam and then proceeded to provide the answers.

The questions and excerpted answers are as follows:

Q. What is the true nature of the conflict in South Vietnam?

A. When it became clear in the late 1950s . . . that South Vietnam could and would develop as a viable political and economic entity . . . Hanoi directed its agents in the South to begin a program of terror and sabotage designed to destroy the developing allegiance of the people of South Vietnam to their government. Hanoi's "war of national liberation" began. . . .

North Vietnam in 1960 undertook two new important programs that came to dominate the second chapter in its program of aggression against South Vietnam. . . .

First, Hanoi began to infiltrate into the South thousands of trained and expert military and other leadership personnel, drawing first on many of the 90,000 Southerners who had fought against the French and had been ordered to North Vietnam by the Communist leadership in 1954. . . .

Second, in September 1960, North Vietnam's Communist Party directed the formation in the South of a "front organization" that would remain under the Party's control but be used to draw together any political groupings in South Vietnam that would oppose the government there. . . . Far from being a civil war, the conflict in Vietnam is a direct and flagrant aggression by the North against our treaty ally, South Vietnam.

Q. How long will the war last and what reason do we have to believe that we can win?

A. We win if North Vietnam leaves South Vietnam alone. . . . No answer framed in terms of years or months can have validity because so much will depend on North Vietnam's estimate of our determination and of the determination of the people of South Vietnam to sustain the integrated military, political and economic programs that are essential to success. . . .

Our existing and planned American military and economic strength, both within South Vietnam and elsewhere, is clearly sufficient to achieve the objectives I have described.

Q. How many more troops will be required?

A. No specific authoritative response can be given. . . . Deployments of American and free world forces . . . have been in direct response to the step-up in the military activity by Hanoi and by the Viet Cong. We believe there exists a ceiling—an upper range—above which the Viet Cong and North Vietnam cannot g e n e r a t e additional forces and cannot adequately supply their forces in South Vietnam. . . .

We estimate that North Vietnam has the capability to generate and infiltrate up to 4,500 combat troops monthly and that the Viet Cong have the capability of pressing into service some 3,500 South Vietnamese monthly. . . . There could be in South Vietnam by the end of 1966 some 155 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese battalions, approximately 50 per cent above the Dec. 31, 1965, level. . . .

We estimate that some 70,000 South Vietnamese troops will be added by the end of 1966, making a total of about 670,000. U.S. forces there now total about 670,000. U.S. forces there now total about 215,000 men. I cannot say at this time precisely how many additional American forces will be deployed.

Q. Shouldn't we limit our troop commitment to the present level and adopt the enclave strategy?

A. Should the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong deploy added forces, as they are now doing, it simply would not be prudent for us to stand idly by while their strength grows. . . . More importantly, perhaps . . . our ability to persuade (the Communist North Vietnamese) would decrease markedly. . . .

An enclave strategy would sacrifice the greatest advantages . . . mobility and firepower . . . that our force presently have. . . . Large parts of the countryside, and the people residing there, would be openly written off and turned over to the enemy.

Q. Why are we not using our full air and sea power to bomb the Hanoi regime into submission?

A. Our military actions in South Vietnam are designed to defeat the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces in their attempt to subvert and take over by force the people and the government of South Vietnam. . . . Bombing aimed at the destruction of the North Vietnamese nation would carry with it very significant risks of enlarging the war in Southeast Asia.

Q .Are our troops in South Vietnam handicapped by shortages of equipment?

A. The answer is no. . . . No shortages have impeded our combat operations . . . or affected the morale or welfare of our men.

Q. Are we not facing in Vietnam an unlimited, open-ended military commitment to a major land war in Asia?

A. I do not believe we are facing in Vietnam an unlimited, open-ended commitment to a major land war in Asia if we keep our objectives limited and persistently make clear to all concerned—friend, foe and neutral alike — that our objectives are limited.

The risk of a major land war in Asia would decrease significantly if our military strategy in Vietnam were such as to threaten the destruction of the North Vietnamese regime or the occupation of its territory.

Q. Are we not facing an increasing risk of war with China?

A. It would be irresponsible for me to say that we run so risk. . . . That risk was created by our treaty commitments. . . .

No efforts have been spared—and none will be spared—in direct and in indirect diplomacy, in public and in private to communicate to the leaders of Communist China that America's limited objectives pose no threat to them. Our words in this matter are loud, clear and sincere. We urge the leaders of China to listen and understand.

Q. Do not our political commitments in Southeast Asia and elsewhere exceed our economic ability to support them?

A. At no time since World War II, indeed never before in history, has the United States been in better economic position to fulfill its commitments abroad.

Mother Excused From Jury Duty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The prospective juror eyed the prosecutor, the prosecutor responded in kind, did a double take, and the juror was no longer even prospective.

"Oh, my gosh!" exclaimed May Reichmann, "that's my son."

"Hello, mother," said Deputy Dist. Atty. Joseph Reichmann, who was preparing for a robbery-narcotics trial.

Judge James H. Dansby excused Mrs. Reichmann Thursday.

"I don't really mind, but I've been excused from two juries already, soon as I told them who my son is," she said.

Question Over Growth Of Demands

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The big question facing the government, business and the stock market—and the sometimes forgotten consumer—is whether the demands of an affluent society are growing faster than the supplies turned out by booming industrial activity.

That demand is rising for many goods is evident. That supplies of some goods and materials are short and surpluses of others beginning to disappear also is widely noted.

The result shows up in the prices in good stores, in the cost of raw materials that factories need, and in lengthening time for deliveries.

That there is competition between military and civilian industrial projects for short-supply commodities and highly skilled workers is becoming daily more visible. This is expected to increase.

But the big question is the over-all picture. It is not just the particular problem in some goods, some factories. It is how close to the ceiling of production the economy is coming. And it is whether the expansion of production facilities can come quickly enough to keep up with growing demands.

And on the answer to that general question will depend, in large degree, what the government may do about taxes and about more formal price and wage controls than the persuasion method now practiced.

An affluent society seems unlikely to curb its appetite for goods and services unless brakes are applied. These could be price increases too high to make goods and services attractive. Or they could come in the form of tighter money. This would make borrowing to buy more expensive and harder to accomplish.

Or the federal government might move to make society a little less affluent. This could come in the form of still higher taxes.

Already tax bills have climbed. Social Security is taking more from paychecks. Higher withholding schedules will take more of some checks after May 1.

At the supply end there are questions, too. Industrial production is still climbing. So is the nation's total output of goods and services. The federal government is tapping some of its stockpile of strategic materials to relieve shortages or hold down price increases.

What happens in Viet Nam will play an important role in determining whether demand grows too much faster than supply and thus sets up the need for a curb on an affluent society.

Right now, the administration holds it's still in the question stage. The stock market has been trying to guess the answer. So have many business leaders. Consumers mostly seem to go right along with little visible reaction except a spirit of resignation.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

By ALLEN GARVIN

Sky-Hiking Student Dave Kamrar, 23, a San Mateo, Calif., student at the University of Kansas, has solved the problem of commuting between home and campus. He sky-hikes—thumbing free hops at private airport runways from pilots going his way. To date, he has hopped on more than 40 planes, logged 17,000 miles, and free-loaded about $11,000 worth of air transportation. The K.U. track star says, "One of my goals is to hitchhike on corporate planes around the world." He is planning to skybum through Mexico this summer.

Killing the Green-Eyed Monster A Los Angeles psychiatrist has been having some success in killing that green-eyed monster—jealousy—in his patients. His weapon is phenothiazine drugs that are administered in large doses at first, then tapered off as the patient becomes less jealous of spouse or friend. After five years of testing, Dr. Horace Mooney makes no brash claims about his treatment. But he does insist that he has seen jealousy diminish and even disappear after repeated dosage to troubled patients.

Charge of the Light-Fingered Brigade Panty raids and sit-ins aren't what worry college officials most. Student thievery in college book stores is the big problem. Shoplifting has become a collegiate craze. In three weeks, 27 boys were caught red-handed in the Yale book store alone. The shop loses $90,000 a year to student heisters. And the trend is growing. Wildest case: a divinity-school graduate student caught lifting a Bible without paying for it!

Redford's Retreat Red-haired, red-hot Robert Redford has recently burst onto the cinema scene starring in three just-released films—"Inside Daisy Clover," "The Chase," and "This Property Is Condemned." A determined individualist, the 28-year-old Redford refuses, however, to heed agents' pleas to pile up more picture credits. Instead, with his own hands he built a mountain home 8,000 feet up in the Utah peaks and 45 miles from the nearest town. He holes up there with his family when the show-business pace gets too swift.

Dr. Mead's Stick Trick A four-foot-long walking stick is anthropologist Margaret Mead's most constant prop; she has one with her always. Weary of casts and wheel chairs after her fourth broken ankle in 1960, Dr. Mead began looking for firmer foundations, eliminated crutches and canes in favor of a stick, now has three of them. Recommending that more Americans use sticks, she says, "I can hang my handbag and briefcase on it, knock things off high shelves, open transoms, cope with recalcitrant windows. It's an extension of my right arm."

Flaming Liz Elizabeth Taylor will be "burned to death" by her husband in September when she plays three performances of the opera, "Joan of Arc at the Stake," in London and New York. Richard Burton will play the French prosecutor. The roles are non-singing ones with the Metropolitan Opera orchestra providing a musical background. Opera is just about the only show-business medium the two haven't cracked, so they're eager to give that art form a go.

Town Without Men Schilling Manor, south of Salina, Kan., is a typical suburban community—except that no men live there. Run by the Department of Defense, it is an experimental town for the waiting wives and children of servicemen fighting overseas. Dependents cannot remain in military-base housing after their men have been shipped abroad. Schilling Manor is one answer to the problem of where they can move. About 200 families are now living there—and waiting, waiting, waiting. It's no town for telegrams.

"Soldiers of Fortune, Attention!" That's the beginning of a Universal Pictures ad that ran in many U.S. newspapers. The studio is recruiting former French Foreign Legionnaires as extras for a remake of the film, "Beau Geste." Estimates are that 500 Yanks now in the U.S. once served in the Legion. The ads already have turned up 68 former Legionnaires in the Los Angeles area alone. They include a lawyer, a carpenter, an engineer, an art-gallery owner, a waiter, a priest, a restaurateur, a food-company executive, a management consultant, and two hostelers.

Red's Stogies When he feels his team has a game won, Red Auerbach, who is retiring as the Boston Celtics coach, lights up a cigar on the bench. No opponent has ever rallied to defeat the Celtics once Red's stogie has been lit. Red confesses that the stogie act began as a form of revenge. "The league was picking on me, and I tried to think of something that would aggravate the higher-ups. One day I lit up a cigar. Afterward I got a little note saying, 'It doesn't look good for you to be smoking cigars on the bench.' So I told them that when the other coaches stopped smoking cigarettes I'd put down my cigar." A total no-smoking ban, which would have driven other coaches nuts, was never enforced.

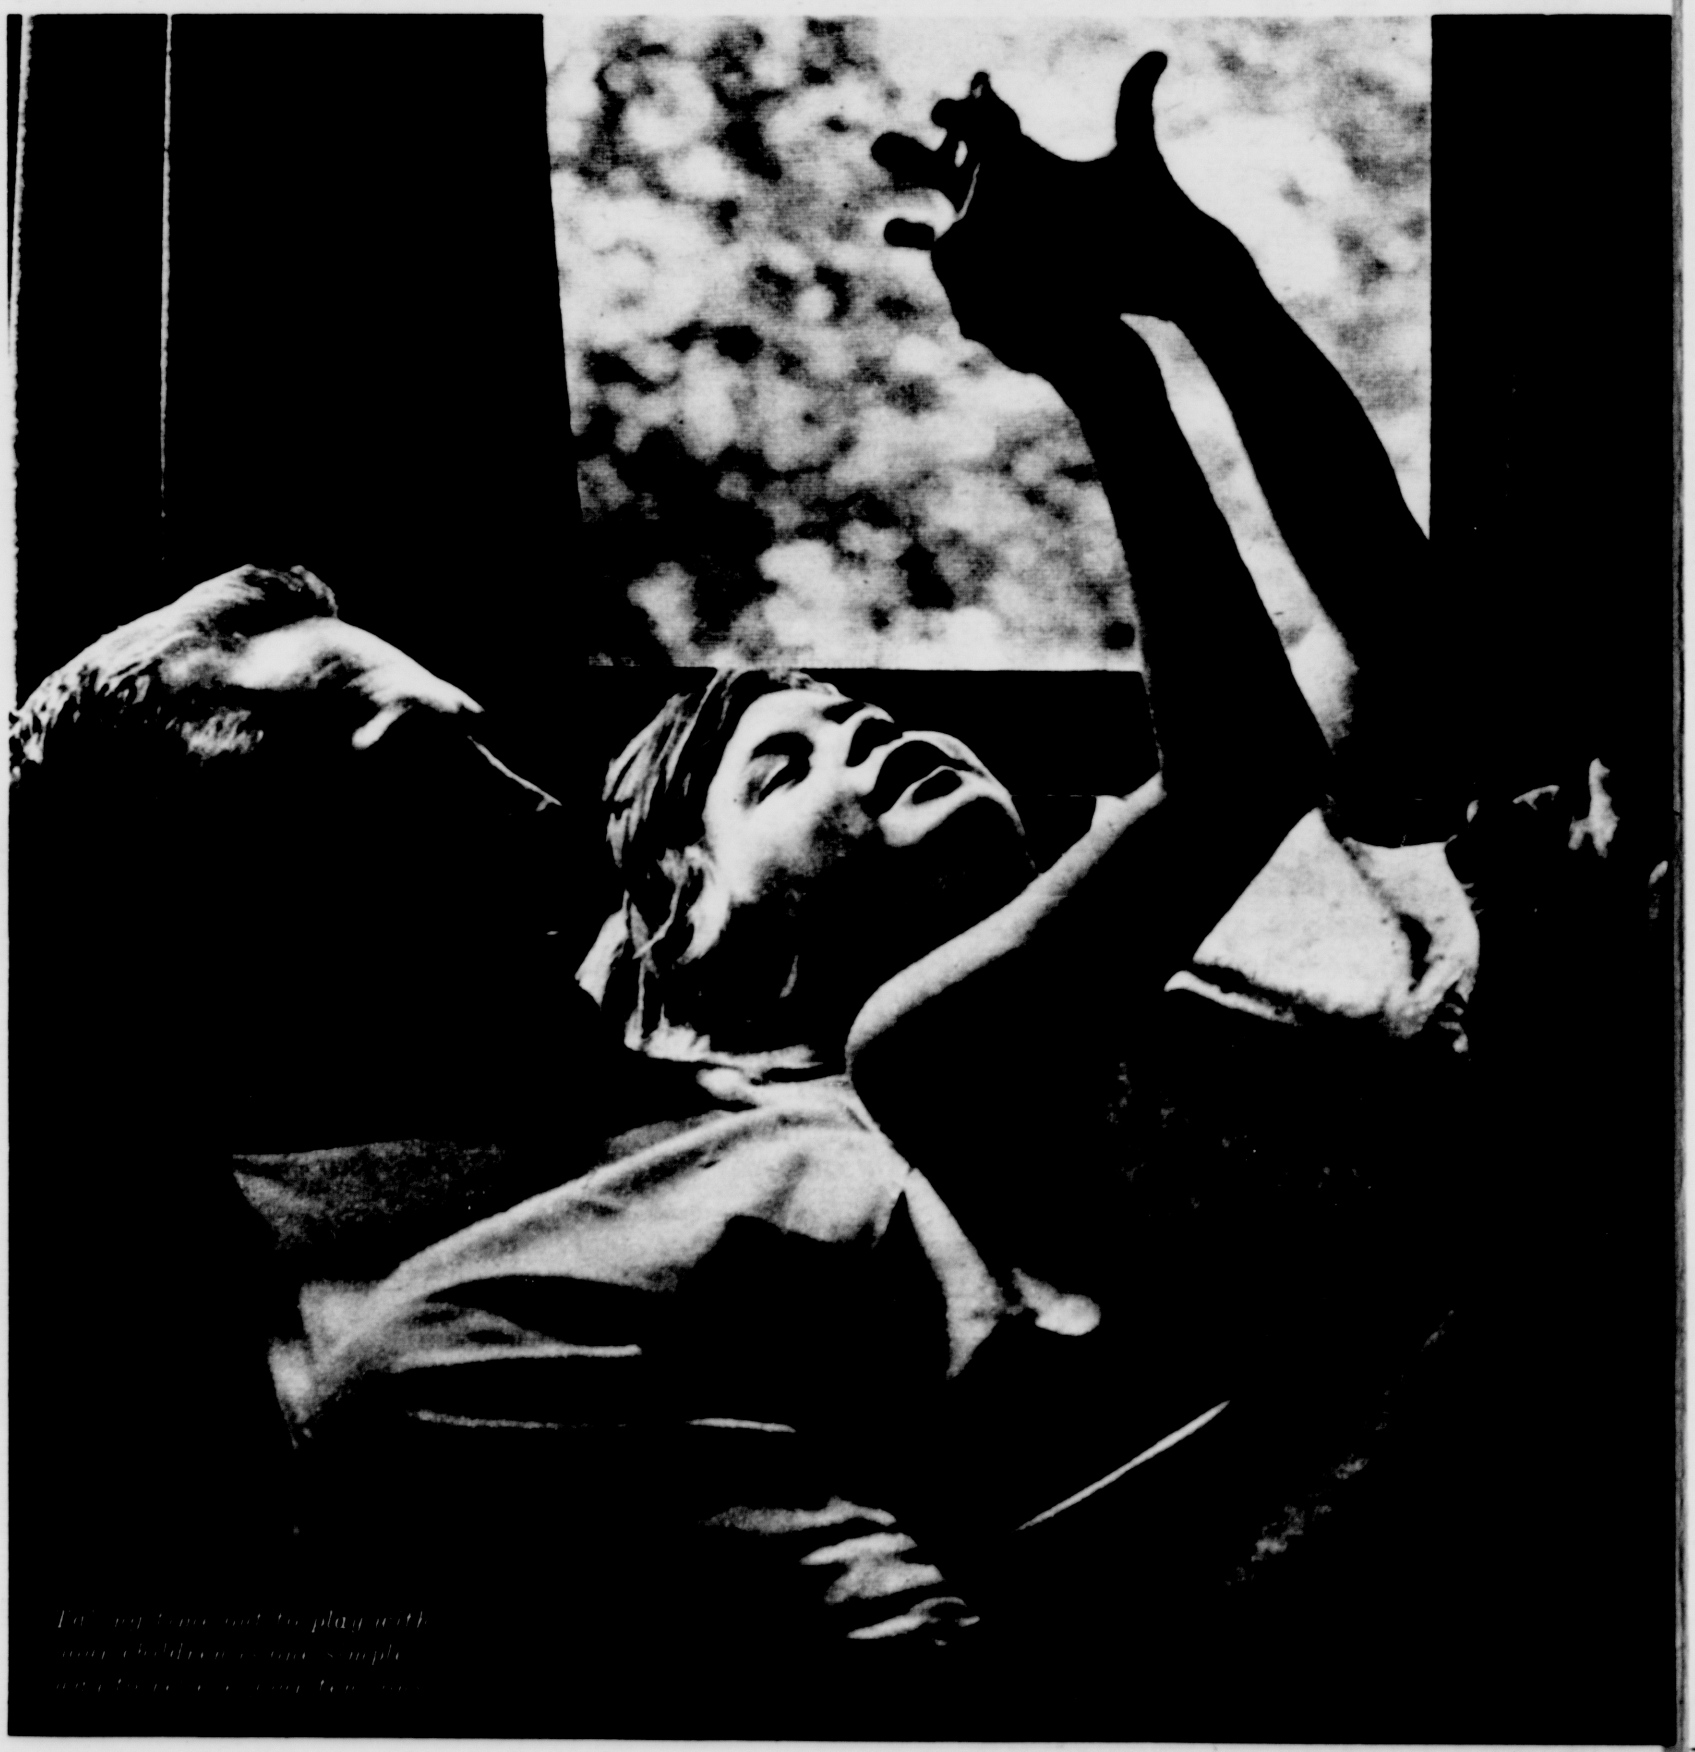
10 WAYS TO BEAT TENSION

Anyone can make use of these special techniques developed by doctors and business executives to fight the jitters

By THEODORE IRWIN



WHEN PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson feels tense about his job, he is apt to take one of his dogs for a leisurely walk around the White House grounds.

Like the President, all of us are subject to tensions. To ease our jittery nerves, we Americans each year consume $245 million worth of tranquilizers, $172 million in sleeping pills, and 215 million gallons of hard liquor!

How can you avoid or combat tensions that devastate your mental and physical health? I believe I've found some answers. While researching for my book, What Executives Should Know about Tensions, I talked with leading industrial psychiatrists and business executives. I asked them what techniques they used to ease tension.

Most of the "tension breakers" they recommended can be used by anyone.

First, understand that nervous tension is the body's reaction to stress. We all need some normal, healthy tensions to stay alive. But unpleasant, excessive, and persistent tension can be damaging when your overmobilized body refuses to return to normal.

"Emotional pressures in themselves play a part in the breakdown of the circulatory mechanism," says Dr. Francis J. Braceland, psychiatrist-in-chief at the Institute for Living in Hartford, Conn. "Tension can also lead to compulsive eating and obesity or create imbalance which may lead to such psychosomatic disorders as stomach ulcers, high blood pressure, and colitis."

To keep healthy and happy, you obviously must ward off corrosive jitters or learn to master them. How? Here are 10 techniques for tension breaking:

1. Organize the Pressure. At home or at work, take time to "case" your tasks instead of rushing off in a dozen different directions at once.

"Take one thing at a time," advises Dr. Mottram Torre of New Orleans, former psychiatric consultant for the United Nations and the World Health Organization. "Under tension, your work load may seem unbearable. You may feel hopelessly trapped. But pick a few of the most urgent tasks—first, those you think are easiest—and pitch into them one by one.

"As you complete each task, your tension will ease up. This device will help pull you out of your breakneck pace—that depressing feeling of being overworked."

2. Check the Panic Button. You may find your own attitudes are adding fuel to the flame. Is the urgency as great as it seems? One form of checking the panic button is to face realities.

Dr. Harry J. Johnson, president of the Life Extension Foundation, relates this case of a keyed-up housewife. "Often," he recalls, "she would wander through her house during the night unable to sleep. She was worried about her teenage son's lack of progress. He seemed more interested in mechanics than in preparing for a law career, as she wanted.

"Once she faced up to the fact that law would be better off if her son headed for mechanical engineering, her tension vanished."

3. Take a Breather. Several desk-bound executives told me they stand up every half hour or so and take a long, deep breath, then exhale slowly. This deep-breathing technique forces your muscles to relax.

Other techniques: s-t-r-e-t-c-h hard, roll your shoulders, windmill your arms, flop your hands vigorously at the wrists. Wrinkle your brow, then unfrown. Yawn, waggle your jaws, chew on air with your mouth open.

Take a breather, particularly when inability to make a decision builds up tension. Says Dr. Leslie K. Gulton, president and board chairman of Gulton Industries, Inc.:

"It's vital to be in a proper frame of mind when you do serious thinking. So sleep on a decision. When you're well rested, the difficult problem will probably look simple. I believe that while we are asleep the subconscious is reviewing the question and putting the facts in order.

"A long rest isn't absolutely essential. I've developed the ability to take a cat nap when I need a breather. I can even do this standing in an elevator until it reaches my floor. Many men are capable of enjoying this refresher—but not enough try."

4. Escape for a While. Don't just stay and suffer. Dr. William Menninger, president of the famous Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., prescribes vacations. "The man who boasts he hasn't had a vacation in five years," says Dr. Menninger, "betrays poor judgment rather than virtue.

"A kind of vacation is spending time on an avocation or enjoying a hobby that gives enrichment and provides relaxation."

5. Change Your Routine. For persons with high-pressure jobs and women driven to distraction by unending housework and demanding children, Dr. Robert Turfboer of New Haven, Conn., an industrial psychiatrist and lecturer at Yale Medical School, advocates a change of the daily pattern.

If you work alone, he says, seek company. Even a housewife's phone call to a friend can short-circuit her high tension. Too hectic a social life? Then go alone to a low-tension movie or watch a quiet tv show. At work, try a different restaurant for lunch; walk, instead of ride, to the station.

6. Work It Off. When he is home at the end of a hectic day, a man can pitch into some physical activity like gardening, carpentry, or cleaning out the garage.

"You need a break from your job," contends Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp, president of Winthrop Laboratories and vice president of the National Health Council. "For the great majority of us, the most wholesome relief from tensions is through a regular program of physical exercise.

"After a tension-ridden day, it takes a special effort to go out and exercise. Many times I was secretly sorry I had planned a doubles tennis match at a time when I was already weary. But I have found myself miraculously refreshed after three sets of tennis and a hot shower."

7. Re-examine Your Habits. "Do you gulp your breakfast on the fly (under five minutes)? Bolt your lunch (less than 15 minutes)? Hurry through dinner (no more than a half-hour)?

"Slow down," says Dr. Johnson. "Try getting out of bed in time for a leisurely breakfast. Get off the social merry-go-round. By correcting such tension-producing habits, you'll give your mind and body a chance to unwind."

8. Review and Evaluate. "To maintain good mental health," says Dr. Menninger, "we must take time to review our past and evaluate our present goals, particularly in our family relationships.

"Basic to the reduction of tension-producing situations is learning more about yourself. I do not mean that you should indulge in morbid introspection. I do mean that you should be willing to look at how you relate to other people.

"I suggest that you have a periodic emotional checkup, as you do a physical examination. At least once a year, set aside time to think about where you are going, your priorities, and ambitions.

"For your emotional checkup, you should have a good listener, someone whom you respect and who will have your confidence. This listener may be your spouse, someone in your company, a good friend, your physician, a member of the clergy, or, in time of emotional trouble, perhaps a psychiatrist.

"If I were giving you an emotional checkup, I'd want to know how you're getting along with other people, whom you like and dislike, and why. How do you handle a rough situation—do you lose your temper, get jittery, or become paralyzed? How do you accept frustrations—are you mature enough to have learned that you have to work and wait for most of the things you want?

"The essence of these questions is that you must have the courage to look at yourself. It is only as we have the courage to see how we can handle our own emotions normally and constructively that we shall tend to eliminate some of the sources of tension."

9. Your Family as an Antidote. "For the wage earner oppressed by situations on his job, I am convinced there can be no finer source of tension relief than playing with his children," says John L. Bodette of Detroit, who is an executive vice president of Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

"This can range all the way from wrestling on the floor to skiing, playing ball, or joining them in other sports," he says. "You place yourself in an entirely different atmosphere. You forget everything that might have keyed you up during the day."

10. Do Something for Others. "If you find yourself worrying about yourself all the time," suggests Dr. George S. Stevenson, consultant for the National Association for Mental Health, "try doing something for somebody else."

Church, civic, and other volunteer work will take the steam out of your own tensions. Almost every one of the top-level executives I talked to found after-hours relaxation and satisfaction in such activities as heading up fund-raising drives.

What about short-cut relaxers? Alcohol, in moderate quantity is a surface attempt to relax and can provide tension relief before meals. "But as soon as it is needed, alcohol is all too likely to be harmful," warns Dr. Dana Farnsworth, director of the Harvard University Health Service. "Sedatives such as barbiturates and tranquilizers should not be used except when prescribed by a physician."

In the long run, industrial psychiatrists and business executives agree: we have to learn the art of combating our tensions. ◆

Bringing Up Baby®

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Once baby passes the mid-year mark, each day sees new skills acquired. While ball-of-fire babies are apt to do things a bit faster than take-it-easy babies, most babies do these things at about these ages:

• 6 to 7 months. Eyes and hands co-ordinate. Hands hold securely, explore eagerly. Eyes examine intently. Sitting up starts, rolling over is easy now.

• 8 to 9 months. Creeping comes into its own. Cup feeding usually handled reasonably well. Can switch objects (like Gerber Teething Biscuits) from hand to hand.

• 12 months. Walking and talking may get real tryouts now. Simple instructions can be understood. Simple games like "pat-a-cake" are easily managed.

P. S. Whether or not your baby follows the above pattern doesn't matter. When mind and spirit are ready, he'll do everything.

Sip tips with nutritious leanings. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices are not only especially refreshing but they're ideal for giving baby his vitamin C. One can of any one will meet the daily recommended allowance.

Besides the ever-popular orange juice and apple juice, there are eight great combination juices... delicate delights, morning, noon or night. Orange-Apple, Orange-Apricot, Orange-Pineapple, Pineapple-Grapefruit, Apple-Cherry, Prune-Orange, Mixed Fruit Juice and the new Orange-Apple-Banana Juice.

Start to finish. Since cereals are pretty much a mainstay, from the infant age through the toddler stage, their nutritional value is important. Gerber Baby Cereals are notable for these excellent nutritive benefits: Calories for energy. Iron for its blood-building quality. Important B-vitamins to encourage appetite and help give growth a boost. Gerber® Baby Foods, Box 72, Fremont, Mich.

The Army's Golden Knights— "Guinea Pigs" for Our Paratroopers

New chutes to test? New ways to jump behind enemy lines? Just call on these daredevils of the sky

By JACK RYAN

SERGEANT FIRST CLASS Loy Brydon jumped from the U1A Otter plane at 7,000 feet. On the back of the Army paratrooper was an experimental parachute assembly which drawing-board research indicated would improve the jumper's ability to maneuver while in free fall. Brydon's job was to test the theory in an actual free fall at more than 110 mph.

At 2,000 feet, 30 seconds after exiting, Brydon pulled the oblong metal handle which sent the chute streaming from his pack. There should have been a jolt against his harness as the canopy inflated; instead, Brydon felt only a tug, and his plunge continued.

Brydon looked up to see the nylon barber-poling around the 24 suspension lines running from his pack. The earth's pull ripped half the canopy away, leaving the rest twisted in the lines. On Brydon's chest was a lifesaving reserve chute for emergency use. He yanked at its rip cord. The chute billowed out, streamed past his face, but tangled in the nightmarish mess above his head. The expert parachutist quickly pulled the chute back to him, grabbed the skirt of the canopy, and flipped it out, much like a fisherman casting a net. Only this time, the catch was precious air—with life or death at stake, for Brydon was now only 1,000 feet up and eight seconds from the ground.

There was a sickening sound of ripping material—the chute had torn in two places. Yet it was sufficiently intact to inflate and drop Brydon safely. "I landed with a real smack," the soldier recalls. "I knew I was down, that's for sure."

Brydon (whose wife is the international women's champion parachutist) is a member of the U. S. Army parachute team. Its 42 men and seven officers are known as the Golden Knights, an outfit which combines sport chuting, showmanship, and military research and development in free-fall parachuting.

Your introduction to the Golden Knights at an air show is unforgettable. Their plane hovers 2½ miles overhead. All you see at first is a trail of bright color in the sky from a smoke grenade attached to the jumper's boot. Somebody in the crowd is sure to gasp: "He's out!" The chutist is falling about 120 miles an hour, and the human eye will pick him up after about 30 seconds of free fall. He plummets downward another 35 seconds before his chute snaps open, bright gold and black against the sky. Then, just as you relax, the chute goes limp, and the jumper again hurtles earthward, unimpeded from 3,000 feet.

It's a trick, of course. He has released the risers on one side of the chute, causing it to collapse. Below him the crowd comes to its feet as he cuts himself loose from the collapsed chute and resumes a free fall. Not until he reaches 1,800 feet does he pull the rip cord of a second chute and descend slowly, landing at the audience's feet.

Sport parachuting and air-show demonstrations are only the "show-business" side of the Golden Knights. At home in Fort Bragg, N. C., they serve as "guinea pigs" for new equipment and techniques, which often dramatically change the concepts of parachuting, and have developed and patented several major items. For example, they assisted in the development of the "Para-Commander." With 36 "holes" in its canopy, it looks like a moth-eaten parachute to a layman, but the vents actually allow the jumper to steer himself with almost the amount of control a pilot has over his plane. Right now the Golden Knights are designing canvas wings to give them greater sustained flight as well as hand-held jet guns to provide greater maneuverability.

The team also developed the "Paradelay" technique of jumping for infiltration behind enemy lines in time of war. Ordinarily, paratrooper chutes are deployed while exiting from a plane, and the jumpers descend virtually straight down. Enemy radar experts can pick up the billowing chutes easily and arrange a hot reception for the would-be infiltrators. In Paradelay, jumpers exit at 30,000 feet, arching their free-falling bodies in the manner of a ski jumper and can "track" horizontally one foot for every two feet downward. While the plane veers one way, the troopers aim their bodies in another direction. They fall 26,000 feet before opening their chutes. While enemy radar detects a lone plane (a common occurrence), it misses the jumpers. Even if the enemy suspects infiltrators, he has only a general idea where they may have landed since Paradelay permits the jumpers to maneuver themselves some three miles in any direction from the point where they exited.

Despite the seeming hazards of their job, the Golden Knights have never suffered a fatality—and have had remarkably few injuries. This is probably because no paratrooper is accepted into the elite group unless he has already made at least 200 free falls (the average Knight has more than 650 jumps).

Still, things happen up there, and only skill and coolness prevent tragedy. Sergeant First Class Gerry Bourquin, for instance, was testing a new chute which deployed in such a flapping tangle that the friction of the fabric rubbing together in the rushing air melted the canopy. Bourquin's reserve chute saved the day: when he later inspected the experimental chute, he found nothing but a big glob of fused synthetic fabric.

His comment was obvious for the situation: "Well, back to the drawing board." ◆

367 TEST CASES PROVE
"INSTANT EXERCISE" WORKS!

Get the slimmer, healthier body you want with this fabulous new minute-a-day static short-cut... the most popular exercises ever developed in the U.S.

Now it's "instant exercise!" People everywhere are discovering that just one of Dr. Salls' almost effortless 6-second exercises helps shape you up better than 24 push-ups a day. And why bother to diet pounds off your waist when you can slim down inches in days with his 6-second muscle magic? Or, why torture yourself in a gym when one of his exercises can double strength with surprising speed?

Now you can tone up and trim down in record time... without moving a muscle, without "working out" more than 1 minute a day. Doctors, nurses, athletes, insurance firms, citizens coast to coast are turning to the amazingly simple isometric exercises developed by Alabama Doctor of Education, fitness expert and former coach, Donald J. Salls. The Navy and Marines are adopting this type of exercise, too. Even the astronauts will use them!

Why? Simply because isometric exercises, better known to so many as Dr. Salls' "Static Exercises," really do work. In fact, they're so effective fewer than 1% of the thousands who have purchased a set under his personal guarantee have asked for their money back. Less than 1%!

Spectacular results have prompted skeptics to ask for special effectiveness studies under professional supervision. And in test after test it's the same dramatic story:

In one group of 253 girls, over 96% improved in physical fitness and over 50% had marked figure improvements... all in just 3 weeks, using Dr. Salls' motionless exercises for 1 minute per day.

Over 92% of another group had waistline improvements, decreases of up to 3¼ inches... thighs, 84%... hips, over 90%. Again in 3 weeks or less!

80% of still another group, measured periodically under the watchful eye of a physician, showed marked measurement improvements in less than 30 days.

A top university had one test group use isometrics for 1 minute daily while another worked on gym equipment for 45 minutes every day. When compared for fitness, the isometric exercisers scored highest in every test!

Here at last is one type of exercise that appeals to car-riding, machine-minded Americans..."weekend athletes," people who hate to exercise or don't have time. Here is the answer for the desk-bound man who wants to look trimmer, more muscular... for the modern woman who knows so well how important a slimmer, more attractive figure can be... for the oldster who seeks to improve fitness, figure and life-span by restoring long-neglected muscles without prolonged exercise.

Each of Dr. Salls' wonderfully simple basic exercises takes 6 seconds. All total just 1 minute per day. Instructions are graded for housewives, executives, teenagers and senior citizens, for superior fitness and prowess in such sports as bowling, swimming, golf. And you can do most of these exercises almost anywhere... at work, waiting for a bus, while shaving. No gadgets are required. There's no extreme exertion, not even heavy breathing!

The revolutionary principle Dr. Salls applies has the impressive support of highly respected educational institutions, leading physiologists, Olympic stars, fashion models, police groups, top pro and college athletes, the President's Council on Physical Fitness. And Time Magazine, Life, Reader's Digest, TV, newspapers, scientific journals have called attention to the exciting concept.

Followers of Dr. Salls' muscle magic report surprising results. For example, the stronger, tighter muscles resulting from his minute-a-day plan can lead quickly to a slimmer figure... even without weight reduction!

Mrs. P. McMorrow of White Plains writes, "I reduced my waist 2 inches, my hips 2 inches — all in 2 weeks, a minute a day, with your exercises."

Jacksonville businessman, J. B. Hammett, states that Dr. Salls' "statics" have allowed him to take 3½ inches off his waistline, trim down to 30½ in a few weeks.

Mrs. E. V. Smith of Madison writes that with Dr. Salls' exercises she's trimmed down her waist from 33½ to 28½, her hips from 43½ to 39½.

Ft. Payne housewife, Mrs. A. Carter, reduced her thighs 1 inch, calves ¾ inch, waist 2 inches in just 2 weeks.

So many users of Dr. Salls' exercises also exclaim: "How much better... more alive, more alert, more youthful... I feel!" But specifically, he offers:

stronger, firmer muscles · slimmer waist, hips, thighs, calves, upper arms and neck · better muscular coordination · stronger back · improved posture.

Results are controlled primarily by the individual's own desires. If a man wants bulging weight-lifter's arms, he simply concentrates more often on certain of Dr. Salls' exercises. If a housewife seeks a more shapely midriff, a few weeks with several of his 6-second workouts is indicated.

Yes, now you can have a stronger, slimmer, healthier body without the strain or boredom of old-fashioned exercises! Dr. Salls will send a complete set of his instructions, in a large, fully illustrated folder, to interested readers who use the coupon on this page. Remember! These exercises are different: just 6 seconds each!

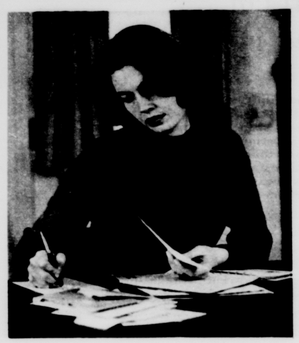
TAX-SAVING TIPS EVERY HOUSEWIFE SHOULD KNOW



Making out the family income-tax form is a kind of bargain hunting—and frequently the best person to do the hunting is the lady of the house

By FLORENCE DONOHUE

Supervisory Editor of "Federal Tax Report," a weekly bulletin from Prentice-Hall, Inc.

WHEN I WAS a Kentucky housewife, it always amazed me that women who were skillful in saving at the supermarket could be so indifferent when it came to shopping for tax bargains.

"Taxes are a husband's responsibility," they would tell me.

I sometimes talked about this to my late husband, who was a lawyer. His feeling was: "They're very foolish. A wife who is concerned about taxes may well save her husband hundreds of dollars a year."

When my husband died, I was left the job of rearing five children—and I soon discovered how important taxes can be in the family budget! This is one reason I went back to school to learn about tax law and eventually become a professional tax analyst.

Here are six things every housewife should know about taxes:

1. One of the most important ways you can help your husband is to keep accurate records of household costs. You never know when he will be called by the local Internal Revenue office to prove, for instance, how much it costs to support a member of your household. In our case, with five children and an aunt living with us, good records were an absolute necessity.

I used a small, inexpensive steel file with folders bearing appropriate labels like "charitable contributions," "medical expenses," and "mortgage payments." I kept records of everything I spent for these items.

After my husband prepared our tax return, I always stapled these documents together (labeling them by year) and kept them on file for at least five years. This is important because it has been found that the taxpayer who loses in nine out of 10 court cases does so because he isn't able to prove what he spent for a deductible item.

2. It is a rare housewife who isn't called upon to donate used clothing to worthy charities. Naturally, most women respond to these requests.

Although many women know that such gifts qualify as charitable deductions, they generally are stumped when it comes to estimating their value. One easy way I discovered is to ask a recognized appraiser for a written appraisal of the property.

Did you take in a family in need of shelter during a flood or disaster? You can get a deduction for out-of-pocket costs, provided you acted at the request of the Red Cross or some other recognized charitable organization. There is even a limited tax deduction for keeping a foreign-exchange student in your home.

Perhaps you drive to a hospital to work on the cancer drive or take the children from your local school to sing to shut-ins? Charitable work like this also entitles you to a deduction for your out-of-pocket automobile costs.

Naturally you need records to prove where you drove and how many miles. You may deduct five cents a mile plus parking fees and tolls as a charitable or medical deduction.

3. Since you are the lady of the house and share responsibilities, let's consider how you and your husband save money. Of course, the best place is in the bank. However, if you have a tidy nest egg there, remember that the tax law favors stock ownership. All savings-account interest is taxable, but by investing in stock, you can get $100 a year in dividends free of tax—and so can your husband.

4. Illness is a trying experience for any family—and often a costly one. Uncle Sam does his best to alleviate the financial stress by allowing a generous deduction for medical costs, but it's up to you to keep a careful record of expenses, big and small. Many deductions—perhaps because they are a little offbeat—escape attention.

For example, home improvements, such as an elevator to accommodate a crippled person or an air conditioner to help an asthmatic, are at least partly deductible if they were made on a doctor's recommendation. Hairpieces and wigs are deductible if they are medically prescribed to improve a patient's mental health.

5. You'll sometimes hear about parents who don't want their teenagers or college-student children to earn more than $600 for fear that the parents will lose the child's dependency exemption. This is a misconception. As long as parents supply more than half a child's support, they're entitled to a dependency exemption for him. This applies to any child under 19—and to older children as long as they are full-time students in a recognized college.

6. Here's a final tax reminder you can offer your husband: the easiest way to get a tax return pulled for a troublesome examination is to put down the wrong taxpayer-identifying number. A computer will quickly label him as a person who failed to file a return. Therefore, make sure your husband's social security number is written down correctly on the return.

Remember: paying taxes is often a form of bargain hunting. It takes a determined and careful shopper to locate the best money savers. ✦ to clean, automatically

The remarkable Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven cleans itself, the racks, even the drip bowls!

How it works. The unretouched "before" photo shows how a Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven looked after we had baked-on meat fats, cherry pie filling and starch at 450° for 2 hours. The unretouched "after" photo shows the same oven after one normal cleaning cycle. High heat—about 900°—has turned even this tough soil into harmless vapor and a trace of ash.

Extra advantages. Not only does the Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven clean itself, it cleans the oven racks and drip bowls as well. This remarkable oven even gets rid of baked-on grease spatters trapped in the corners of oven racks! The entire oven comes cleaner, automatically, than you could hope to get it with tedious hand scrubbing.

Safety features. When it rises above broiling heat, the Frigidaire Electri-clean Oven door locks. It cannot be re-opened until it returns to conventional heat. That's one reason this range meets the Underwriters Laboratories safety requirements. Incidentally, this remarkable range can be installed flush with wooden base cabinets.

Operating costs. What's more, this "big family" oven cleans itself automatically, electrically, for about the cost of a cup of coffee. What a low cost for true luxury!

Price of this range... surprisingly low! In fact you can buy an Electri-clean Range for less money than many ranges without this outstanding feature. See your Frigidaire dealer for his exact price and terms. Also see the different Electri-clean Oven Range models, colors, and features. Outstanding products of General Motors.

I was just thinking...

Egg on My Face

WHILE EGGHEADS were being passed out, somebody stepped on mine.

I don't necessarily believe Welk is more wunnaful than Wagner, but he's a whole lot easier to hum. And I'm forced to confess little Alice in Wonderland makes sense to me and Edward Albee's Tiny Alice none at all.

Among O'Haras, I prefer Scarlett to John. Among artists, you pick Picasso; just leave me Leonardo.

When I'm dancing, I like waltzes, not watusis, and the two-step, not the twist. When I'm dining, I'll eat escarole and you can endure escargot. You have the caviar; I'll crunch the cracker.

I can beam at ballet but not for long. An old soft shoe tickles my toes. If I set out for a concert, I may wind up at a movie and crouch there cursing my mentality but loving every cozy minute, including the popcorn.

Among the avant-garde, I am among those absent. My hair is short and my skirt too long. If there's interpolation or improvisation in music, I don't get the message, and what I know about missiles wouldn't ignite a match.

When I'm shopping, I don't want a shift for myself, and, when it's stockings, I don't like lizard legs unless I have them already and don't know it.

Chocolate pudding tastes every bit as good as baba au rhum, and I like waffles better than crepes suzette. A mink coat may be a status symbol, but not to me or the minks.

I'm ashamed of myself about all this. I hate to confess that I know more about Bela Lugosi than Bela Bartok and that, actuarially, I'm the kind of mathematician who can't even understand what a teller tells him on how to count a bank account.

If I could be like the bumblebee and improve each shining hour, things might not be so hopeless. But no matter what's "in," I'm "out."

Even in college when I enrolled in a "snap" course with almost the entire football squad, they passed and I came close to flunking.

That's how life is for us hopeful Humpty Dumpties.

We're all a little cracked.

Safe Keeping

I hymn my safe deposit box.
It takes two keys before it locks.
I have to sign and be inspected
And very nearly disinfected
Before they let me near the thing.
Alarm bells will, if needed, ring,
And armed guards cry sternly, "Halt!"
If interlopers near the vault.

In view of all these safety measures,
Protecting clients' cherished treasures,
I open up my box with care
To let in slowly light and air,
And clutch it closely for a minute
So none may see how little's in it.

Doctor's Discovery

BATHE AWAY ACHES AND PAINS

in your own bathtub

by Richard Estrin

A LEADING New York Physician has discovered a way to turn an ordinary tub of hot water into a relaxing, soothing, satisfying Mineral Bath.

Imagine what this means to those who suffer the nagging pains and aches that are so often associated with over-exertion and fatigue.

Many who have tried this doctor's discovery give glowing reports of how they now "wash away" much of the agony of knotted muscles and stiff joints right in their own bathtubs — just as though they were bathing at one of the world's famous Mineral Springs. In fact, millions of people who have been travelling to distant Health Spas for pain relief — on the advice of their physicians — may soon be saved this bother and expense. Thanks to this new triumph in medical chemistry, they may find that they can enjoy the often miraculous benefits of true mineral bathing in the snug comfort of their own homes.

Here's how it all came about

A curious doctor was puzzled by the fact that Medical Science has never been able to tell why certain Natural Springs so often gave quick alleviation of physical suffering. He decided to analyze the water of these Springs and find out what Nature put in them to make them different. He discovered that they were rich in certain carbonates, sulphates, iodides and chlorides of Lithium, Potassium, Magnesium, Iron and other medicinal minerals. Could it be, he asked himself, that the secret lies in these minerals? In order to find the answer, he had a chemist compound them into a water-soluble concentrate which patients suffering from chronic aches and pains could use in their baths.

I was one of the many who tried it. For months I had been annoyed by nagging muscular aches and a twinging pain in my elbow. Even though skeptical, I was eager to test this doctor's new formula. I would have tried anything that offered any hope at all of easing my discomfort.

"It is called BATHERAPY," he told me. "You simply add a handful or two to a tub of moderately hot water, then let yourself soak in it for about 20 minutes. Mind you, this won't cure Arthritis or Rheumatism — because there is no cure yet known — but it may give you welcome temporary relief from pain."

I'll always remember that first BATHERAPY bath! I had hardly let myself sink into the tub when something wonderful began to happen. A deep, penetrating warmth seemed to course through my body. It was as though the liquid mineral heat were actually massaging my frayed and tortured nerves. In a few minutes an indescribable feeling of relaxation crept over me. I felt as though my whole body were being caressed by the soaking sunshine of Spring. It was an experience I'll never forget — and one that I often repeat!

To share my good fortune, I sent a package of BATHERAPY to a friend. He wrote me:

"I've been in such misery lately that I've been a virtual slave to pain-killing drugs. But no more! Now when my aches get unbearable, I simply get in my tub and let a BATHERAPY bath soak them away! It's like taking a Mineral Bath at one of those European Spas you read about — but I bet even they can't match the blessed, long-lasting relief my own tub now gives me."

Available to Hospitals and the Public

As this is being written, BATHERAPY is being made available to hospitals everywhere — and to the public through this announcement. Already thousands are enjoying its benefits. Yet BATHERAPY does not help everyone. Unfortunately, there are some people who are constitutionally unable to respond even to Nature's own Mineral Baths. If you, however, are among the millions who suffer from painful aches in joints and muscles — or from the tensions and fatigues of modern living — ask your doctor about BATHERAPY. If he thinks it might help you, by all means try it. The chances are you'll find its soothing, cushioning, pain-softening action will give you a surprising freedom from minor discomforts and a feeling of well-being that may last for quite a little time.

Sleep like a baby — without pills!

Even if you are fortunately free of any chronic bodily discomforts, you'll find a bath with BATHERAPY is a delightful and rewarding experience . . . A wonderful sensation of physical freedom envelopes you. Tensions unwind. Nerves are soothed. And you relax so blissfully, you sleep as though you hadn't a care in the world . . .

Blessed relief from ACHES and PAINS* due to OVER EXERTION and FATIGUE now in your own bathtub!

Now, without pills or medicines, you may give yourself quick temporary relief from many aches and pains — due to over-exertion and fatigue.

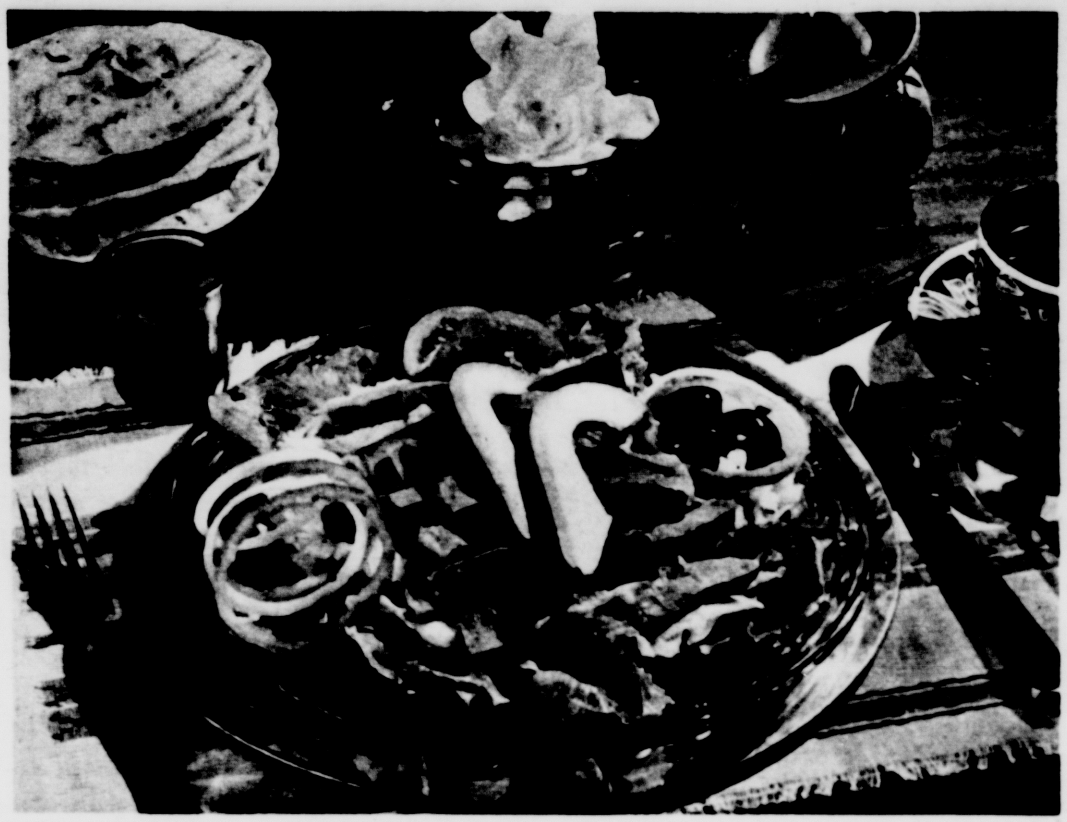
Fiesta Flavors Down Mexico Way

MELANIE DE PROFT
Food Editor



Piquantly marinated cooked beef served with a variety of vegetable embellishments and tortillas makes Beef Salad Acapulco an enticing main dish.

Beef Salad Acapulco

- 3 cups cooked beef strips
- ¾ cup salad or cooking oil
- ½ cup red wine vinegar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- Salad greens
- Avocado slices, brushed with marinade
- Onion and green pepper rings
- Tomato wedges
- Ripe olives

1. Place beef strips in a shallow dish. Combine the oil and next five ingredients in a jar; cover tightly and shake vigorously to blend. Pour over beef strips; cover and allow the meat to marinate several hours or overnight.

2. Remove beef from marinade and arrange over crisp greens on chilled salad plates. Garnish with remaining ingredients (see photo). Serve the marinade as the dressing.

About 4 servings

Beef Tacos

- 3 tablespoons lard
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, crushed in a garlic press or minced
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- ⅛ teaspoon ground cumin
- Lard for frying
- 12 canned or frozen tortillas, dried at room temperature about 2 hrs.
- Finely shredded lettuce
- Finely chopped onion
- Shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Heat the 3 tablespoons lard in a large, heavy skillet. Add onion and garlic and cook until tender. Blend in beef and a mixture of salt, chili, and cumin; brown meat lightly.

2. Fry tortillas, one at a time, in ½ in. of lard heated to 375°F. in a heavy skillet. When tortilla becomes limp, fold in half with tongs and hold edges apart while frying to allow for filling. Fry 1½ to 2 min., or until crisp and golden. Drain on absorbent paper.

3. To serve, spoon 3 to 4 tablespoons of beef mixture into each tortilla; top with lettuce, onion, and cheese. If desired, serve with a salsa picante (a Mexican hot sauce). Garnish each plate with a tomato wedge and radish rose. 12 tacos

Note: For variety, substitute Frijoles or melted cheese for the beef mixture used for filling.

Enchiladas en Crema

- 2 cups cream
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed in a garlic press or minced
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 cups small cooked chicken pieces
- 12 canned or frozen tortillas
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped canned green chiles
- 1½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Pour a mixture of the first four ingredients over chicken; toss to coat pieces. Drain chicken and reserve liquid.

2. Arrange chicken along center of each tortilla and roll up. Place side by side in a shallow baking dish.

3. Sprinkle tortillas with a mixture of green pepper, onion, and chiles. Pour reserved mixture over all.

4. Cover dish and set aside at room temperature about 1 hr., basting frequently with cream. Sprinkle tortillas with cheese; cover dish.

5. Place in a 300°F. oven 1 hr.

Note: If a hotter filling is desired, mix chicken with salsa picante (Mexican hot sauce).

Frijoles

- 1 lb. pinto beans, washed
- 6 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup lard*

1. Bring beans and water rapidly to boiling in a tightly covered saucepan; boil 2 min. Remove from heat; set aside 1 hr.

2. Add salt, bring again to boiling, reduce heat, and simmer 1 to 2 hrs., or until beans are tender. Drain beans, reserving liquid.

3. Heat the lard in a large, heavy skillet and add some of the drained beans. Mash well; add a little of the reserved liquid and blend. Continue adding remainder of beans and liquid alternately, mashing and blending after each addition. Continue cooking over low heat 15 to 20 min., or until very thick, stirring frequently. 8 to 10 servings

BILL PLUMMER'S ANSWERS FOR ANY BASS SITUATION—ANY TIME OF DAY OR YEAR—ANY TYPE OF BASS WATER—ANY CHANGE OF PACE REQUIRED

Bill Plummer's weed and brush fishing methods are made possible by his patented weedless hook . . . the hook that revolutionized fishing bass in weeds, leaving no gaps between hook and weedguard, deflecting instantly during strike, eliminating hook interference. Now it has become possible to cast safely into the heart of thickest weeds and heaviest cover along muddy bottom directly where the big bass are.

BILL PLUMMER'S BASS ARSENAL

Most bass, says Bill, are caught on very different lure types. Bill has found the most productive lures he has ever used to be his frogs . . . his famous kicking surface frog . . . his drowning sinker frog . . . a murderous decoy at any level, his skitter frog, skittering along in the most versatile way imaginable on the surface . . . at any level through weeds, and around branches, around rocks and, as a bottom bumper. All three are the most natural lures possible in the weeds.

For bottom bumping, Bill has found NO jig equal to his Bill Plummer Weedless Rubber Skirted Jig because, armed with Bill Plummer's patented hook, it skips through weed-infested bottom where the big bass are without weed tie-up.

For use with black or red pork eel, Bill uses his weedless 3/0 nickel forged bass and pike hook. Its superb. Pork eel fishermen find a thrill greater than they ever had before because with Bill's patented hook they cast without fear into the heart of thickest cover.

For rock quarries, for clear water where small mouth bass are, Bill uses his non-weedless frog, and for pike and walleye as well.

5 Simple Ways to Giant Catches. It's amazing how these simple-to-use lures cast safely as never before, attract strikes and set hooks as never before. Result! Bigger, far bigger bass—more, far more bass landed.

In weeds, on the surface, at any level. In brush—for deep holes, dripping rock and bottom formations—for deep, deep clear water—and there are times when the bass are there—for any bass situations—in Bill Plummer's murderous bass arsenal you have the answer.

If you want change of pace with consistent producers, if you want easy-to-use, safe to cast lures, if you want provocative, tempting, bass-murdering killers in your tackle box—enough for any bass situation, any time of day or year, any type of water or shore and bottom formation—if you want the respect and admiration of being the best bass fisherman in your group, accept this offer only for Family Weekly readers. Simply try Bill Plummer's 5-way Bass Arsenal for yourself on an amazing six month approval basis. Only $6.98.

SLOWLY RELEASED CHEESE CATCHES

2½ TIMES MORE TROUT THAN SALMON EGGS

by Paul Gilliam

Reports from Golden Pond, Kentucky tell of amazing catches from and old-time bait in modern form, called Staz-On.

It's Cheese bait made right in a Sponge body, so tough—fish can't tear it off, and you can't cast it off—that keeps S-L-O-W-L-Y releasing flavor and odor—and keeps catching fish.

17 trout for one fisherman OVER his limit before he even realizes it—outstanding Bluegill catches when cut into small pieces—and as much Catfish from one Trotline as from 10 Trotlines alongside using other baits. In fact, time and time again catfish have been taken from lines after STAZ-ON has been in the water for more than 10 days.

And it's harder. STAZ-ON is steelproof—can't be nibbled, sucked or cast off hook—won't fall apart. It's used by commercial fishermen and made from an old-time recipe that Trout can't resist.

It's great for sport fishing, jug fishing, ice fishing, and trot lines. It's easy to use and does not have to be refrigerated.

It has been arranged for Family Weekly Readers to accept this discovery on a six month trial for only $1.98 for three packages.

3-STAR WEEDLESS KIT

Three of America's great weed fishermen created these three great weedless lures. And now they are banded together to give you this 3-star weedless kit . . . a combination deadly in any weed situation. Only $4.98.

WEED WING—⅛ oz. nickle. The famous weedless, spinning, surface lure contest winner. Sputtering, splashing, skittering over the weeds of lily pads. Weed Wing is like a small land animal splashing hurriedly over the surface trying to escape. Completely weedless, Bass, Pike, Muskie will usually strike at this lure even though not actually hungry. $1.55

BROOKS #7 ⅛ oz. Non-Locking spinner shaft. The weedguard is on top at a slant instead of underneath. It is camouflaged by rubber skirt and keeps this great Brooke Oertel weedless lure from hanging up in rough cover. Fish tested coloring . . . exciting slither action. A killer. $1.65

HARRISON'S BASS FROG . . . designed by Bill Plummer, ½ oz. Sports Afield ran two page articles on Bill Plummer's Technique with his frog. Outdoor Life ran four. General Motors filmed him. Won First Place in Field and Stream 1965 National Fishing Contest. Wiggles through branches, through matted weeds, bumps around rocks, slips off log, kicks, races, acts hurt, darts ahead, dives under surface, "drowns." Casts into thick weeds. Murders large mouth bass, pike, small mouth bass. $1.75

He Tested The Fish Catching Discovery Illegal in Six States

LEONARD HARTMAN, Holder of 26 World Fishing Records Reports!...

Huge catches by lures treated with a Fisherman-Scientist's "Light-up Powder" (Illegal in Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Utah, Minnesota and Wyoming) after the same lures had failed before.

Leonard Hartman reported in test after test he found a sprinkling of LURE GLOW produced fabulous catches by "drawing" sight-feeding fish right to hook . . . on days when same lure without chemical caught little or no fish . . . drew fish to a single fisherman's hook when other fishermen at side had the same skill, same equipment and same lure.

In test after test from trout, bass, jacks, ladyfish, redfish and even a 38 pound Muskie . . . fish dazzled by chemical glow struck without caution.

Fishermen report amazing success with chemical called LURE GLOW . . . for bass, pike, perch, trout, walleyes, muskie, bream and many other fresh and salt water fish.

Why It Works

For years fishermen have known that light attracts many kinds of fish perhaps like a bulb draws moths . . . so much so some states outlaw a light of any kind.

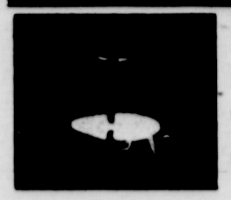
Knowing this a fisherman-scientist created a chemiluscent formula to make lures light up in the water . . . in dark water . . . at dawn and dusk . . . in deep water any time where big fish lurk during day.

So it's logical that lures that "light up" in water have big added appeal to fish.

Because of chemical's glow, fish can see lures and bait up to twice as far away depending on local water conditions . . . even at depths of 40 feet where big ones hide. In test after test treated lures out-fished untreated ones—often spectacularly.

Sportsman's Offer

See how LURE GLOW chemical discovery lights up your lures or live bait, helps make catches you never believed possible. One container treats lures or bait up to 300 or 400 times yet costs only $2.98 . . . costs nothing if you're not delighted.



Works on any lure or Live Bait

Photos show 2 identical worms . . . and 2 identical lures . . . ones treated with Lure Glow glow brightly. Fantastic Scientific discovery makes any lure, plug, spinner, live bait many times more effective when you use LURE GLOW

This is the distinctive voiceprint of the word "you" as uttered by a man.

Voiceprints:

New Weapon Against Crime—and Illness

A PACIFIC AIRLINES PLANE with 44 persons aboard plunged to earth 30 miles east of San Francisco on May 7, 1964.

Seconds before the fatal crash, the Oakland control tower received a badly garbled message from the plane. The words sounded like, "I'm shot—oh, my God, help!" Then radio contact stopped.

In the wreckage, Civil Aeronautics Board and FBI investigators found a high-powered revolver, which ballistic tests showed had been fired recently. The weapon's owner: Frank Gonzalez, a former Philippines Olympic athlete who was a passenger on the ill-fated flight. Gonzalez carried $105,000 in life insurance.

Was this murder in the sky? Investigators, listening to the final recording, thought the voice belonged to the plane captain, but they weren't certain. And the words still puzzled them.

To clear up the mystery, the baffled investigators sent the recording to Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill, N. J., and Lawrence G. Kersta, Bell's expert in the new crime-detection science of voiceprints.

Using a machine called a spectrograph, Kersta quickly identified the voice as that of copilot Raymond E. Andress. Using electronic filters to eliminate the extraneous noises, Kersta was able to reconstruct Andress' last words, syllable by syllable.

The words were: "Skipper's shot. We've been shot. I was trying to help." Thanks to voiceprints, the CAB investigators were certain that they now knew what had happened. After the captain had been shot, Andress grappled with the killer. The gun went off again, and Andress staggered to the radio for his last message.

Murder in midair was the CAB's final verdict.

threat, or a phoned bomb scare, Kersta's remarkable voiceprints (or voice spectrograms, as they are officially known) frequently are the investigators' best tool in solving the puzzle.

"A voiceprint," Kersta explains, "is a little picture of one spoken word. It reveals the pattern of a person's voice energy in various levels of pitch. These patterns are quite distinctive and can be identified."

Kersta maintains that voiceprints are 99 percent accurate and that you can't fool the machine by muffling your voice, talking through a handkerchief, speaking in a whisper, or affecting an accent. He says this is because the natural shape of a person's mouth, throat, and nasal cavities causes his voice energy to be concentrated into bands of frequencies that remain essentially the same, no matter what kind of disguise is used.

Law-enforcement agencies are becoming increasingly aware of the value of the voiceprint in crime detection. In 1963 a Connecticut factory received many bomb threats by telephone. Intensive police investigation unearthed a leading suspect, a millwright who was considered a "good" employee by the factory management.

Seeking evidence against the man, the local police sent tapes of the calls to Kersta.

"His findings," the police later reported, "not only established that the voice of the caller was the millwright's but also revealed a second caller."

Confronted with this evidence, the millwright confessed and named another workman as his cohort. Both men were convicted and given suspended sentences. The millwright said the calls were made because he was disgruntled. He had wanted a day off and had been refused.

The next step in the use of voiceprints as a law-enforcement tool may be in an efficient national-classification system. Kersta suggests that voiceprints can be analyzed and coded by computer. As with fingerprints, more than one specimen will be required to positively identify a person by means of voiceprints. Kersta proposes using 10 of the most commonly used words in the English language: it, me, you, on, I, is, and, a, the, and to.

The medical profession also is showing considerable interest in body soundprints (voiceprints actually come under this general heading) as a routine supplement to total diagnosis.

At St. Christopher's Hospital in Philadelphia, Dr. Leonard S. Girsh is doing research in respiratory prints. He points out that in listening to body sounds there has been little modern improvement over the long-used stethoscope. And the stethoscope is merely a convenience, since a physician can hear as much by placing his ear against a patient's body. The sound spectrograph, however, can pick up sounds unheard by the human ear.

Evaluations made by Dr. Girsh indicate that asthmaprints may well become a means of determining progress being made in controlling a patient's whistling and wheezing. At present, not too much is known about the cause of asthma. Sufferers become worse not only at night but even if they lie down during the day. While various explanations have been offered, Dr. Girsh places high hopes that asthmaprints, made while the patient isn't suffering, may furnish clues to its cause.

Doctors now recognize 60 different heart malfunctions, many of which sound alike through a stethoscope. At New Jersey's Seton Hall College of Medicine, Dr. Mortimer L. Schwartz has made heartprints of many patients. Similar heart murmurs, he discovered, "yield [heartprint] patterns unique to each abnormality."

Making a heartprint takes 15 minutes. A patient does not necessarily even have to go to a hospital. A recording might be made over the telephone, a heartprint made of it, and, in some specific cases, a diagnosis could follow.

"Heart and body soundprints are not going to revolutionize medicine," Dr. Schwartz points out. "I am most hopeful, however, that they will become a great aid in diagnosis." ◆ the faint murmur of a heart defect

—no sound can hide its identity

Raymond Smith of Sacramento has won over $900.00 in Club competitions. A retiree, Mr. Smith's first win was only $25.00. Then, as he practiced solving our puzzles, he won much more.

"I was amazed to learn I won $900.00," said Mrs. Florence Humphrey of Cincinnati. "The prize money came at a dandy time as I've had some debts to pay off. Thank you."
